16. In support of the view that the opening of a gold mint and the extension of gold circulation would be ineffective for the purpose of supporting exchange or of lightening our responsibility for maintaining the convertibility of our present token coinage, it may be argued that in a crisis gold coins would not be available for export. There is always a tendency at present, it is said, for the sovereign to go to a premium, and this tendency becomes very marked when exchange is weak. The argument, however, is not conclusive : it has force under present conditions, but it is not true universally. We look forward in fact to a state of affairs in which the sovereign will become a familiar enough feature in the Indian currency to command no premium in ordinary circumstances, and we cannot admit that when the proportion of gold to the total currency is substantial it will not be available for steadying the exchange value of the rupee.

17. The second line of objection to a gold coinage is that gold already enters India freely, that there is no internal demand for sovereigns which the ordinary import channels do not satisfy, and that, so long as the Indian public can obtain as many sovereigns as they need, it is immaterial to them where the coins happen to have been minted. In support of this view is adduced the very large accumulation of sovereigns which has grown up in our Currency Reserve during the last eighteen months of busy trade The supply from the sources indicated continues however only so long as the export trade is brisk. It ceases the moment there is a slackening in the outward current of trade, and as the experience of 1908-09 most plainly shows we are liable at any time to be left without the means of replenishing the active circulation.

18. It may also be argued that a gold coinage for India is unnecessary, because there is no essential connection between a gold standard and a gold currency. This assertion is one the complete application of which under Indian conditions may be questioned and that for two reasons. In the first place, metallic currency in this country forms a large proportion of the internal media of exchange Secondly, the ebb and flow of currency requirements fluctuates greatly in India with its essential dependence on agriculture, and its liability to extreme vicissitudes of seasons. A glance at Indian currency statistics is sufficient to establish this proposition After the famine of 1907-08, the return of superfluous currency to Government was extremely heavy and practically the whole of the return was in rupees. The difficulties that arise in such a situation—and we have suggested that they may, on another occasion, be much accentuated— are sufficiently obvious. These difficulties would disappear if for a substantial portion of our present and token coinage we could substitute a currency having intrinsic value and acceptable therefore in international trade, and we are driven to the conclusion that our only possible policy is to base our standard on two sure foundations, adding gradually to the reserve of gold in England an effective gold currency in this country.

19. Lastly we have to consider those objections to a gold currency which are based on the assertion that the coinage of gold in India would be wasteful or expensive. It would be wasteful, it is alleged, because our new sovereigns would be either melted or swallowed up in hoards as soon as they were issued. It would be expensive because we should have to bear all the cost of maintaining the purity of the coinage, as well as of the original minting.

20. These two arguments might, we think, be taken as mutually destructive. If the new sovereigns are to be melted as soon as they leave the mint, we cannot be at much expense in maintaining them. But we do not anticipate that either argument will be regarded as a serious impediment to our proposal. That the melting and hoarding of sovereigns will continue to be common practices in India is undeniable, just as the rupee was melted and hoarded in large quantities when the Indian mints were open to the free coinage of silver. But we cannot imagine that they will all be melted, or even the major part of them, for it is hardly likely that bullion will be brought to the mint if it is to be reconverted immediately. We do not think that there can be any reasonable doubt that some proportion of the new sovereigns would be retained, possibly at first a small proportion but a proportion which will steadily grow, and as it grows, familiarity with the sovereign will increase, and its place in the active currency of the country will extend. Again every sovereign which goes into hoards, and releases fifteen rupees, is pro tanto a diminution in our responsibility for maintaining the parity of the rupee.

21. The objection that the sovereign would be an expensive coin is one that carries little weight The actual minting of the sovereign is, we believe, comparatively simple and cheap, and the cost of making the necessary additions to the present equipment of the Bombay Mint would be inconsiderable. We understand that refining is also a simple matter, now that the electrolytic process has been perfected It may be urged that the Government will become responsible for the purity of the coinage, and will have to bear all the cost of wear and tear, up to the legal tolerance. We think that the popular notion of this responsibility is greatly exaggerated. It already rests upon us in regard to the sovereigns which enter India in great quantities on the balance of trade, many of which are worn. If, instead of those worn coins, we are able to manufacture good coins from bullion which has been imported in the place of sovereigns, our responsibilities will be actually lightened. It is of course impossible at present to say what the loss will be on new coins minted in India. But we anticipate that the abrasion in India, owing to the different habits of the people, will be materially less than it is in England. When the late Lord Goschen undertook to rehabilitate the British coinage in 1891, he put [illegible] only £600,000 for the purpose We understand that the greater part of this sum was expended in the re-coinage of half-sovereigns, with which we shall not be concerned; the remainder was all that was necessary to restore the sovereign coinage of the previous fifty years. If this may be regarded as an analogy—and we know of no other—the cost of the work to us, provided it is kept up to date, would be a very small fraction of the annual interest upon our profits from the coinage of silver.

22. In this review of the criticisms directed against our proposal we have already brought to notice many of the arguments which favour it, but in conclusion it is, no doubt, desirable to develop briefly the affirmative side of the discussion. We may say at once that we do not claim that the coinage of gold in India will be a panacea for all our currency ills. Indeed we do not imagine that its influence will be greatly felt at first; but such a measure will mark a step along the path which has been authoritatively accepted as the line on which our currency policy must develop, and in time it will be of great assistance in maintaining the stability of our currency system.

23 This policy, we venture to think, will be materially assisted by the change in the habits of the people which we have already mentioned. In particular the awakening interest in banking which is perceptible in many parts of the country, the growth of the co-operative movement, and the increase of commercial openings for local capital, give promise that the hoarding habit will decline. As gold ornaments and bullion come out of hoards some portion of them, at least, will find their way to the mint—if there is a mint open to receive them—and in this way it will be possible to add to the stock of sovereigns in the country Even if the process be regarded as little more than hall-marking the people's gold for them, it will accustom the people to the idea that their savings are as easily converted into gold coin as into rupees or currency notes, and will help to dissipate the notion that the sovereign is a thing apart from everyday business. But we consider that the process will be more than mere hall-marking, and that it will not be confined to the ornaments now concealed in the people's hoards. We believe that much of the "high-touch" bar gold, which in favourable years enters India to settle the balance of trade, will be brought to the mint for conversion into the handier form of sovereigns. The present position indeed appears to us anomalous. Gold coin is readily converted into bullion, but there are no facilities for reversing the process. It cannot be expected that bullion in the country should be sent home to be coined and brought back in the form of sovereigns, and the current consequently sets all in one direction. Were a gold mint established in the country the position would be entirely changed. We have said that we cannot expect gold to come back to us in times of dull trade and dull exchange. But when trade is brisk and exchange high, there may be a stronger demand for gold in the shape of coin than as bullion, and it should, then, in place of importing sovereigns, be found more profitable to use the bullion already in the country by passing it through the mint. There may be occasions also when the Exchange Banks may find it to their advantage to import bullion for the purpose of coinage rather than sovereigns. In a matter of this kind no one can be dogmatic, but in any case there is at present an artificial barrier opposed to the free conversion, when required by circumstances, of bullion into coin, and it is one of the objects of our proposal that this barrier should be removed. A free movement being then established between coin and bullion in both directions, we cannot doubt that the effect would be to swell the volume of sovereigns in the hands of the people and increase their active circulation

Of the advantages of such an increase in the circulation we have already spoken. It diminishes the pressure on the Government of India for the coinage of silver. It keeps down the heavy responsibility that rests on them for the convertibility of the rupee, and thus simplifies the problems of exchange.

24. The coin, which we ask permission to manufacture, is the British sovereign. On previous occasions the relative advantages of the sovereign and of an Indian coin have been discussed at length, but the main argument in favour of a special coin has always been that the sovereign could never be popular, and this argument has now lost practically all its force On the other hand, the disadvantages attached to gold pieces which would be exclusively Indian are obvious. For use in international exchanges it would be some time before they could establish a definite and unquestioned position, whereas the sovereign has already an immediate and universal currency For the present, therefore, we hold that the gold coin to be minted in India ought to be the sovereign, which is the most powerful coin in the world and has been happily described by a distinguished Indian publicist as "cement of the Empire."

25. Our proposal for a gold coinage has behind it the overwhelming support of Indian public opinion, the leaders of which are ready and anxious to extend the everyday use of the common coin of the Empire, and are unable to understand why India should be denied the same minting facilities as have been given to Australia and Canada. The time also, as we have said, is opportune. We trust, therefore, that your Lordship will accept our proposal in principle, and that on the submission of the necessary plans and estimates, you will be able to convince Their Lordships of the Treasury, and the authorities of the Royal Mint of our readiness both to accept all necessary technical requirements and to grant all reasonable facilities for inspecting and testing the work of minting and refining. We need hardly say that we are determined to take all possible measures to ensure that the British sovereign coined in India should in no way be inferior to that coined elsewhere We do not submit any proposals for coining half-sovereigns, experience having shewn that this coin is not popular in India. Further, any present step to promote its circulation might conflict with the future possibility, should it be considered advisable, of introducing some other small coin, such as a ten-rupee piece, which would be more in accord with Indian sentiment.

Financial,

No. 139.

To His Excellency the Right Honourable the Governor General of India in Council.

MY LORD,

In your letter of the 16th of May, No. 110, you submitted proposals for the coinage of sovereigns at Bombay The chief result that you anticipate from this measure is that it would attract to the Mint bullion now held in India, which, since the issue of your Notification No 6908A, dated 11th December 1906, has not been received there. You hold the opinion, which seems clearly correct, that it would not be likely to increase the importation of gold into India.

2. The conclusion that I reached after considering your letter was that, having regard first to the ease with which holders of gold bullion in India can, as a rule, exchange it for currency, whether sovereigns, notes, or rupees, if they wish to do so, and secondly, to the probability that the gold imported into India is so imported because it is preferred in that form rather than in that of coin, the adoption of your proposal would not be likely to have any considerable effect of the kind that you anticipate, but that the experiment is worth trying if it can be done at a moderate expense, or on a self-supporting basis. It was necessary for me to communicate with the Treasury on the subject since, under the English and Indian Coinage Acts, sovereigns are not legal tender in India or England unless coined at a branch Mint established under a proclamation issued by His Majesty with the advice of the Privy Council. I accordingly placed before the Treasury proposals intended to enable the proposed measure to be carried out economically.

3 From the enclosed correspondence you will see that the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury are unable to accept my proposal. They offer two alternatives, (1) that a branch Mint be established at Bombay solely for coinage of gold under the supervision of the Royal Mint and His Majesty's Treasury; (2) that the control of the whole of the existing Mint at Bombay be taken over by His Majesty's Government who would accept at the expense of India the responsibility for an establishment producing not only British gold coins but also coins for circulation in India, that is silver and nickel.

4. The former alternative would involve the maintenance at Indian expense of a separate building and highly paid staff for work which might occupy only a small part of the year The second would involve the placing under control of the Treasury of some part at any rate of your silver coinage operations as well as the coinage of sovereigns I doubt whether either alternative will commend itself to Your Excellency's Government.

5. If both are dismissed it will remain to consider whether it is desirable to produce at one of the Indian Mints a separate Indian gold coin of the denomination of, say, Rs. 10; this course would be inexpensive and would avoid the intervention of the British authorities in your general coinage operations. There is also some reason to expect that a gold coin of the denomination suggested would satisfy such currency requirements as are not met by the present facilities for obtaining sovereigns, rupees, and notes I am prepared, if you so desire, to sanction the issue of such a coin, subject to the settlement of such details as the design, the charge for seigniorage, and the expenditure to be incurred on buildings, plant and additional staff.

I have the honour to be,

My Lord,

Your Lordship's most obdient humble Servant,

CREWE.

ENCLOSURES.

Enclosure No. 1

India Office to Treasury.

F 2649.

India Office,
27th June 1912.

SIR,

I am directed to invite attention to the correspondence which passed between His Majesty's Treasury, this Office, and the Royal Mint, in 1899-1901, on the subject of the proposed establishment of a branch of the Royal Mint for the coinage of gold at Bombay.

The proposal was dropped for the time being in 1902 for various reasons, among which were the expense involved in the maintenance of a separate establishment at Bombay solely for the coinage of sovereigns, and the objections raised by the Treasury to a more economical arrangement by which that staff might be utilised for the coinage of silver or copper coins as well as gold.

The Government of India now desire to reopen the question. While recognizing that sovereigns flow freely into India in the adjustment of trade balances, and that the establishment of a local mint for the coinage of gold can have no effect in increasing this inflow, they believe that such a measure would have a beneficial effect in popularising the sovereign, and in stimulating the gradual but at present slow process by which it is passing into active circulation. They think also that the opening of a local mint for the coinage of sovereigns would be likely to attract bullion now hoarded in the country, the amount of which there is reason to believe is very large, and that some part of the bullion which is annually imported would go to the mint for coinage It may be added that the coinage of gold in India has been strongly advocated in the Viceroy's Legislative Council, and the Government of India represent that it is very vigorously supported by Indian public opinion.

The definite proposal of the Government of India is to open the Bombay Mint to the free coinage of sovereigns, under such control of its operations by the Royal Mint as His Majesty's Government may consider to be necessary They propose to attach to the mint a gold refinery, so as to deal with ornaments and alloyed gold in any form and to receive raw gold from the Indian mines. The portion of the mint used for the coinage of sovereigns would be, at any rate at first, on a small scale It is believed that the cost of making the necessary additions to the present equipment of the Bombay Mint should be inconsiderable.

With a view to the establishment of a branch of the Royal Mint at Bombay at a cost not incommensurate with a moderate outturn of sovereigns, I am to enquire whether the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury would be willing to agree to the maintenance of a staff at Bombay, subject to the control of the Royal Mint in respect of all purposes connected with the coinage of sovereigns, but at the disposal of the Government of India for the purposes of such duties as are now carried on under the orders of that Government.

If, as is hoped, the Treasury accepts this proposal in principle and indicates what information is required for the preparation of a detailed scheme for carrying it into effect, the information will be obtained from the Government of India and submitted to the Treasury as soon as possible.

I have, etc.,
LIONEL ABRAHAMS.

Enclosure No. 2.

Treasury to India Office.

No. 13027

Treasury Chambers,

8th August 1912

SIR,

I have laid before the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury Mr Abrahams' letter of the 27th June last (F. 2619), on the subject of the proposed establishment in India of a local Mint for the coinage of British sovereigns, and I am desired to request you to lay the following reply before the Secretary of State for India in Council

In view of the correspondence which passed in 1899-1901, My Lords do not propose to discuss the general reasons for and against the proposal for establishing a mint for the coinage of sovereigns in India, and (subject to proper safeguards) are prepared to co-operate in giving effect to the proposal which the Government of India have decided to put forward for reasons of which they are the judges

The first and most important point on which a decision is needed is, therefore, the question of the control to be exercised by the Royal Mint over the coinage of sovereigns in India The proposal which the Marquess of Crewe [illegible] forward is that a branch of the Royal Mint should be established at Bombay, in connection with the existing mint, and that that part of the staff which is engaged on gold coinage should be subject to the control of the Royal Mint in respect of all purposes connected with such gold coinage, but should be at the disposal of the Government of India for the purposes of such other duties as are now carried on under the orders of that Government

My Lords regret that they are quite unable to agree to any scheme involving divided control. In their opinion it is essential that the control should be undivided whether the staff be engaged upon gold or upon other coinage work; and, as is admitted in the letter under reply, the control over the gold coining staff must necessarily be that of the Royal Mint.

This being so, the only alternatives open to discussion appear to My Lords to be those mentioned in the penultimate paragraph of the letter* from this Department of the 9th July 1901 (No. 10189—01). Either (i) a branch mint must be established at Bombay or elsewhere solely for the coinage of gold under the supervision of the Master of the Mint and of this Department, as in the case of the three branch mints in Australia—a scheme which, if Their Lordships' anticipations as to the volume of work to be done are correct, involves the maintenance at the expense of the Indian Government throughout the year of a building and a highly paid staff for work which will not occupy more than (say) one-third or one-fourth of the year. Or, alternatively, (ii) the control of the whole of the existing mint at Bombay must be taken over by the Government of this country, and the precedent of the Ottawa Branch Mint adopted, under which His Majesty's Government undertake, at the expense of the Local Government, the responsibility for an establishment producing not only British gold coins, but also, and in overwhelmingly greater proportions, local subsidiary coins which are not legal tender outside the country where the branch mint is situate.

* See enclosure to Secretary of State's despatch to India, No 130 F of 1901

In 1901 My Lords were not prepared to regard this alternative as a practical solution of the problem, but since that date they have had the experience of the establishment and satisfactory working of the Ottawa Mint on these lines, and, if the Government of India is prepared to fall in with the arrangement, My Lords are now disposed to think that it is the best and indeed the only practical method of securing the necessary control by the Royal Mint and at the same time providing the mint to be established in India with sufficient work to occupy it throughout the year.

Should the Marquess of Crewe be able to agree in principle to this scheme, My Lords would suggest that the next step should be the despatch to Bombay of an experienced official from the Royal Mint in London to consider on the spot in consultation with the officials of the Bombay Mint what alterations and additions would be needed for the purpose of gold coinage.

Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday, 8th March 1913.

Burma.—The rainfall was general except in the Delta and at three dry zone districts. Harvesting of miscellaneous crops and cultivation of spring and summer rice are progressing. The condition of standing crops is good The price of unhusked rice has risen slightly at Rangoon.

Assam.—Rain fell in all districts with generally good results for ploughing but the fall was unfavourable for the mustard harvest in places. Ploughing for early and late rice and jute is in progress. Crushing of sugarcane and pruning of tea are proceeding. Gathering of mustard is nearly finished The average price of common rice has risen by about 2 per cent Cattle disease is reported from Sylhet and Manipur.

Bengal.—Rain fell generally throughout the Province. The fall was heavy in parts of Darjeeling and Jalpaiguri and generally light to moderate elsewhere. The recent rainfall has damaged mangoe blossoms in Malda and Hooghly and has injured prospects of spring crops in some places Preparation of fields for autumn paddy and jute is going on briskly and sowings have commenced in places Harvesting of spring crops and pressing of sugarcane are in progress The average price of common rice for the Province has risen by about 1.25 per cent as compared with that of the previous week Cattle disease is reported from Khulna and from places in Burdwan, Dinajpur, Mymensingh and Tippera

Bihar and Orissa.—The rainfall was general over the Province, the fall being heavy for the time of the year in Chota Nagpur and light to moderate in Bihar and Orissa. Harvesting of spring crops continues Preparation of lands and pressing of sugarcane are in progress Planting of sugarcane is going on The recent rainfall has slightly damaged standing spring crops in most districts of Bihar The average price of common rice has risen slightly in Bihar and Chota Nagpur and is almost stationary in Orissa The condition of cattle is on the whole good The supply of fodder and water is sufficient throughout the Province Prospects of standing crops in the Feudatory States of Orissa are on the whole good

United Provinces.—Rain averaging more than one inch fell all over the Provinces The fall was heaviest in the hills and submontane districts but substantial everywhere Many districts report local damage from hail and a few from excess of rain Standing crops are generally in good condition. Harvesting of sarson, peas, gram, barley and wheat is now in progress and opium is being extracted Extra crops are being sown. Fodder and water are sufficient In Mirzapur there are 1,883 persons on test works and 11,815 on canal and water works In the Benares State there are 1,639 on works and 2,490 on gratuitous relief. Cattle disease persists in Bundelkhand and is diminishing elsewhere Prices are steady with a slight tendency to rise

Punjab.—Moderate to good rain has fallen in all districts. The condition of irrigated spring crops is average to good and of unirrigated crops generally fair. Extra spring crops are being sown. Harvesting of rape seed and sowings of sugarcane and cotton have commenced Ploughings for autumn crops continue Cattle are generally healthy but fodder is insufficient in places. Prices remain high

North-West Frontier Province.—Slight showers fell in Hazara, Peshawar and Kohat The weather is cool and at times cloudy The condition of irrigated crops is good and of unirrigated average Sowings of sugarcane and extra spring crops are in progress Cattle are in good condition The water supply is sufficient Fodder is scarce in Dera Ismail Khan and sufficient elsewhere Prices are high but stationary

Jammu.—Good rain fell during the week. Prices are fluctuating. Wheat sells from 9 to 16 and maize from 14 to 21 seers per rupee The condition of standing crops is fair Cattle disease of mild type prevails in the Riasi tahsil. Fodder is insufficient in the same tahsil

GENERAL REVIEW.

[Throughout the report any figure with the rupee sign before it represents the actual number of rupees. Otherwise rupee figures are in thousands of rupees and sterling figures in hundreds of £, thus 10,64, reads as ten lakhs and sixty-four thousands of Rupees and £71,2 reads as seventy-one thousands and two hundreds of pounds sterling The rupee figures are converted into sterling amounts at R15=£1. "India" means the circle of audit of the Comptroller of India Treasuries.]

1. As was explained in the Financial Statement for 1911-12 the Budget was again framed in the expectation of a normal harvest, a good export season and steady progress in trade and industry. Excluding Opium, a moderate all round advance in those receipts which are directly affected by the agricultural conditions of the country was anticipated. Slight improvements were accordingly provided for under Land Revenue, Salt, Excise and Irrigation but in view of the abnormal revenue that accrued under Stamps in the previous year from the operation of the Limitation Act a decrease was expected under this head. A slight improvement was also expected in the Commercial Departments, viz, Railways and Posts and Telegraphs, a part of the increases being also due to the additional business expected from the Royal Visit. Minor increases were expected under Forest and other heads Decreases were anticipated under Interest and Customs, the former due to the expectation that the cash balances in London would not be utilised so much for short loans as large payments would be required on Capital Account and in redemption of debt, and the latter to the expectation of a decline in the yield of silver duty. Moderate improvements were provided for in respect of other imports including tobacco consequent on the proposed reduction of duty. Opium again showed a serious decrease due both to the smaller exports provided for in the agreement with China and to uncertainty as to the rates which would prevail On the expenditure side additional provision was made under Salaries and Expenses of Civil Departments £1,027,0, other Public Works, £964,0, Military Services £337,1, Railways £249,8, Telegraphs £116,8 and Post Office £70,1 or a total of £3,664,8. The revenue of the year was placed at £78,034,9 and the total expenditure at £78,931,7, the net result being an Imperial Surplus of £819,2 and a deficit in the Provincial Accounts of £1,716,0.

2. In the actuals the receipts proved better than the estimates by £4,800,8 the bulk of the improvement being under Railways £1,927,0 and Opium 1,680,9. The very large revenue under Railways was the result of an exceptional harvest and the Royal Visit, while under Opium it was due to the better prices obtained. There were increases under most of the other heads. In the Imperial portion the chief increases occurred under Customs £254,6, Interest £250,1, and Mint £168,6 and in the Provincial portion under Excise £383,3 and Irrigation £156,0. The only important decrease was under Land Revenue

£654,1 due to unfavourable conditions in Bombay, the United Provinces, Madras and Burma. In expenditure there was a saving of £1,005,4; of this £588,9 was secured under Provincial and Divided heads. In the Imperial portion the most important saving occurred under Opium £454,1 due to contraction of departmental operations, while an increase under Army £91,9 was due to the Abor Expeditionary Force including the Mishmi Mission. The actuals of the year show a total receipt of £82,835,7 and a total expenditure of £77,926,3, the net result being an Imperial surplus of £3,940,3 and a surplus on the Provincial account of £969,1. The great improvement in the Imperial Financial Position made it possible to make increased grants of £2,131,0 to Provincial Governments.

3. Changes in Classification.—The amalgamation of the Public Works Accounts offices with those of the Civil Accounts offices resulted in the transfer of the charges in respect of the former from 45.—Civil Works to 18.—General Administration. Expenditure on illuminations and local celebrations in connection with the Royal Visit were adjusted under the minor head Royal Visit, subordinate to 18.—General Administration, instead of under 45.—Civil Works. Stationery supplied to Imperial offices was treated as an Imperial instead of a Provincial charge. The salaries of Political officers under training in other Provinces were adjusted in the India books alone. A new capital head, 51.—Initial Expenditure on the new Capital at Delhi, to record the initial expenditure on building the new Capital, and a new minor head, Temporary Delhi, subordinate to 45—Civil Works, to record the charges in connection with the Temporary Works at Delhi, were opened on the India books. A new minor head, Controller of Patents subordinate to 26.—Scientific was also opened. In the Central Provinces receipts from the sale of quinine were credited to XX.—Medical and the expenditure on account of the purchase of the drug debited to 24.—Medical, instead of the transactions being shown under an Advance head and only the net gain adjusted as a receipt. Two other changes also occurred in this Province Expenditure on roadside arboriculture was transferred from the Public Works to the Civil portion of 45.—Civil Works and Forest tacavi advances were taken to Forest Advances under Advances Recoverable instead of to the Provincial Loan and Advance Account In Burma owing to the change in the system of realizing copying fees in cash instead of by means of stamps, the receipts were credited to XVIA —Law and Justice, Courts of Law, instead of to IV —Stamps In Madras the establishment of the Steam Boiler Inspection Fund, a Local Fund, was treated as in Foreign Service of the third kind and in the United Provinces the heads XI.—Tributes and 4—Opium were newly brought into use.

4. Provincial Settlements—The year 1911-12 saw important re-adjustments of the Provincial Settlements In 1907 the new series of quasi-permanent Settlements had been concluded with major Provinces, Eastern Bengal and Assam only being excepted. Local Governments had been given a permanent interest in the revenue and expenditure under their control. They were allotted an amount of growing revenue which bore the same proportion to the Provincial Expenditure as the Imperial share of growing revenue bore to the Imperial expenditure and the arrangement was to be more or less permanent. Almost immediately after alterations became necessary and large subsidies had to be made to several Provinces. The whole situation was reconsidered on the review of the Decentralization Committee's report and the result has been the new permanent settlements which came into effect from 1911-12 A Province might no longer budget for a deficit in its current revenue and expenditure, unless the excess expenditure were wholly exceptional and non-recurring and also, if the deficit involved a reduction of the provincial balance below the prescribed minimum, unless suitable arrangements were made for the restoration of the minimum. If for any special and temporary reason a Local Government exhausted its own balance and received permission to overdraw, they would have to take a short loan from the Imperial exchequer and pay interest on it. They might even as a last resort have to consider the propriety of raising special provincial taxation. The Imperial Government in consequence would no longer consider it necessary to exercise the same minute control over the budgetary arrangement of the provinces as hitherto but would generally confine itself to the total revenue and expenditure in the Local Government's estimates and the figures of the few major heads in which the Imperial exchequer had a share.

The immediate effect of this change was to convert fixed assignments of 3,58,76 a year into growing revenue. A summary of the changes is given below—

(1) The provincial share of Land Revenue (including the portion of it which is credited to Irrigation) as well as the corresponding charge under refunds and assignments was raised from one-half to five-eighths in Burma and from three-eighths to one-half in the Punjab.

(2) Excise revenue and expenditure (including refunds and assignments) became wholly Provincial in Eastern Bengal and Assam and in Bombay, while in the Central Provinces, Bengal and the United Provinces the provincial share of the same was raised from one-half to three-fourths.

(3) The revenue under Assessed Taxes realised in the Public Works Department, which had hitherto been treated as wholly Imperial was divided in moieties between Imperial and Provincial This was a subsidiary change which had become necessary owing to the amalgamation of the Civil and Public Works Account offices.

(4) Forest revenue and expenditure (including refunds) became wholly Provincial in all the eight provinces having regular provincial settlements.

(5) The provincial share of revenue and expenditure under the head Major Irrigation Works (excluding the portion of Land Revenue credited under the head) was raised from three-eighths to one-half in the Punjab, the net revenue guaranteed to the Provincial Government under the head being also raised from Rs. 30·75 lakhs to Rs. 41 lakhs

(6) The revenue and expenditure in Bengal under the Major and Minor Irrigation heads, which were formerly wholly Provincial, was divided in moieties between Provincial and Imperial, the latter thus bearing a share of the loss which before fell only on provincial revenues

(7) Except as stated above, the incidence of revenue and expenditure between Imperial and Provincial continued as before.

It is not possible to show this year by the Budget figures of revenue and expenditure how this arrangement has worked out. The following statement shows the provision made in the Budget for both receipts and expenditure:—

	Budget, 1911-12		Resulting balance, increase of Receipts over expenditure + Increase of expenditure over receipts —.
	Receipts	Expenditure
Central Provinces	2,55,62	2,61,53	—5,91
Burma	1,93,72	5,34,99	—41,27
Eastern Bengal and Assam	3,24,09	3,36,80	—12,71
Bengal	5,48,40	5,85,71	—37,31
United Provinces	5,74,13	6,09,73	—35,60
Punjab	4,07,26	4,20,10	—12,84
Madras	6,49,21	6,86,77	—37,56
Bombay	6,78,62	7,52,82	—74,20

The result shows in all cases an increase of expenditure over expected receipts. It has, however, to be remembered that in every province the opening balances included portions of previous assignments made by the Government of India for specific purposes. A rough account is kept in the provinces of the utilization of these ear-marked assignments, but from the public accounts it is not possible to say how much of the budgetted receipts and expenditure is accounted for by the unspent balance of ear-marked assignments included in the opening balances. The following statement shows the opening and closing balances and the ear-marked provision included in each, the net balance and the prescribed minimum balance:—

	Opening Balances, 1911-12.			Closing Balances, 1911-12.			Prescribed minimum.
	Gross.	Ear-marked portion.	Net.	Gross.	Ear-marked portion.	Net.
Central Provinces	27,72	6,00	21,72	39,87	9,00	30,87	10,00

United Provinces	86,91	26,41	60,50	88,35	17,00	71,35	20,00
Punjab	69,75	39,17	30,58	1,03,73	38,56	65,17	10,00
Madras	1,55,90	25,08	1,30,82	1,85,29	54,58	1,30,71	20,00
Bombay	1,63,06	65,96	97,10	1,08,92	22,31	86,61	20,00

The net closing balances in all cases except Burma, where the conditions are special, were considerably in excess of the prescribed minimum.

Receipts. Comparison between Actuals.

6. (a) Purely Imperial heads—The increase under purely Imperial heads was 1,078,3 and was chiefly due to the result of increases under Railways (2,009,1), Salt (215,2), Mint (171,0), Post Office (137,4), and Army (120,8), and decreases under Opium (1,560,7) and Customs (150,4). The increase under Railways was phenomenal and was due to an exceptional harvest, and a marked increase in pilgrimages and visits to fairs following thereon, and to the Royal Visit and the Imperial Durbar at Delhi. The breaking up of a combine in Bengal led to a fall in prices and heavy clearance of Salt at the close of the year. This together with a return to normal conditions in India and the apprehension in Bombay that the rate of duty would be enhanced resulted in the improvement under Salt The increase under Mint was due to a large demand for British Dollars in consequence of the trouble in China and for Nickel coins and for Coronation Medallions for distribution to school children. The special receipts in connection with the Coronation Durbar and the increase due to the compulsory insurance from October 1911 of registered covers containing Currency Notes were the special causes of the increase under Post Office. Abnormal receipts by larger sales of obsolete and useless Ordnance stores and leather cuttings and of personal clothing to British troops accounted for the increase under the India portion of Army. The increase in the English portion was due to larger credits in respect of clothing, accoutrements, etc., of troops transferred from the Indian to the British establishment, and to receipts on account of Indian Troop Service, etc. The large decrease under Opium was the result of the settled policy of reducing trade with China. In 1910-11, 37,590 chests of Bengal Opium were sold whereas the number sold in 1911-12 was 26,860. The average price obtained in 1910-11 was Rs. 2,891 whereas for the 10,120 certified chests sold in 1911-12 the average price was Rs 3,456 and for the 16,740 uncertified chests the average price was Rs 2,383 The decrease in respect of Bengal Opium was modified by the increase in Bombay due to the introduction of the new system under which the right to export opium was sold by auction and half the sale proceeds credited to Government. There was a considerable falling off under Sea Customs—Imports, chiefly in the imports of silver bullion, sugar and metals. The duty on silver was affected by the conversion of bar silver into dollars on which no duty was charged. Sugar was diverted to Continental markets but there was a marked improvement under petroleum There were also special receipts in connection with the Coronation Durbar.

(b) Divided or Provincial heads.—The improvement on the total was 1,074,9 and was the result of increases and decreases under various heads. The chief items of increase were Excise (579,4), Irrigation (285,6), Forest (122,6) and Miscellaneous (94,3) Every Province contributed to the increase under Excise which was the result of the continued prosperity of the population The increase was most marked under Country Spirits In Madras the set back of two bad years was followed by the return of normal conditions in 1911-12. Under Irrigation the improvement in the portion of Land Revenue due to Irrigation occurred chiefly in the Punjab due to the enhanced rates under the new settlement of Land Revenue in the Jhang and Gugera Branches and in Madras due to better receipts in the Godavari Delta systems The improvement in Direct Receipts also was most marked in the Punjab and was due to increased irrigation and luxuriant crops in the Indus Inundation Canals The increase under Forest was due to general development and better prices obtained for timber. The famine grass operations undertaken in Bombay and the Central Provinces and the disposal of a very large quantity of trees killed by the drought of 1908 in the United Provinces helped to increase the receipts. The sale price of Government Mint lands sold to the Calcutta Port Commissioners and larger amounts transferred to Unclaimed Deposits accounted for the increase under Miscellaneous The chief decrease was under Land Revenue and was due mainly to the liberal remissions and suspensions in Bombay, owing to the failure of the rains in parts of the Presidency, modified by increased receipts in the Punjab from the sale of proprietary rights to peasant grantees, a new concession.

[...]eipts. [...]parison [...]h Budget.

7. (a) Purely Imperial heads—The increase under Imperial heads as compared with the Budget was 4,596,9. The bulk of the increase occurred under the heads Railways and Opium. Under Railways the Budget allowed for prosperous trade conditions, for the Royal Visit and Durbar at Delhi and for the opening of new lines. As already explained the year was one of marked prosperity and a large increase over the Budget was secured. Under Opium the increase was the result of the high prices obtained for the sale of Bengal opium. The Budget provided for an average rate for certified opium of Rs. 2,500 and for uncertified opium of Rs. 1,500. The actual prices were much higher and, though the number of chests sold was reduced, the receipts were larger. In Bombay an increased rate of pass duty and the introduction of the system of auction sales referred to in paragraph 6 above resulted in an improvement. Under Customs (254,6) the increase was due to large receipts from petroleum, cotton manufactures, manufactured goods and cotton goods. Under Interest the improvement was in the English portion of the accounts (£ 239,6) and was due to larger sums being available for investment, to a higher rate of interest and to the low price at which consols were purchased for the Currency Reserve investment. Under Mint the increase was due to the causes referred to in paragraph 6 above.

(b) Purely Provincial and Divided heads.—The chief increases were under Excise, Irrigation and Miscellaneous and the decrease was under Land Revenue. The variations were largely due to the causes described in the comparisons between actuals. The total net increase was £203,9 Under Excise the Budget provided for a moderate growth only as such a favourable season was not anticipated and it was expected that the reforms to be undertaken would check the consumption of stimulants. Under Irrigation the receipts due from Land Revenue on the Western Jumna Canal were under-estimated and no provision was made for interest on sale of waste lands in the Punjab. There were decreases in Direct Receipts in Burma and the United Provinces due to smaller area under Irrigation and non-realization of revenue from the new Mon Canal. The large decrease in Land Revenue was due to unfavourable seasons in parts of Bombay, the United Provinces and Madras, to remissions in Burma on account of damage by floods, arrears, less fishery receipts and less activity in the petroleum oil-fields and to a transfer of considerably larger receipts to Irrigation in the Punjab Expenditure. Comparison between actuals.

8 (a) Purely Imperial heads—The total improvement was only 94,6 The chief variations were:—

Opium	517,2	less.
Army	404,7	more.
Railways	241,9	„
Political	154,1	less.
Interest	126,6	„
Telegraph	117,1	more

Under Opium the improvement was due to the contraction of departmental operations and occurred chiefly under Payments to cultivators The Royal Visit including the Delhi Durbar and the Royal Bonus and the cost of the India Contingent despatched to England for the King's Coronation accounted for the increase under Army. There were also larger charges for stores in the English portion of the Accounts. The increase under Railways was due to the heavier traffic of the year and the consequent increased running expenses and also to larger outlay on maintenance and renewal of Permanent Way. Locomotive and Coaching Stock, and payment of the Coronation Bonus The decrease under Political was largely nominal, the result of the inclusion in last year's account of a large special adjustment in connection with the subsidy of His Majesty the Amir of Afghanistan. The Imperial portion of the charges for Interest during the year was 126,6 less than the previous year made up of a decrease of 166,8 under Interest on Ordinary Debt and an increase of 40,2 under Interest on Other Obligations, chiefly Savings Banks deposits The former was due to the adoption of a higher rate for the calculation of the amount of interest debitable to Railways and Irrigation and to larger Capital expenditure The increase in Telegraph expenditure in India was mainly owing to a larger programme of work for installation of Radio stations and special charges including the Bonus in connection with the Royal Visit and the Delhi Durbar The increase in English expenditure resulted from increased payment to the Marconi Company for installation of Radio Offices and larger outlay on stores.

(b) Provincial or Divided heads—The expenditure against Purely Provincial and Divided heads increased by 3,046,7. The increases occurred chiefly under the following heads:—

Other Public Works	916,5
General Administration	869,9
Police	251,4
Education	175,0
Medical	172,6
Land Revenue	124,1
Law and Justice—Courts of Law	114,9
Forest	108,9

Large grants to local bodies in connection with improvement schemes and for medical, sanitary and educational purposes and the record under Public Works heads of expenditure from the various special allotments accounted for the increase under that head. There was also larger outlay on construction and repairs.

Under General Administration the increase occurred mainly in the Imperial portion of the Accounts and was due to the Royal Visit and Coronation Durbar including the cost of illuminations and local celebrations. The total expenditure on this account was £702,8 as against a small preliminary outlay in the previous year. A second contributory cause was the inclusion under this head of the cost of the audit and accounting of Public Works expenditure as a result of the amalgamation of the Public Works and Civil Accounts office. This increase, however, was nominal as the charges were merely transferred from Civil Works The increase under Police was due to the cost of the reforms introduced in the previous year as well as to further reforms undertaken during the year and the considerable cost of the Royal Bonus. In the United Provinces small rural towns were relieved of the cost incurred by them under Police. Practically all provinces shared in the increase under Education which was due to non-recurring expenditure on buildings and equipment of schools and colleges, hostels and grants for similar purposes made mainly from the special allotments, and to the strengthening of the staffs, and to a general progress Under Medical also the increase was due partly to non-recurring outlay mainly on grants to local bodies for the improvement of drainage and water supply out of the special Imperial assignments A grant of £33,3 in the Punjab to the Central Research Institute at Kasauli further increased the charges. All Provinces except India shared in the increase under Land-Revenue which apart from ordinary charges was due to the presence of Famine conditions in parts of Bombay, to the reorganisation of ministerial establishments in Bengal and Eastern Bengal and Assam, and the Royal Bonus The increase under Law and Justice was due to the reorganisation of ministerial establishments in Bengal and Eastern Bengal and Assam and to temporary Courts and additional or temporary appointments Normal growth, the reorganisation of the service and the special expenditure incurred in Bombay and Central Provinces on the supply of grass to famine-stricken districts in Bombay accounted for the increase under Forest.

Expenditure Comparison with Budget.

9 (a) Purely Imperial heads —The decrease of expenditure under Opium and Interest have already been explained The increase under Army was due mainly to the unforeseen outlay in connection with the Abor Expeditionary Force including the Mishmi Mission.

(b) Provincial and Divided heads.—The larger decreases occurred under Education (273,7), Irrigation (168,7) and Medical (137,0). Under Education it was partly nominal due to the transfer to the Public Works head of £103,2 for expenditure on buildings provided from the special allotments and further to non-utilisation of a considerable part of these allotments There were savings in Bengal, the United Provinces and Madras in the provision made for reorganisations Under Irrigation it was due to the lapse of the entire provision under Protective Irrigation works in addition to that charged under Famine Relief and Insurance (120,0) on account of slow progress of work and to smaller expenditure under Minor works and Navigation. About half the decrease under Medical was nominal due to the transfer to the Public Works and other heads of grants for the improvement of drainage and water-supply.

Imperial and Provincial Division of Revenue

10. Of the total revenue of £82,835,8 the Imperial share was £54,238,5 and the Provincial share £28,597,3. As compared with the actuals of 1910-11, the total revenue was more by £2,153,2 of which £1,078,3 was wholly Imperial and the rest occurred under Provincial and divided heads. The Imperial share, however, was largely reduced by certain special assignments, the most important of which was one of £861,0 made to provide adequate opening balances for the three new Provinces of Bengal, Bihar and Orissa and Assam. As a consequence, the Imperial share showed an improvement of £411,1 over the figure of 1910-11 as against an improvement under Provincial of £1,742,2.

From Capital	16,023,2	8,522,9
From Revenue	49,891,1	50,298,2

and as the Imperial revenue was £54,238,5 the surplus was £3,940,3.

Revenue.—The improvement of 5,62,00 was the net result of variations in both directions under the several heads. The most important were the increases under Excise (2,85,33), Forest (1,50,06), Land Revenue (80,44) and Irrigation (Direct receipts 18,35 and Land Revenue due to Irrigation 17,00). The improvement under Excise was shared by all provinces The most noticeable increases were in Bombay (1,08,08), in Bengal (55,84), in Eastern Bengal and Assam (43,45), in the United Provinces (32,09) and in the Central Provinces (30,40) and were mainly the result of the new Provincial Settlements. The improvement under Forest occurred chiefly under Burma (49,14), the United Provinces (28,27), Bombay (24 72), Madras (22,29) and the Central Provinces (14,93). Apart from the special receipts in Bombay and the Central Provinces on account of Famine grass operations, and in the United Provinces on account of the disposal of a very large quantity of trees killed by the drought of 1908 and better prices obtained, the improvement was the effect of the new Provincial Settlement under which the receipts under this head became wholly provincial. Land Revenue increased in Burma (58,62) and the Punjab (46,13) and decreased in Bombay (21,86) The effect of the new Provincial Settlements had been to raise the Provincial share of Land Revenue in Burma from one-half to five-eighths and from three-eighths to one-half in the Punjab Apart from this the recovery of arrears in Burma and the sale of proprietary rights to peasant grantees and new fluctuating assessment in the Lower Chenab Colony in the Punjab contributed to the increase. In Bombay there was a serious falling-off of Land Revenue (21,86) due to unfavourable agricultural conditions in certain districts of the Presidency owing to a failure of the rains. Under Irrigation the improvement was almost entirely under Punjab, where the increase from Direct receipts was 31,58 and from Land Revenue due to Irrigation was 16,15 There was however a falling-off in Direct receipts in Bengal of 12,85. In the Punjab increased area under irrigation and enhanced rates of Land Revenue levied in the Colony villages of the Jhang and Gugera Branches accounted for part of the increase, while the effect of the new Provincial Settlement was to increase the provincial share in the Punjab from three-eighths to one-half but to reduce that in Bengal from the whole to half. Under Stamps the net result was a decrease of 21 but this was the result of increases in Madras (3,05), Eastern Bengal (2,44), Bengal (2,39), Punjab (1,83) and of decreases in the United Provinces (5,30), Bombay (2,66) and Burma (1,12). The decreases in the United Provinces and Bombay were the result of the high revenue of the previous year consequent on the amendment of the Limitation Act in 1908. The decrease in Burma was nominal due to the change in the system under which copying fees were recovered in cash instead of in stamps

Excluding the heads of Land Revenue and Miscellaneous, as indicating abnormal items, the increases in revenue of the various Provinces were as follows:—

Eastern Bengal and Assam	+56,59
United Provinces	+43,75
Punjab	+58,02
Madras	+42,27
Bombay	+1,28,08

The large items included in the very large increase in Bombay occurred under Excise (1,08,08) and Forest (24,72).

Expenditure.—The chief items in the total increase of 4,10,14 were increases under Civil Works (1,19,52), Forest (88,20), General Administration (41,13), Police (33,88), Education (28,46), Medical (27,47), Land Revenue (19,61), Courts of Law (16,98) and Excise (11,97) and a decrease in Minor Works and Navigation (12,45).

The following statement shows the distribution of these increases among the Provinces.

	Civil Works	Forest	General Administration	Police	Education	Medical	Land Revenue	Courts of Law	Excise	Minor Works and Navigation
Central Provinces	−1,09	+10,43	+1,75	+1,40	+57	+1,02	.	+20	+79	...

The heads and Provinces affected by the new Provincial Settlements were Excise in Eastern Bengal and Assam, Bombay, Central Provinces, Bengal and the United Provinces; Forest in all provinces and Minor Works and Navigation in Bengal Under Excise and Forest the provincial share was increased while under Minor Works and Navigation, it was decreased.

Half the increase under Civil Works occurred in Bombay (52,10) and was due to special grants of 50,00 made by the Government of India to the Bombay City Improvement Trust and of 80 by the Local Government to the Jalgaon Municipality. In Bengal (22,62) a special grant of 11,50 to the Calcutta Improvement Trust and expenditure from the special allotments for Sanitation and Education accounted for the increase. In Burma (16,22) an increase of 5,00 in the contribution for the Rangoon River Training scheme, contributions of 1,50 to District Funds in Upper Burma and larger expenditure on Education buildings and Sanitary works, and in Madras (14,75) larger grants to local bodies for Communications, Sanitation and Education accounted for the increases. Under Forest all the provinces contributed, the increase being most marked in Burma (22,55), Madras (18,02) and Bombay (16,29) The increase followed as a result of the new Provincial Settlement under which all the charges became wholly provincial instead of being shared by Imperial. In Bombay the special Famine Grass operations (3,62) and the reorganisation of the service helped to swell the increase. In the Central Provinces there were also special Famine Grass operations at a cost of 1,01. The increase under General Administration was general. Expenditure in connection with the Royal Visit and the Delhi Durbar including the grant of the Royal Bonus were contributory causes. The increase under Police was the result of the reforms already introduced in the previous year as well as of further reforms undertaken this year and the very considerable expenditure on the Royal Bonus. The special grants for non-recurring expenditure on buildings and equipment of schools and colleges or on grants made for such purposes, on hostels, etc, accounted mainly for the increase under Education, while similarly the grants to local bodies for the improvement of drainage and water-supply accounted for the increase under Medical. Under Land Revenue the payment of the Royal Bonus affected all provinces In Bombay there were famine conditions in some parts of the Presidency and in Bengal and Eastern Bengal and Assam the reorganisation of ministerial establishments contributed to the increase. In Burma there were larger payments of commission on Land Revenue and large outlay on land taken up for public purposes Under Courts of Law the increase in Bengal and Eastern Bengal and Assam was due to the reorganization of ministerial establishments and in Madras to additional appointments and to the establishment of temporary courts. Additional courts also caused the increase in the United Provinces The new Settlement resulted in an increase in the provincial share of Excise in Eastern Bengal and Assam, Bombay, the Central Provinces, Bengal and the United Provinces, while in Bengal the share under Minor Works and Navigation was reduced from the whole to half Apart from these heads there were certain heads under which the variation was marked in one or more provinces. In the Central Provinces there was an increase under Scientific and other Minor Departments (1,19) due to the development of the Agricultural Department, the purchase of anti-rinderpest serum and the appointment of a whole-time Registrar of Co-operative Societies for the whole year and a decrease under Stationery and Printing (1,13) due to the fact that the actuals of the previous year included large expenditure incurred on the purchase of plant and furniture for Government presses and some arrear charges. In Eastern Bengal and Assam there was an increase under Political (4,17) due to the Miri and Mishmi Missions In Bengal there was a decrease under Irrigation, Major Works (17,91) due to the effect of the Provincial Settlement, an increase under Superannuation (1,30) and a decrease under Stationery and Printing (1,41) due to the introduction of the Book credit system, under which each officer was given a book credit and the supply limited to the amount of his credit. The decrease under Miscellaneous (4,06) in the United Provinces was due to the writing-off in the previous year of the large loan to the United Provinces Exhibition Committee. In the Punjab the expenditure under Irrigation, Major Works (20,98) increased in consequence of the execution of special works on the Upper Bari Doab Canal and other works, and was affected by the increased share of expenditure debited to Provincial under the New Settlement. In Bombay there was an increase under Assignments (3,52) due to the new Settlement and under Scientific and Minor Departments (2,26) due to purchase of land for the Northcote Cattle Farm.

Objectionable expenditure.

Of the total outstandings, 26 related to 1910-11 and previous years, as against 88 shown in the last Report as similarly outstanding from previous years. There was a decrease of 3,22 in Burma, following on the large increase referred to last year as due mainly to special expeditions. The large increases of 2,92 in Eastern Bengal and Assam and 1,17 in Bengal were due partly to the dislocation of work caused by the re-distribution of Provinces. In the former province, the outstandings in three of the Assam Districts were heavy owing to the special causes of the Mishmi Mission, relief of distress in the Lushai Hills and furniture for Government Houses. In the United Provinces, the increase of 40 was largely due to want of sub-vouchers. Taking into consideration the special causes in Bengal and Eastern Bengal and Assam, the improvement on the whole was considerable, but the importance of a close watch over outstandings is still being brought to the notice of the Audit Officers.

13. The outstandings of over a year old included 14 (in India), dating from 1909-10, which related to the embezzlements at Port Blair and Ajmer referred to last year Out of this, R2,556 were adjusted up to September 1912 and the orders of the Government of India writing off R10,071 have since been received. The adjustment of the item of R1,494 is pending the decision of a court of justice. The remaining items aggregating 12 referred to 1910-11 and call for no remarks 5 of these related to Eastern Bengal and Assam There were a few items of older dates which were not included owing to the amounts involved being petty.

14. Outstandings relating to the year under Report amounted to 14,65 to which Eastern Bengal and Assam contributed 5,05. These figures do not include any items under Advances Recoverable or advances from Provident Funds. The bulk of the outstandings were under items awaiting clearance and represented money drawn which, for want of sanctions, sub-vouchers or other defects could not be admitted in audit. Drawing Officers frequently fail to realise that it is incumbent on them to see that they obtain promptly all necessary details required for the admission in audit of expenditure they have incurred. I have recently in my Circular No. 4 of 3rd April 1912 addressed the various Account Officers on the subject of enforcing responsibility for the accuracy and regularity of the accounts of Executive Officers and more vigorous action is now being taken in all offices on these lines.

15. Last year attention was drawn to the tendency to obtain money from the Treasury largely in excess of actual requirements, especially in March. During the year under review, there were many cases in which these drawings in advance took place The Code rules are clear and under my instructions the Audit Officers are now bringing to the notice of superior authorities the specific cases in which the rules have been disregarded In some cases, the action taken on these reports is satisfactory but in others such action is not apparent. An Audit Officer is entitled, when he brings particular defects to notice, to receive information from the administrative authorities as to the steps that have been taken to avoid such irregularities. When amounts are drawn in this irregular manner, there is always the danger that the money kept in hand may be misappropriated

Some selected cases are described, which illustrate the serious misapprehension that exists as to when money may be drawn from the Treasury and how it may be disposed of. It is hoped that the steps now being taken to bring these cases to notice and the subsequent action of the administrative authorities concerned, will result in the rules being followed more strictly in future.

(a) A sum of R1,475 was drawn by the Superintendent of Police, Minbu (Burma) in March 1911 R934 was adjusted on receipt of the detailed bill leaving a balance of R541 outstanding. This amount was misappropriated by his clerk An estimate for R870 had been sanctioned for the construction of Police Quarters. The work was given to a Contractor who was paid an advance of R400 on the 17th March The balance of R470 included in the above sum of R1,475 was drawn before the work had been completed or any claim put forward for it, apparently in order to avoid a lapse of grant It is included in the amount embezzled The clerk has been convicted and removed from the service. The orders of Government on the case have not yet been received.

(b) In March 1912, the Deputy Commissioner, Lyallpur (Punjab), drew from the treasury a sum of R10,500 on account of sanitary rewards to villagers and placed the amount to the credit of Revenue Deposits in the Treasury in April 1912, on the ground that, as the selection of the villagers deserving of rewards had not been made, the amount could not be disbursed. Here the money was drawn before it was known to whom it would be paid and was placed in deposit contrary to another Code rule

(c) The Deputy Commissioner, Kangra (Punjab), drew a sum of R4,334 in March 1912 on account of Patwar contingencies, out of which R2,278 were refunded in cash in June 1912, and the detailed bill in support of the balance was not furnished till July 1912, and then without a sub-voucher for R1,300 He explained that the amount had been required for immediate disbursement, as the building which was to be paid for was complete but that on checking the bill with the Tahsil measurements, it was found that there were large discrepancies between some of the Tahsil measurements and those of the Contractor. The Contractor refused to accept the Tahsil measurements and the amount was deposited in the Treasury. The re-measurements took a long time owing to distance and want of communication and hence the delay. The amount should not, however, have been drawn till the bill had been checked and payment was actually due The Deputy Commissioner has assured the Audit Office that such irregularities will not recur.

(d) The Deputy Inspector of Schools, Bankura (Bengal), drew in March 1911, two sums of R374 and R351 on account of the construction of Guru Training schools. The money was actually disbursed in July and August 1911. The same officer, when Deputy Inspector of Schools at Khulna, drew a sum of

R2,481 on 31st March 1912, on account of equipment of Primary schools. The detailed bill, received in August, showed that payment was actually made in June 1912. The Director of Public Instruction has been informed of these cases

(e) In the Central Provinces, the Inspector General of Police, Criminal Investigation Department, drew, on the 29th March 1912, a contract contingent bill for R1,033 which brought his expenditure up to R3,999, against a grant of R4,000. No sub-vouchers are received for contract contingent charges except for postage charges. The receipts for postage labels received showed that labels for R305 were bought on 20th May and for R655 on 24th June 1912, which means that a large portion of the money drawn on the 29th March was not used for expenditure until the 20th May and the 24th June.

(f) The Collector of Bombay drew a sum of R2,500 in March 1912, out of which R1,400 was paid in April, R506 in July and the balance was refunded in October. The Economic Botanist, Poona, drew R2,239 on account of cultivation charges in March 1912, out of which R930 were disbursed in May Commenting on these two cases, the Government of Bombay directed that extracts from the local Appropriation Report should be sent to all heads of offices and they should be requested to observe strictly the provisions of the rules

(g) A sum of R4,500, was drawn in January 1912 by the Head Master, Government High School, Fyzabad (United Provinces), for the purchase of apparatus and was held under objection for want of sub-vouchers. Sub-vouchers for R1,870 were furnished on 26th August 1912, which showed that of this sum only R290 appeared to have been disbursed in 1911-12. He was then asked to refund the balance still unpaid and the remaining sub-vouchers were furnished three weeks later A copy of the order for the refund was sent to the Director of Public Instruction, but no information is available as to what action he may have taken.

This misapprehension is not confined to spending officers An order of the Government of Bengal may be quoted. The Government of Bengal in their letter No 3609-P, dated 30th March 1912, issued orders for the payment of R18,000 for the construction of Police Barracks in the district of Darjeeling and directed that the money should be kept in Revenue Deposits. As the payment would have been irregular, no authority for payment was issued by the Audit Office

16. There was on the whole an improvement as regards the adjustment of outstandings but delays are still frequent. In some Provinces, during the year special action was taken to remedy this defect In the Punjab, the Local Government lent their cordial support to the efforts made and issued stringent orders in connection with the responsibitity of officers for the correct and prompt adjustment of expenditure. The subject of delay in respect of detailed bills is now under their consideration. On 31st July 1912, expenditure incurred in 1911-12 to the extent of 40 was still awaiting detailed contingent bills in Burma In Bengal, the similar figure was 64. The re-distribution of Provinces may have somewhat delayed adjustment in Bengal.

A few specific cases of delays, due to want of detailed bills or the obtaining of adequate sanction may be given.

(a) The Deputy Commissioner, Dera Ghazi Khan (Punjab), drew in March 1912, a sum of R4,174 for Political Contingencies and R816 on account of Patwar contingencies. In spite of repeated calls for detailed bills in support these have not been furnished and the Local Government has been addressed on the subject

(b) In the Farrukhabad district (United Provinces), a sum of R1,000 was drawn by the Superintendent of Police in March 1912 for petty construction and repairs. The detailed bill was received in September 1912 after repeated calls

(c) The Deputy Commissioner, Mandla (Central Provinces), continued to draw pay for an establishment of two temporary Assistant Wasil-baki-navises from 1st November 1911, though the sanction for its retention expired on 31st October 1911. In spite of constant reminders from the Audit Office, the application for sanction of the Local Administration, was not submitted until the 15th July 1912 and then only after the Commissioner had been addressed. The sanction of the Local Administration was received on the 16th August 1912.

In the following case a want of efficient supervision resulted in a serious loss to the State :—

During the inspection in 1910-11 of the accounts of the Dacca Jail Press for the period ending 31st March 1910, it was found among other things that the books maintained in connection with the stock of paper were deficient and that the entries could not be relied on. A shortage of paper to a large extent was apparent and on stock being taken, the balances on the books were found on the whole to be in excess of the actual stock to the extent of about R83,225. This was brought specially to the notice of the Government of Eastern Bengal and Assam, who ordered a full enquiry into the accounts. As the ledgers and account books were full of errors, omissions and irregularities, this occupied some time and it was not till March 1912, that the Inspector-General of Prisons, Eastern Bengal and Assam, reported on the apparent shortage. After making full allowances for wastage claimed by the Press but not appearing in the books, and for which full proof was not forthcoming, the net deficit apparent was R38,650. The Inspector-General was unable to find out how such a large quantity of paper disappeared from the Press. The Press was in charge of a Deputy Superintendent, under the general control of the Superintendent of the Secretariat Press and the conclusion arrived at by the Inspector-General was that "The shortage of paper may probably be due in "part to some paper being stolen from the Press during the period, when outside "workmen were employed to work in the Jail Press in the evenings after the "prisoners had left. The Press had only a single gate then, which I am "informed was guarded by a Durwan (a temporary hand) and not by a paid "warder. It is very probable that some, if not all, of the paper found short "may have been secreted and removed by outside workmen and as the "Press was much understaffed during that period, the removal of the paper "remained undetected. This is borne out by the utter untrustworthiness of the "records relating to the period under discussion. I am, therefore, driven to the "conclusion that the shortage is due in all probability to the system under which "the Press has worked and slackness of supervision." Owing to the reconstitution of the Bengal Provinces, the Dacca Jail Press is now under the Government of Bengal. The report has been considered by this Government and they have decided to drop the case.

17. Railways.—The following statement compares the total objectionable expenditure under Railways at the end of the years 1910-11 and 1911-12 which had not been adjusted by the 31st July following :—

.....	1910-1911.		Total on 31st July 1911.	1911-12.		Total on 31st July 1912.	More + or less — than 1910-11.

TOTAL	1,53,33	2,72,57	4,25,90	63,04	1,63,33	2,26,37	−1,99 53

These figures indicate a striking improvement and when the new rules for the control of expenditure on large Open Line Projects and Lines under Construction are issued, a further reduction in outstandings is anticipated. Special efforts were made during the year to reduce the outlay under objection. The personal interest which the Railway Board and the Railway authorities generally took, at the instigation of the Accountant-General, accounted for this satisfactory reduction, and indicates the manner in which objectionable expenditure may be reduced in other departments. The amount outstanding, however, is still very large and capable of further reduction.

To secure adequate control over outlay on works, it is essential that estimates should be accurately prepared, and closely scrutinized before they are sanctioned It has been suggested that the stringency of the present orders regarding close estimating and excesses over estimates, tends to the opposite extreme of over-estimating. Over-estimating is thus taking the place of under-estimating and this may be likely to lead to undesirable results, e.g., the utilisation of savings for other purposes than those indicated in the estimate, which it would be difficult for audit to detect. This tendency towards over-estimating was certainly noticeable in some of the estimates prepared on the South Indian Railway, and was said to arise from the practice obtaining on that line of placing expenditure incurred without sanction at the personal debit of the Executive officer responsible The Government Examiner, South Indian Railway, reported that of the 383 completion reports for capital and revenue works passed by his office during 1911-12, 96 works showed a saving of over 25 per cent on the estimated amount and 18 works a saving of 50 per cent. and over. Two cases may be cited The estimate for constructing 9·25 feet, 6·20 feet, 1·15 feet and 1 20 feet bottom flange girders into top flange on Mayavaram-Mutupet section was R17,219. On this there was a savings of R9,740. On the estimate of R62,000 for providing 5 "F" class engine tenders there were savings of R37,803. This tendency to over-estimate calls for the criticism that it is the duty of the authority sanctioning the estimate to guard against over-estimating as much as against under-estimating

The following cases of delay or irregular outlay may be referred to:—

(a) Outlay on the Sardah Bridge, Sonaripur-Ramnagar Ghat Extension and Dudwa Branch Conversion was held under objection since 1908 and 1909. These objections could have been removed long since had sanction been obtained to Revised or Completion Estimates or Completion Reports. The lines were opened for traffic in January 1911 and Completion Estimates fell due 6 months after. The Railway Administration was repeatedly reminded without effect. The matter is still under correspondence between the Railway Board and the Company

(b) The construction of a joint siding to the Clive and Lower Hooghly Mills from Santoshpur Station was undertaken as a mixed Railway Capital and Deposit work. R61,737 were deposited by the Lower Hooghly Jute Mills for their share of the work The expenditure incurred on this account amounted to R88,693, thus exceeding the deposit by R26,956. In January 1909, the Manager, Eastern Bengal Railway, addressed the Mill authorities for payment of the amount but the latter have repudiated the claim. The Railway Board in May 1912 have addressed the Manager specially on the subject

The following were concrete examples on the Burma Railways of delay in the preparation of bills after measurements had been made. They were noticed by the Government Examiner of Accounts as the result of an examination of the measurement books in the office of the District Engineer, Works, Rangoon:—

Measurement of Book No. and page.	Date of measurement.	Date of submission of bill.
No. 38 page 28.	21st April 1910.	21st July 1910.
" 56 " 136.	10th December 1910.	18th March 1911.
" 56 " 123.	11th February 1911.	30th May 1911.

When these delays were brought to the knowledge of the Chief Engineer, Burma Railways, that officer wrote to the District Engineers, summarising the evils of delaying payments to contractors as follows. The quotation expresses so exactly the reasons why audit calls attention to such delays that I offer no apology for giving it in full.

"Almost any one can get work done if he provides unlimited money but "it takes an Engineer to get the same done both expeditiously and economic-"ally, and economy can only be secured by a close supervision of accounts and "by prompt payments The practice of delaying payment, by not measuring up "work and billing for it at regular intervals, is specially objectionable from "every point of view; by locking up contractors' capital, it increases their "expenditure and consequently necessitates higher rates. The delay in sub-"mission of bills leads to constant demands for urgent payments when at length "they are submitted, with the subsequent complaint of delays in payment. It "also frequently lends opportunity to clerks and subordinates for extracting "illegal gratification. Failure in measuring up work periodically provides "opportunity for false or exorbitant claims on the part of contractors."

A vast amount of Capital is locked up in stores. Under the Suspense head, Stores on the principal Railways including Branch lines, the balances steadily increased till on the 31st March 1909, they stood at the immense sum of 12,19,76. Since then there has been some little reduction and the balance on the 31st March 1912 stood at 10,69,89. This was due to the special attention devoted to the matter by the Railway Board. Railway Administrations have fixed minimum amounts under each class of stores required to meet normal requirements and they are gradually working down their balances to these limits. The present figure is still very large and involves the loss of interest on the locked up capital, as well as waste by deterioration and the necessity for writing down values, of selling of large quantities of stores at reduced prices, of employing staff for their custody and verification and of providing suitable accommodation. The whole matter is worthy of close attention.

In his despatch No. 1 Financial (Stores), dated 21st April 1911, the Secretary of State pointed out that resort to local purchase on the plea of urgency was of frequent occurrence, and in some departments of Government rather the rule than the exception and requested that the attention of the purchasing Departments might be drawn to the importance of :—

(i) forecasting with accuracy, their annual requirements, when preparing their indents in order to avoid the necessity for local purchases; and

(ii) taking sufficient advantage of the existing facilities for obtaining supplies by telegraphic indent on the India Office.

In this connection the Accountant General for Railways gives as follows the total purchase of imported stores made in India on the score of urgency, and the extra cost to Government involved thereby in respect of the three State-worked lines and the Lower Ganges Bridge during 1911-12 : —

	Total Local Purchases.	Extra cost to Govt.
	Rs.	Rs.
Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway . . .	85,343	8,533
Eastern Bengal Railway	1,71,500	20,565
North Western Railway	4,18,104	27,550
Lower Ganges Bridge	2,25,000	3,119
Total	8,99,947	59,767

The above figures are approximate, as the English rates on which the calculations have been based, are subject to constant fluctuations. The Accountant General considers, however, that the amount fairly represents the loss occasioned by purchases in India. The matter is brought to notice as it may be possible by better forecasting of requirements and the timely transmission of indents on England, to minimise the necessity for local purchases and the consequent loss entailed thereby

18. Army.—In the Army Department, the amount under objection on the 31st July 1912, in respect of 1911-12 and previous years, was 5,60 as compared with 6,65 outstanding under similar conditions on 30th June 1911. This included 3 for 1908-09, 38 for 1909-10, and 48 for 1910-11. The amount had been reduced to 3,05 on the 30th November 1912 and on this date the outstandings for 1908-09 and 1909-10 were 1 and 37 These were Railway charges awaiting adjustment, for which special steps are said to have been taken, and a special expenditure in January to March 1910 in connection with the supply of meat at a contractor's risk. This amount (24) was under reference and is now outstanding pending conclusion of legal proceedings which are being taken against the contractor.

The following were some of the irregularities noticed during the year :—

(a) The Officer in charge of Supplies, Bangalore, purchased 80,000 lbs. chenna (gram) on the 29th April 1911 at R4-3-11 per 100 lbs. when a new contract had been concluded for the same article at a cheaper rate of R3-11-0 from 1st May This was challenged in audit and the difference of R446 was refunded without any explanation

(b) The Officer Commanding 14th Mule Corps in the Quetta Division drew cheques for R9,000 and R2,000 in November 1911 and January 1912, respectively; but credit was afforded for R8,000 only in his cash account for November 1911 and no credit was afforded for the latter item The credits of R1,000 and R2,000 were kept out of the accounts by the Officer Commanding, 14th Mule Corps, from November 1911 to February 1912, and from January to March 1912, respectively. In reply to an audit enquiry, the Officer stated that the amount was less credited through oversight in the case of the sum of R1,000 and that the omission was regretted in the case of the other. No report was made of this case, but the Controller of Military Accounts, Western Circle, is now being directed to bring all such cases to the notice of the Divisional Commander

(c) In the cash account of the Neemuch Grass Farm for March 1912, a sum of R12,000 was charged apparently to avoid a lapse. The Overseer in charge of the Farm explained that the amount of R16,991 was drawn for purchase of grass to complete full requirements, under the orders of the Assistant Director of Grass Farms A portion, viz., R4,180 of the above was expended and the unexpended balance was remitted into the Treasury in April 1912 The matter was brought to the notice of the Divisional Commander who issued prompt orders on the subject

(d) The Officer in charge of Supplies, Poona, obtained from the Deputy Controller of Military Accounts, Poona Division, a cheque for R3,000 for the construction of huts for transport followers apparently to avoid a lapse of grant. It was subsequently discovered that the amount was not actually expended before the close of the year, as the plan and estimate of work had not been approved by the Quartermaster-General in India The amount was deposited with the Assistant Commanding Royal Engineer, Poona Brigade, but subsequently withdrawn The Officer was asked to remit the money into the Treasury which was accordingly done.

(e) In October 1908, the Government of India sanctioned certain Supply and Transport establishments for the several Divisions and Independent Brigades at fixed rates of pay These establishments having proved, in the 7th (Meerut) Division, insufficient to meet the actual requirements, and men on the rates of pay laid down not having been available, establishments in excess of those authorised and at rates higher than those sanctioned by the Government of India were entertained under the orders of the General Officer Commanding the Division This was duly challenged by the Audit Department in the beginning of 1909 but the adjustment was delayed, it is stated, as many complicated questions were involved, which had to be referred to Army Head-quarters and the Government of India. The Government of India have recently agreed to the proposals of the General Officer Commanding the 7th Division and orders are under issue which will admit of the removal of the objections Rs 6,028 has been thus outstanding in the accounts of 1908-09 to 1910-11. There has been great delay in the adjustment As establishment was actually being entertained in excess of scale, it should have been sanctioned temporarily or orders issued to reduce it. After the lapse of such a long period, there would apparently be no other course open but to sanction the past expenditure.

19. Public Works.—The objections remaining unremedied on the 31st March 1912 in respect of expenditure on Public Works is shown in the following statement :—

Unfortunately all audit offices have not been able to intimate the amount removed from objection up to the 31st July 1912 The Comptroller, Central Provinces, however, reports the removal of 3,66 out of 6,52 and the Accountant General, Madras, 6,76 out of 14,77 The reports from other offices are not nearly so good

Last year's Appropriation Report (paragraph 16) showed a reduction of 17,07 under Public Works objectionable expenditure, but this year there appears to be an increase of 18,38 This would be very unsatisfactory, but that it is not certain that the statements of outstandings for the two years are prepared under the same conditions and with reference to adjustments made on the same dates in each year and for each office For example, in Bombay where the increase is greatest, the Accountant General informs me that, apart from objectionable expenditure to the extent of 2,46 on Famine Relief included in this year's figure, the increase is due to the previous year's figures having excluded all minor and repair objections and all items remedied up to August 1911 when the statement was prepared The procedure in force as regards the recording of objections and adjustments for Public Works expenditure differs from that in force for Civil expenditure and it is not possible without much trouble to arrive at the total outstandings on any particular date or to ascertain how much has been adjusted in any one month. I propose to issue orders shortly, which will ensure the permanent record of all Public Works objections in such a form that the figures in respect of a month's objections and adjustments will be readily available

These outstandings are undoubtedly large in view of the rules in the Public Works Department Code, which prescribe that no work should be commenced till sanction to the detailed estimates have been obtained and an allotment of funds provided. They have recently been amended so as to allow work to continue in excess of estimates, but the necessity for prompt administrative sanction to the revised project and subsequent revised estimates is still insisted on. Audit offices are now instructed, in the case of excess over estimates, to ascertain that administrative sanction has been obtained or applied for, and that revised estimates are under preparation. The bulk of the expenditure under objection is, thus, such as should not have been incurred or having been incurred, should have been promptly settled. Cases are still very frequent where estimates and the provision of funds are seriously delayed. This matter has been receiving special attention during the year.

As indicating the serious position I record here the following statement, the information contained in which has been obtained from enquiries made in connection with a separate case.

Province	1911-1912.
	Total expenditure	Total amount placed under objection	Percentage.
Punjab	2,88,59	83,29	29
Bombay	1,64,30	43,93	27
United Provinces	1,55,15	42,22	27

I have taken considerable trouble to ensure the accuracy of these figures. It is specially noticeable that in every case the largest percentage of objectionable expenditure occurs under "no estimate." The percentage under this head in Bombay was 15 and in the United Provinces 13 It seems open to doubt whether extreme urgency can be urged in respect of such a large part of the total expenditure of the year in these Provinces.

I regret that in paragraph 16 of my Appropriation Report for 1910-11 the Punjab was said to be responsible for the two old cases of excess over estimates mentioned therein The two works are the Kanigiri Reservoir Bund and the Ryves Canal and are in Madras and not in the Punjab.

A few selected cases showing the irregularities brought to notice during audit are described Local Governments frequently accord sanction in such cases without any indication that their officers have committed financial irregularities by not obtaining sanction sooner.

(a) Expenditure on the construction of a bridge over the river Krishna at Mahuli, Satara (Bombay Presidency), a provincial work, for which there was no estimate, first occurred in June 1909. The want of an estimate was reported in the monthly Objectionable Item Statements to the Superintending Engineer, Southern Division, and in the periodical Objectionable Item Statements to the Local Government. Five special reports by letter were also made to the Local Government ending with one in August 1912. The delay was due to a proposed increase in the gauge of the railway line intended to be carried over the bridge, but the expenditure amounted to Rs. 1,95,270 by January 1913 and has again been brought to the notice of Government. In their orders on the Local Appropriation Report, the Local Government have stated that the case is under separate consideration.

(b) In March 1905 the Government of India accorded administrative approval to the providing of accommodation for locating the Coast Guard fleet at Sivri (Bombay) and the Local Government sanctioned plans and estimates amounting to Rs 1,69,400. This was exceeded and a supplementary estimate was sanctioned by the Government of India in April 1910 bringing the total to Rs. 2,09,463 In March 1911, this estimate was also exceeded and the objectionable outlay was reported to the Superintending Engineer, Northern Division, and Government in periodical Objectionable Item Statements and by special letters in November 1911 and January and April 1912. The outlay to the end of November 1912 was Rs. 2,43,707.

(c) In connection with the Ranchi-Chaibassa Road (Bengal, now Bihar and Orissa) the estimates for Minor culverts and for Metalling the two lengths of Bandgaon to Hessade and Tebo to Naoti Section, were exceeded by Rs. 2,105 and Rs. 2,053 in April and June 1909, respectively. The excesses were reported to the Local Government in the periodical Objectionable Item Statement and their orders were that the attention of the Superintending Engineer would be drawn to the irregularity and that he would be asked to submit the completion reports The Accountant General, Bihar and Orissa, reports that the orders of the Local Government have not yet been received on the Objectionable Item Statement for March 1912.

(d) Against an estimate for Rs 10,810 for improvement to Pillai Voikal (Madras), an outlay of Rs 16,963 was incurred to the end of March 1906, the excess first appearing in the accounts for September 1905 The excess was reported in the Provincial Objectionable Item Statement for March 1906 and in their orders thereon Government observed that the work was completed and that the Superintending Engineer should expedite the submission of the Completion Report and give a full explanation of the excess outlay. Further expenditure was, however, incurred and the objection was continued in the statement for June 1906, whereupon Government called for a revised estimate for the work. A year later Government stated in their orders on the Provincial Objectionable Item Statement for September 1907, that the Superintending Engineer had submitted a report on the irregular outlay incurred and orders thereon would issue shortly. A further report from the Superintending Engineer, after consultation with the Revenue authorities, was called for later. This report was not received till May 1909 and the Local Government in their orders on the Provincial Objectionable Item Statement for December 1909 called for a revised estimate on receipt of necessary information from the Collector. From the orders on the statement for 31st March 1911, it would appear that the revised estimate, after repeated reminders, was received in the Chief Engineer's Office and had again to be returned for further revision in September 1911. The item was continued in successive Objectionable Item Statements and lastly reported in the statement for 31st March 1912. In their orders dated 11th October 1912 on this statement, Government observed that a revised estimate had been received and that the Chief Engineer had called for some further information In their review on the irregularities brought to light in the local Appropriation Report, the Madras Government have stated that they consider that such expenditure has not hitherto been regularised with sufficient promptitude and have requested the Chief Engineer to expedite the settlement of outstanding cases and to take steps to ensure more prompt disposal of such cases in future.

(e) Objectionable outlay (excess over estimate) on Raising and Metalling Moga Dharmkota Road commenced in October 1909 in the late Ferozepore Provincial Division and was duly reported to the Superintending Engineer and the Local Government in the Objectionable Item Statement from time to time. In August 1910 the work was shown as completed and a completion report was called for. In January 1911 on the abolition of the Ferozepore Provincial Division, the work was transferred to Lahore No II Provincial Division (Punjab) and when adjusting the outlay for 1910-11 in March 1911 Supplementary, the Superintending Engineer, III Circle, stated that a revised completion report would be submitted. In addition to the action taken in Objectionable Item Statements, the irregularity was made the subject of five special reports. In reply to the first report in December 1909, the Local Government stated that the Superintending Engineer had been directed to expedite the submission of the revised estimate, while in reply to the report made in February 1910, a copy of the Executive Engineer's, Ferozepore Provincial Division letter No. 0105-A., dated 1st March 1910, was furnished stating that the completion report would be submitted with the accounts for February 1910 No reply was, however, received to the report made on the 12th March 1910. As regards the special report made in March 1912, in which the necessity for a very early clearance of the irregularity was emphasized, the Local Government stated, that the Superintending Engineer had been directed to submit the completion report at a very early date Another special report was made in August 1912 Subsequently, the Local Government forwarded in October 1912, Superintending Engineer's letter of September 1912 with the intimation that certain discrepancies in the accounts of the contractors were noticed, which had to be rectified before the completion report could be sent in; moreover the register of works of the late Ferozepore Division was sent for from the Ambala Provincial Division (where the records of the late Ferozepore Division had been sent) to complete the accounts of the work in the II Lahore Provincial Division. The Local Government in their letter dated 3rd October 1912 have since conveyed their approval to the completion report amounting to Rs 47,515 The Local Government have also directed an enquiry as to the extent to which the Accountants of the Lahore No II and the late Ferozepore Division are responsible for the delay and the explanation of the Accountants has been called for.

(f) In the Lower Swat River Canal Division (North-West Frontier Province), a sum of Rs 406 was spent against a sanction for Rs. 80 for printing revenue forms in 1908-09 and similarly Rs 927 was spent for the purchase of country stationery against a sanction for Rs 450. Objection to these excesses was taken in the Audit Note for January 1909 and repeated reminders were issued. The defects were not remedied till June and July 1911 or 2½ years after

(g) Expenditure on enclosing bays 5 to 8 to the weir across Chenab River at Merla (Punjab) began in December 1910 In January 1911 it amounted to very nearly Rs 28,000 and a report was made to Government pointing out that there was no estimate The Local Government called on the Superintending Engineer to submit a report and an estimate This was apparently submited in July 1911 and formed the subject of further correspondence till an estimate for Rs. 2,86,172 was sanctioned in March 1912 The Accountant General had meanwhile continued to report the excess in each month by special letters. At the time the estimate was sanctioned, expenditure had amounted to Rs 2,59,603.

(h) Materials have been collected for constructing extra storage accommodation in the Arsenal at Ferozepur (Military Works Services) to the value of Rs. 13,343 but no estimate for the work has yet been sanctioned although the first objectionable expenditure was reported in December 1907 The Director General states that the general abstract estimate for providing storage accommodation in Arsenals at certain stations is still under consideration No work has actually been begun There is no estimate for the work and five years have passed since the first outlay without the objection being removed. All this while materials have been accumulated and are subject to deterioration, when they should, after a reasonable time, have been returned to stock and used on other works to avoid loss Proposals to transfer these materials to stock have been received but the transfer has been postponed owing to want of funds under Suspense—Ordinary [Manip]ulation [of ac]counts [and v]ouchers.

20. Local Governments and Administrations do not all take the same view of the seriousness of this fault. Thus the Assam Administration, in the case of an irregular write-back of Rs 272 to avoid an excess on a small original work which came to light during the inspection of the Cachar Division office in November 1911, drew attention to previous orders passed by the Government of Eastern Bengal and Assam on a similar case, in which the serious character of the offence was referred to and described as contrary to every principle of accounting and amounting to falsification of the accounts and directed that the attention of all Executive Engineers should be called to these orders and the Sub-Divisional officers concerned informed that the case was being noted in their personal files.

In reviewing the cases of manipulation of accounts brought to notice in the Local Appropriation Report, the Madras Government Resolution stated that "the "Government while agreeing with the Accountant-General that such manipula- "tions are very objectionable and should on no account be allowed to occur "in future, do not consider that there is any reason to suppose that such "manipulations have been made by officers in order to shield themselves from "blame or from any other unworthy motive."

On the other hand in the North West Frontier Province in an inspection Report on the Swabi Division Upper Swat River Canal it was brought to notice that expenditure of R472 incurred on one work had been debited to another to avoid an excess over the estimate The debit was subsequently transferred to the correct work but it does not appear that any other action has been taken on the case.

I cannot but express the opinion that the action taken by the Assam Administration was correct.

The following cases in which facts were misrepresented, accounts manipulated or other misleading information was supplied to Audit Offices with an evident view to avoid audit objections may be referred to Such cases are only occasional in connection with Civil expenditure, but occur more frequently in respect of Public Works charges

(a) A sum of R2,372 was drawn by the Deputy Commissioner, Peshawar, in March 1911 on account of contingencies and in the following month was repaid into the Treasury as a Revenue deposit The item in the Extract Register of Deposit receipts was described as "Compensation money" The amount was withdrawn from the Treasury in June 1911 and on the payees' receipts being called for, it was explained that the item was not on account of compensation but that it was originally drawn from the Treasury on account of cost of furniture, which had been ordered but had not arrived till long after the close of the year The amount was obviously drawn and placed in Revenue deposit to prevent a lapse of the budget grant and with an incorrect description so as to avoid objection in audit In reviewing the item in the Local Appropriation Report, the Chief Commissioner trusted that such irregularities would be avoided in future.

(b) Mr Morris, a General Service clerk, Persian Section, Indo-European Telegraph Department, before proceeding on leave out of India drew his usual salary for May and 14 days of June 1911, amounting to R515 in Persia. On his way home viâ Karachi in July he drew for a second time salary for the same period from the Director's Office, Persian Gulf section at Karachi, on the strength of a Last-pay certificate prepared by himself The Last-pay certificate granted to Mr Morris by his relieving officer was not made over to him but was attached to the cash account of the office from which he took leave The matter was brought to the notice of the Directors of the Gulf and Persian Sections Mr. Morris being on leave in England no explanation was obtained from him, but the matter was reported to the Director-in-Chief, London, who recovered the amount and explained that the double payment was due to a mistake on the part of the relieving officer As Mr Morris had made over charge he should not have signed the second Last-pay certificate. It would appear that he actually received payment before he left Persia, though it is possible that he merely signed and endorsed the pay bill before he left In neither event was he justified in drawing a second bill, but if he did this after having received payment, his fault was a very serious one. The matter seems to require further investigation

(c) In the Madura Special Division (Madras), the Sub-Divisional Officer, Kodaikanal, in an intermediate bill on form 14, prepared in October 1911, showed a minus entry of 47,957 cubic feet of metal as collected since the previous bill As it was not clear what this meant, an inspecting account officer investigated the matter and found that the minus quantity arose from the Sub-Divisional Officer having in previous bills included this quantity of metal, valued at R3,356, which was in excess of the amount actually collected. The Sub-Divisional officer in his explanation admitted that the quantity of metal previously billed for was in excess of the actual quantity collected, but said that the overpayment was made to enable the contractor to push on with the work and that the security deposit withheld from the contractor amounted to more than R9,000. He added that the mistake lay in his not having treated the over-payment as an Advance and that he regretted his action which had been in the interests of the work. The Superintending Engineer characterised the action of the Sub-Divisional officer as irregular and the Local Government recorded the explanation. Here, in order to prevent audit objections, the accounts were deliberately manipulated and payments made for material not actually collected Strict orders are stated to have been issued forbidding a repetition of the irregularity.

(d) At the inspection of the Ferozepore District by the Examiner, Military Works Accounts, during October 1911, an examination of the returns of Barrack and Hospital Furniture showed that certain articles were deficient, the fact having been reported by the Garrison Engineer to the Assistant Commanding Royal Engineer. The latter had no power to write off losses and instead of obtaining the orders of competent authority, ordered (on a survey report) the articles to be written off as "unserviceable articles", which was within his power, and a certificate was endorsed by the Barrack Master that these were destroyed in his presence The matter was brought to the notice of the Director General of Military Works, whose orders were that "the Assistant Commanding Royal Engineer made the mistake of sanctioning the survey report, instead of obtaining the sanction of the General Officer Commanding," adding that it has been specially noted by the Director General Proper sanction has since been furnished but no action has apparently been taken as regards the Barrack Master who made a false statement

(e) The Executive Engineer, Rajbari District, Eastern Bengal State Railway, undertook the construction of the Kalukhali low level main line diversion between miles 133-11 and 135-7 Goalundo Branch, before the receipt of sanction to an estimate and incurred outlay in February 1911 which he allocated to ordinary revenue, writing back the amount subsequently to special revenue. R75,116 previously debited to ordinary revenue was thus subsequently written back to special revenue in the accounts for January 1912 The estimate was sanctioned in July 1912

(f) Lower Ganges Bridge.—Payment for 15,000 sleepers was made to the Forest Department partly in March 1910 (R10,625) and the balance in March 1911 (R53,125) before the sleepers were delivered. The full quantity was entered in the Store books in March 1911, though only 12,613 sleepers had been actually received up to the 7th of June 1912. This was brought to light during stock-taking verification These irregular entries and payments in advance have been reported to the Engineer-in-Chief and the matter is under investigation

(g) North Western Railway—R3,091 were actually chargeable to the estimate for "Supplementary works for new Carriage Shops at Lahore," but part of the amount, viz, R759 was in the first instance charged against Revenue Ordinary Maintenance, and the remainder, viz, R2,332 was charged to the estimate for "Additional quarters for staff for new Carriage and Wagon Shops, Lahore," the estimate for the work not having been sanctioned on that date Steps have been taken with a view to the stoppage of irregularities of this kind

(h) Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway—(1) R43,715 value of permanent way material issued to "Relaying of 26 miles between Bareilly and Moradabad" from December 1911 to March 1912 was not accounted for by the Executive Engineer under the orders of the Engineer-in-Chief, who desired the adjustment to be made in the accounts for 1912-13 Further, R29,933 representing the value of materials realised from this work was not brought into the accounts The material was issued and charged to the Akbarpur-Tanda Railway in the accounts for 1911-12. On these transactions being challenged by audit, the necessary adjustments were carried out in the accounts for the year 1911-12.

(2) Permanent way materials to the value of R46,893 received from England during June 1911 were accounted for by the Executive Engineer, District No. I, in the permanent way material accounts for March 1911 Supplementary, with a view to their issue to "Doubling Line between Moghal Sarai and Benares" in the financial year 1910-11 in order to utilise the grant and prevent a lapse. The Manager's attention has been drawn to the practice with a view to prevent a recurrence of such transactions.

(i) In the Gandak Division (Bengal, now Bihar and Orissa) the estimate for constructing an additional record room with iron racks for the Sadar Registration Office at Muzaffarpur provided for full rates for the supply of labour and materials Materials dismantled from the record room at Siwan were however available and were transferred but without value to the work at Muzaffarpur, the contractor being paid labour rates only. The materials should have been valued and debited to the work by credit to Revenue. Had this been done the estimate would have been exceeded as the contractor was paid at a considerably higher rate for work than was provided for in the estimate. This result was avoided by irregularly supplying the materials referred to without value. The matter was brought to the notice of the Superintending Engineer and the Local Government in an Inspection Report. The Superintending Engineer in his report to the Chief Engineer, Bihar and Orissa, stated that the materials should have been valued and credited to Revenue and that the Executive Engineer's attention had been invited to the rule. The Local Government has offered no other remark.

The action to be taken in order to obtain greater observance of financial rules is under discussion in a separate file at the instance of the Secretary of State No suggestions, therefore, are offered in this report.

21 March Expenditure —The subject of the rush of expenditure in March has continued to receive attention during the year The irregularity still exists Inspecting officers now bring to notice in their reports on divisional offices, cases in which there appears to have been an unnecessarily large expenditure in March and apparently with the object of utilizing funds to prevent lapses Several of the cases already quoted in the previous portions of the report indicate that charges are often drawn when the payment cannot be made at once in order to prevent a lapse of grants at the end of the year The attention of controlling officers is also drawn as occasion arises to such defects

Two cases were brought to notice in Madras In the West Coast Division a payment of R1,800 was charged off in the accounts for March 1912 The voucher has however not yet been furnished Payment has not yet been actually made as all the component parts of the machinery ordered from Calcutta have not arrived. A cheque for R1 691 was drawn at the close of the year in the Presidency Division for payment to a contractor for work done before the contractor signed the bill in token of having agreed to the contents The amount was charged off in the accounts for 1911-12, but the cheque was cancelled subsequently as the contractor refused to take payment owing to some dispute in rates

In the Central Provinces in the Kanhan Division a cheque for R11,907 was drawn on the 26th March but was not delivered to the contractor as he refused to accept the amount and had not signed the measurement book. The office was inspected in August, when this cheque and another for R3,308 drawn in February 1912, in favour of the same contractor, was found in the chest

The Comptroller, Central Provinces, reports that a result of late and hurried payments is that many vouchers are delayed in submission to his office for audit The amount under objection on this account on 31st March 1912, in respect of the expenditure of that month alone was R99,941 and on 31st July R27,777 were still unvouched for

In various Provinces steps have been taken to prevent both an unnecessary accumulation of charges already incurred and also to prevent the drawing of funds till payment has actually to be made The Madras Government have already issued a circular which it is hoped will prevent the undue rush of expenditure in March In Burma the Local Government recently called on a Superintending Engineer to instruct the Executive Engineers to see that the objectionable rush of payments was stopped by arranging to distribute their expenditure as evenly as possible during the cold weather working months The Government of the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, in the Buildings and Roads Branch, issued a circular letter to Superintending Engineers directing them to impress on all Executive Engineers and Sub-Divisional Officers the necessity for a more even distribution of payments throughout the year with a view to avoiding in future a rush of heavy expenditure in the last two months and to submit monthly to Government, from October to February each year, a statement showing the allotments and progress of expenditure up to date. A circular has also been issued on this subject in the Irrigation Branch the excess have been also there stated. The following table brings together the excesses under each head still requiring sanction :—

I.—Land Revenue.

Province.	Accounts, 1910-11.	Budget, 1911-12.	Accounts, 1911-12	Local Account Officer's Review of Actuals against Actuals, 1910-11.	Local Account Officer's Review of Actuals against Budget, 1911-12.
India . .	17,00	17,31	16,63	The decrease was due chiefly to the revision of assessment in Ajmer with effect from 1st January 1911.	The decrease was chiefly on account of smaller receipts in Ajmer due to deficient rains in 1910 which affected the Rabi crops of the year under report.
Central Provinces .	1,81,31	1,85,00	1,85,84	The standard growth of land revenue on the basis of four normal years' actuals is about 2,64. The increase of 4,53 in 1911-12, as compared with 1910-11, is due to the enhancement of the normal demand on the completion of settlement operations in certain districts.	...
Burma . .	4,05,01	4,31,69	4,17,35	Larger outstandings at the end of 1910-11 consequent on delay in measuring fields, preparing assessment rolls and issuing tax-tickets in consequence of the employment of Revenue Officers on Census duty mainly accounted for the smaller actuals in 1910-11 The improvement in receipts from fisheries and larger receipts due to the development of the Wolfram industry in the Tavoy District further contributed to the increase in 1911-12.	The decrease was chiefly due to large remissions of revenue in some districts on account of destruction of crops by floods, to a miscalculation of irrigation receipts in the Minbu district, to an unfavourable season in the Meiktila district, to large outstandings in the Pegu and Toungoo Districts (10,39), to an over-estimate of the receipts from fisheries, the anticipated improvement on account of subdivision of the existing fisheries and creation of leasable fisheries not having been realised (1,46) and to less activity in the petroleum industry in the Yenangyaung oil-fields (1,35) The decrease was partly counterbalanced by slight improvements under Miscellaneous (57) due to the development of the Wolfram industry in the Tavoy District and increased activity in search of minerals in Mergui District.
Eastern Bengal and Assam.	2,02,19	2,0[illegible],10	2,03,37	The receipts from ordinary revenue improved by 84 which was accounted for to some extent by arrear collections in parts of Assam. The only other marked variation was an increase of 19 under Miscellaneous.	In the Budget Estimate recoveries on account of survey and settlement operations were put at 3,00, but only 25 was realised. This was explained as due to the fact that sufficient records could not be made ready in time for publication. Under Ordinary Revenue receipts fell short of the Budget by 1,10 This was due to delays in the revision of Settlements This deficit was compensated for to the extent of 75 by an excess under Miscellaneous
Bengal . .	3,03,70	3,01,13	2,98,20	The decrease of 5,50 as compared with 1910-11 was chiefly due to postponement of recovery work in Shahabad Settlement which caused a set back of about 4,00 and to smaller collection from Government estates in the following districts—Darjeeling (34), Patna (18), 24-Parganas (14), Shahabad (13) and Hazaribagh (13). Collections in Shahabad were retarded owing to disputes with tenants and in Patna owing to delay in revision of Jamabandi in Barh Sub-Division.	Excluding from Budget one lakh on account of collections from the Kidderpore Orphangunge market which were erroneously included under Collections from Government estates, the actual decrease as compared with Budget was a little over 5,00 of which about 4,00 were caused by the postponement of recovery work in Shahabad Settlement Other causes were advance collections of ordinary revenue in Cuttack in 1910-11 (25), smaller sale of Cadastral maps (24), smaller collections from Government estates in Shahabad owing to hostility of tenants and other causes (22).

United Provinces of Agra and Oudh	6,58,28	6,53,15	6,41,0[illegible]	As compared with 1910-11, there were smaller collections of current demands and ordinary arrears as also of suspensions due to Famine, mainly attributable to smaller demand on account of arrears, late arrival of the monsoon and exclusion of the revenue of the Family Domains of the Maharaja of Benares which now form part of the Benares State.	The late arrival of the monsoon upset Budget expectations. There was a deficit of about 9,00 under fixed and surplus collections owing to suspensions and abnormal arrears. Receipts from Mutation fines and Partition fees, which are of an uncertain character, were also lower by 46. The decrease thus caused was to a small extent set off by larger collections from the Tarai and Bhabar Government estates (33) and by other improvements of minor importance.
Punjab	[illegible],68,19	3,04,62	2,89,6[illegible]	The increase over 1910-11 was partly due to the sale of proprietary rights to peasant grantees which concession was not in existence in that year and partly to the introduction of the new fluctuating assessment in the lower Chenab Canal Colony and wider Rabi sowings in other parts of the country.	The decrease of 14,96 in net Land Revenue was the result of an increase of 91 in Land Revenue proper and of an increase of 15,87 in the amount creditable to XXIX—Major Irrigation Works. The increase of 91 in Land Revenue proper was due to higher receipts from Sale of proprietary rights, etc., owing to the fact that the concession of acquiring proprietary rights was taken advantage of by more peasants than was foreseen, counterbalanced by a decrease under other heads chiefly under Ordinary Revenue, owing to suspensions consequent on the failure of the monsoon
North-West Frontier Province.	[illegible]1,38	2[illegible]	20,[illegible]3	The decrease below 1910-11 was chiefly due to Kharif crops in Dera Ismail Khan being poorer on account of the absence of rains in July and August.	Decrease was due to considerable amounts in Peshawar (on account of the extensions of irrigation from the Hazara Khani branch of the Kabul River Canal and a change in the form of assessment) and in Kohat and Bannu (on account of remissions) having been struck off as irrecoverable and the Kharif crops in Dera Ismail Khan being very poor owing to the absence of rains in July and August. There was also a fall of income under sale-proceeds of trees and grass in Hazara and in mutation fees owing to a fall in the number of mutations at resettlement.
Madras	5,72,76	5,74,20	[illegible],33	Increase was mainly due to extension of irrigation and enhanced water rate in Guntur, recovery of arrears in Nellore and introduction of resettlement rates in parts of Chingleput and Tinnevelly	Decrease was due mainly to grant of larger remissions than was anticipated owing to unfavourable season and to less sales of lands under the Divi pumping system in Kistna and of Periyar affected lands in Madura.
Bombay	5,16,91	5,1[illegible],[illegible]9	[illegible]7,350	Owing to failure of rains in parts of the Presidency the Land Revenue was liberally remitted and suspended. The actuals of 1910-1[illegible] also included 7,58 on account of collections due in 1911-12 and 6,82 special receipts from sale of lands as against 3,69 on account of advance collections and 1,3[illegible] for sale of lands in 1911-12	The collections of 1911-12 included 3,69 on account of the dues of 1912-13 and also 1,35 being the receipts in Bombay from the sales of certain lands to the City Improvement Trust. Excluding these items, the collections of the year fell short of the Budget by 49,63. The falling off was due to unfavourable agricultural conditions in certain parts of the Presidency Proper. Liberal remissions of revenue were granted and large amounts were suspended. In Sind, however, the collections were better by 1,06 owing to a larger area having been put under cultivation.

I.—Land Revenue—concld.

The receipts were less than in 1910-11 by 16,92 and fell short of the Budget expectation by 98,11. The decrease in actuals occurred chiefly in Bombay (43,41) due to the failure of the rains in parts of the Presidency resulting in liberal remissions and suspensions and smaller advance collections (3,69) and special receipts for sale of lands (1,35) as compared with the previous year (7,58 and 6,32, respectively); in the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh (14,23) due to smaller demands on account of arrears, late arrival of the monsoon and the exclusion of the revenue of the Family Domains of the Maharajah of Benares which now forms part of the Benares State, and in Bengal (5,50) due to the postponement of recovery work in the Shahabad settlement (4,00) and to smaller collections from Government estates. These decreases were partly counterbalanced by increases in the Punjab (26,47) due to the sale of proprietary rights to peasant grantees, a concession not in existence in 1910-11, to the introduction of the new fluctuating assessment in the Lower Chenab Canal Colony and wider rabi sowings; in Burma (12,34) due to the carrying forward of collections referred to in last year's report as necessitated by Census work and improvements under fishery receipts and the development of the Wolfram industry in Tavoy; in the Central Provinces (4,53) due to normal growth and enhancement of demand on completion of settlement operations in certain districts, and in Madras (2,57) due to extension of irrigation and enhanced water rate in Guntur, recovery of arrears in Nellore and introduction of resettlement rates in Chingleput and Tinnevelly.

The variations from Budget were due chiefly to the decrease in Bombay (37,89) due to unfavourable agricultural conditions in certain parts of the Presidency involving liberal remissions and suspensions; in Burma (17,34) due to remission in some districts on account of damage by floods and large outstandings in Pegu and Toungoo, miscalculation of Irrigation receipts in Minbu, unfavourable season in Meiktila, less fishery receipts and less activity in the petroleum oil fields; in the Punjab (14,96) due to an increase in the amount to be transferred to the credit of Irrigation (This decrease was nominal as the charge was merely transferred to another head); in the United Provinces (9,15) due to the late arrival of the monsoon resulting in suspensions and arrears, in Madras (8,87) due to an unfavourable season and less sales of land; and in Bengal (5,93) due to the postponement of recovery work in Shahabad settlement and the erroneous provision of 1,00 under this head for collection from Government estates.

II.—Opium.

India	5	6	6
Central Provinces .	[illegible]	5,00	[illegible]	The increase was due to the normal growth of revenue which, taking the figures of four normal years, worked out to 28.
Burma .	4,34	4,30	3,95	The decrease was due to the policy of Government in not pushing sales and to the restriction of sales of opium to natives of Burma. The actuals from 1906-07 to 1911-12 showed a steady fall year after year as shown below. 1906-07 . 5,77 1907-08 . 5,37 1908-09 4,82 1909-10 . 4,56 1910-11 4,34 1911-12 3,95	The same causes accounted for the decrease of actuals as compared with Budget.
Eastern Bengal and Assam.	6,29	6,25	6,33
Bengal . . .	10,95,52	5,63,91	7,57,86	Decrease was due to the sale of a smaller number of chests owing to the settled policy of reducing the trade with China	Budget provided for sale of 10,210 chests for China at an average price of R2,500 per chest and 20,000 chests for other ports at an average price of R1,500 per chest. A smaller number of chests was sold, viz., 10,120 for China and 16,740 for other ports, but the average prices realised were much higher, viz., R3,1[illegible]6 for the former and R[illegible],383 for the latter
United Provinces of Agra and Oudh	5,42	5,50	6,15
Punjab .	5,49	5,50	6,20	The increase was due mainly to the increasing popularity of Excise opium.	The increase was due to the increasing popularity of Excise Opium. The Budget was rather a cautious one owing to the probability that the larger sales of opium in 1910-11, the steady measures taken against the smuggling of opium to other provinces and the expected enhancement of the issue price would hamper the sales during 1911-12.
North-West Frontier Province	22	23	21
Madras . . .	4,20	4,50	4,33	Increase was due to increased issues to Native States.	Decrease was due to the issues of opium having been less than the quantity anticipated.
Bombay . .	1,91	46,81	1,04,7[illegible]	The actuals for 1910-11 represented duty on a few chests for which replacement certificates were issued they having been diverted for home consumption in 1909-10. The increase in the current actuals was due to an increased rate of pass duty and the new system introduced in January 1912 of sales by auction of the right to export half the proceeds of which were credited to Government.	The excess was due to an increase in the rate of pass duty and to the introduction from January 1912 of a new system under which the right to export was sold by auction and half the proceeds so realized were credited to Government.

25. The actuals of 1911-12 were less than those of the previous year by 2,34,11 which was the net result of a decrease in Bengal (3,37,66) due to the sale of a smaller number of chests owing to the settled policy of reducing the trade with China and of an increase in Bombay (1,02,82) due to an increase in the rate of pass duty and to the introduction since January 1912 of a new system under which the right to export Malwa Opium to China was sold by auction and half the proceeds so realized credited to Government. The increase of 2,52,13 as compared with the Budget was also due to this latter cause (57,92) and an increase in Bengal (1,93,95) due to higher prices realized in the sales of Bengal opium. The average price provided in the Budget was R2,500 per chest for China and R1,500 per chest for other ports but the average prices realized were R3,546 and R2,383 respectively.

26. The receipts from Excise Opium as compared with the last year were better in all provinces except Burma and the North-West Frontier. In the Punjab (71) and Bengal (33) increased consumption accounted for the rise The fall in Burma (39) was due to the policy of not pushing sales and to the restriction of sales to natives of Burma.

III.—Salt.

Province.	Accounts, 1910-11.	Budget, 1911-12.	Accounts, 1911-12.	LOCAL ACCOUNT OFFICER'S REVIEW OF ACTUALS AGAINST
				Actuals, 1910-11.	Budget, 1911-12.
India	1,03,81	1,11,50	1,14,70	The actuals in 1910-11 were unusually low due chiefly to plague in Northern India and to contraction of speculative dealings on account of rumoured reduction in the rate of duty at the Coronation Durbar.	The Budget, 1911-12, was based on the actuals of 1909-10 which amounted to 1,11,45, instead of on the unusually low actuals of 1910-11. There was no indication of its being exceeded until December 1911. Thereafter a substantial improvement took place indicating a replenishment of depleted stock and return to normal conditions.
Burma	20,89	21,50	22,08	The enhancement of duty on locally manufactured salt and heavy importations from the United Kingdom partly counterbalanced by a decline in importation from other Foreign countries accounted for the increase.	The enhancement of duty by 25 per cent. on locally manufactured salt and greater importation of salt from the United Kingdom partly counterbalanced by a decline in the clearance of German salt from bond and in the consumption of Salif salt accounted for the increase in comparison with the Budget.
Eastern Bengal and Assam	12,87	13,75	12,50	The revenue under Customs Duty on Salt is steadily decreasing. This is apparently due to the economy involved in importing duty-paid salt from Calcutta viâ the Inward Steamer Route.	The growing tendency to import duty-paid salt from Calcutta viâ the inland steamer route and the consequent decrease in duty paid in this province was not allowed its due weight when the estimate was framed
Bengal	1,02,30	1,04,00	1,13,48	Actuals, 1911-12, included exceptional receipt of 12,00 owing to heavy clearances during December to February on account of sudden fall in prices arising from the importation of Aden salt by a bonder not in the combine which was formed to keep up prices. Excluding this item, the actuals were less than those of 1910-11 by 1,00, the normal growth of 7,00 having been more than absorbed by increase of outstandings (8,00) on account of credit sales of which very extensive advantage was taken (the outstandings having amounted to 24,00 against 16,00 in previous year)	Budget allowed for an increase of 3,50 on account of smaller outstandings of credit sales and 5,50 on account of normal growth over 95,00, the Revised originally adopted for 1910-11 In the actual result, the accounts for 1910-11 improved by over 7,00 and in 1911-12 the ordinary growth was 7,00 and there was an exceptional receipt of 12,00. Against this the outstandings increased by 8,00
Madras	1,08,64	1,09,00	1,07,49	Decrease due mainly to smaller realizations from cash and credit sales.	As under actuals
Bombay	1,27,88	1,34,00	1,38,43	The increase was due to early removals of salt by merchants to replenish up-country Depôts owing to apprehensions of an enhancement in the Excise duty, increased sale of Baragara salt and an increase in the baggage rate counterbalanced by a slight decline in the imports of Goa Salt at Castle Rock	The increase was mainly due to early removals of salt by merchants to replenish up-country Depôts owing to apprehensions of an increase in the duty
Total in Rupees	4,76,39	4,93,75	5,08,68
Equivalent in Sterling	3,175,9	3,291,7	3,391,2

27. The increase over the actuals of 1910-11 was mainly due to the increases in Bengal (11,18) due to heavy clearance from December 1911 to February 1912 on the breaking up of a combine and the consequent fall in prices, in India (10,89) due to a return to normal conditions after the contraction consequent on the rumoured reduction in the rate of duty at the Coronation Durbar and from absence of plague, and in Bombay (10,55) due to removal of salt by merchants to replenish up-country depôts owing to apprehensions of an increase in the duty, to increased sales of Baragara salt and an increase in the baggage rate. Similar causes accounted for the increase as compared with the Budget.

IV.—Stamps.

Province.	Accounts, 1910-11.	Budget, 1911-12.	Accounts, 1911-12.	Local Account Officer's Review of Actuals against Actuals, 1910-11.	Local Account Officer's Review of Actuals against Budget, 1911-12
India . . .	4,64	5,00	4,90	Decline in 1910-11 was due to smaller receipts in Ajmer on account of prevalence of plague, and to less sale of Vakeel's Stamps in Calcutta.	The variation was due to a decrease of 28 under General and Court-fee stamps in Ajmer, Indore and Bangalore, the result chiefly of an unfavourable season, and plague, counterbalanced by increased receipts of about 18 on account of Vakeel's Stamps sold in Calcutta
Central Provinces .	35,24	34,00	33,61	The standard growth of stamp Revenue could not be worked out with any great accuracy owing to the fact that the actuals 1909-10 and 1910-11 included exceptional revenue from mortgage suits occasioned by the decision of the Privy Council. Omitting, however, the receipts of the above two years, the average of four normal years preceding 1909-10 came to 1,39. The actuals of the year 1911-12 were however less by 1,63, due to the revenue of 1910-11, including about 3,00 on account of special mortgage suits mentioned above. If this figure were omitted from the actuals of 1910-11, the revenue for that year would be 32,24; and the increase in the revenue of 1911-12 would be (33,61—32,24) 1,37, which would be only slightly below the average worked out above	The decrease in the actuals was due to the Budget having been over-estimated under Sale of Court-fee Stamps partially counterbalanced by an increase under Sale of General Stamps
Burma . . .	38,97	39,53	36,71	The decrease was mainly due to the transfer of credits (89) on account of copying fees to XVIA.—Law and Justice—Courts of Law in consequence of the introduction of the system of realizing them in cash. The actuals of 1910-11 also included larger receipts of composition duty on loans floated by local bodies (14) and a special item of duty on insufficiently stamped document (38).	The decrease below the budget was due to the change in the system of realizing copying fees in cash instead of by means of stamps, to the decrease in litigation due to financial stringency accompanying the failure of several joint stock companies, to the depression in trade and to the restriction of Chetties business. The decrease was general throughout most of the important districts of Lower Burma.
Eastern Bengal and Assam	1,06,73	1,09,00	1,11,62	The increased revenue was mainly composed of 3,27 under Court-fee Stamps and 1,49 under General Stamps. The increase under the former head was apparently due to Settlement Operations, being most pronounced in the districts of Bakarganj, Mymensingh, Jalpaiguri, Dacca and Faridpur. Under General Stamps the increase had not been explained but was most marked in the Chittagong Division	The excess over the Budget occurred principally under Court-fee Stamps (2,03), receipts being very high in districts where Settlement Operations were in progress. An excess of 41 under General Stamps was due to abnormally high receipts in the Chittagong Division.
Bengal . . .	1,58,61	1,62,00	1,63,38	Normal increase due to a return of favourable agricultural conditions and the improvement of trade in Calcutta and the enhancement of stamps duty for probates accounted for the increase.	The revenue was arrested in 1908-09 and 1909-10 owing to prevalence of scarcity and recovered in 1910-11 when an increase of 2·43 lakhs appeared. Accordingly in Budget 1911-12 a similar allowance of 3 lakhs was made over the Revised Estimate of 159 lakhs adopted for 1910-11. Owing, however, to return of favourable agricultural conditions, to the improvement of trade in Calcutta and to the enhancement of stamp duty on probate of wills, etc., (by Act VII of 1910) the normal increase of about 5,00 re-appeared

United Provinces of Agra and Oudh.	1,20,50	1,07,69	1,09,90	The important factor in the variation between the actuals of the two years was the decrease in receipts from Sale of Court-fee Stamps in the year under report (10,84), which was expected after the abnormal increase in the two previous years in mortgage suits due to the ruling of the Privy Council. These two years excepted, the sale in 1911-12 was the largest during the last ten years and maintained the steady yearly rise in the decade. The income from the sale of stamps for copies, on the other hand, showed an improvement of 31, mainly as the result of greater civil litigation in original courts in the preceding two years.	The revenue from Sale of Court-fee Stamps was slightly under-estimated. There has been improvement under the other heads also, chiefly in respect of other General Stamps and receipts from Hoondies. The increase under other General Stamps was mainly due to adverse seasonal conditions in the beginning of the year and poor kharif which favoured money-lending business and more than counterbalanced a reduction of 55 on account of compensation paid to the Benares State for British stamps supplied at their face value as an ad interim arrangement.
Punjab	48,92	51,50	52,57	The increase over 1910-11 was due to increase in the number of suits, large sales of immoveable property, increase in sale of lands, acquisition of proprietary rights in the Chenab Canal Colony, execution of a large number of deeds, extension of banking business, execution of agreements for transactions in connection with the Delhi Durbar and to the institution of suits filed for the ejectment of tenants from houses in the Delhi city on the occasion of the Durbar.	The increase occurred chiefly under the head Duty on impressing documents (1,10) and was ascribed to the expansion of Banking and Insurance business, the increase in the number of legal practitioners and to the large number of member certificates sent for impressment by Relief Funds.
North-West Frontier Province.	5,02	5,22	5,69	The increase was due to the general development of the Peshawar District and the growing tendency of the people to resort to litigation as also to the fact that the people now adopt written in place of oral agreements for loans, &c.	As against actuals.
Madras	1,21,16	1,26,00	1,27,25	Increase under Court-fees Stamps (4,01) was due to increased litigation and more monetary transactions.	Increase occurred chiefly under sale of general stamps due to an increase in monetary transactions.
Bombay	81,96	80,00	76,64	The decrease occurred under Court-fee Stamps (5,90) and was due to the abnormal receipts of 1910-11 in consequence of the amendment of the Limitation Act in 1908.	The decrease occurred under Sale of Court-fee Stamps (3,21) due to the abnormal rise consequent on the Limitation Act passed in 1908 not having been sufficiently allowed for and under Sale of General Stamps (77) due to less transactions involving sale and purchases of immoveable properties and money dealings.

28. The small increase in actuals (52) as compared with the previous year was mainly the result of decreases in the United Provinces (10,60) and in Bombay (5,32) due to the abnormal rise in 1910-11, in consequence of the decision of the Privy Council referred to in last year's Report and in Burma (2,26) due to a nominal decrease owing to a change in the system of realizing copying fees and less receipt under Duty on Impressing documents and increases in Madras (6,09) due to increased litigation and monetary transactions ; in Eastern Bengal and Assam (4,89) due mainly to Settlement Operations ; in Bengal (4,77) due to favourable agricultural conditions and improvement of trade in Calcutta and in the Punjab (3,65) due to increase in the number of suits filed, sales and execution of agreements and the acquiring of proprietary rights in the Chenab Canal Colony. The increase (2,33) as compared with the Budget was the result of differences in several Provinces which were due to the causes referred to above.

India . . .	17,28	17,50	18,21	The improvement as compared with 1910-11 and earlier years was due to progressive growth.	Almost the whole of the increase occurred in Baluchistan due to increase in the rate of Still Head Duty and to increased demand for country liquor.
Central Provinces and Berar.	75,89	84,00	91,12	The average growth based on the actuals of four normal years came to about 7,42. The large increase as compared with this figure was due to unforeseen high prices having been realised for vend privileges, from bidders at the annual auction, and to the enhanced duty rates on country spirit.	The increases were chiefly under the heads License fees (4,68), Still Head Duty (1,17) and Duty on Ganja (53). Under the first head the improvement was due to keen competition at the auction sales for 1911-12 which realised unexpectedly high revenue and under the second and third heads to the fact that the estimates were fixed low on the assumption that the increase in the duty would reduce consumption, an expectation which was not fulfilled.
Burma . . .	72,01	74,40	72,97	The increase in comparison with the actuals of the previous year was chiefly due to larger receipts under License and distillery fees and duties, etc (3,57) owing to keen competition among the bidders at Rangoon and other places, partly counterbalanced by a fall of revenue under Gain on sale-proceeds of Excise opium (2,84) owing to the policy of Government in not pushing sales of opium.	The decrease was mainly due to the fall of revenue under Gain on sale-proceeds of Excise opium (2,79) owing to the policy of Government in not pushing sales and to the restriction of sales of opium to natives of Burma, partly counterbalanced by larger receipts under License and distillery fees and duties, etc., (1,31) on account of keen competition among the bidders at Rangoon and other places.
Eastern Bengal and Assam.	78,71	79,30	82,82	The improvement in revenue amounting to 4,11 was made up mainly of an increase under License and Distillery fees and Duties for the sale of liquors and drugs (3,62) and under Duty on Ganja (39). The growth under the former head though not so great as in the previous year, pointed to the growing prosperity of the people, which allowed of a most favourable settlement of shops for the sale of liquor and opium.	Actuals exceeded the estimates under License and Distillery fees and Duties for the sale of liquors and drugs (3,11) and under Gain on sale proceeds of Excise Opium (59) but fell short of the estimate under Duty on Ganja (20). The estimate under the first head was based on actuals of 1910-11 as it was not anticipated that receipts would remain stationary after the large rise of 4,62 in that year. This expectation was falsified. A somewhat low figure was taken in the estimate for receipts on account of opium and a somewhat high one for receipts on account of ganja, in the belief that the use of the latter was to some extent superseding the use of the former. This was, however, only partially borne out by facts.
Bengal . . .	1,79,74	1,81,00	1,94,28	The revenue was adversely affected in 1908-09 and 1909-10 on account of failure of crops and recovered in 1910-11. The actuals, 1911-12, were better by over 14 lakhs, of which 10 lakhs represented normal increase and about 4 lakhs were attributed to advance in prices at which shops were settled and to the raising of duty on foreign liquor which diverted consumers from imported to country spirits. Agricultural conditions had improved and with hopes of increased business there was keen competition for shops.	Budget allowed for a moderate growth (300 over the Revised originally adopted for 1910-11) as it was assumed that further reforms to be introduced would check the consumption of stimulants. But the prevalence of favourable agricultural conditions led to substantial improvement in revenue.

United Provinces of Agra and Oudh.	1,02,79	1,04,26	1,11,32	The revenue under this head fell year by year from 1905-06 owing to the adverse influence of famine, and was reviving only from 1910-11, partly due to the return of prosperity and partly to reforms introduced. The actuals for the year under report showed an improvement of 8,53 over the previous year which was mainly attributable to continued prosperity and to the resultant brisk competition for licenses. A large number of marriages and the introduction of the Distillery system into the Jhansi, Jalaun and Hamirpur districts contributed towards the improvement under Country spirits, the head under which the bulk of the increase (7,88) appeared, notwithstanding a reduction of over 1,00 in revenue from Farms and Outstills consequent on the conversion of the outstills in the districts above mentioned. There were increases under some of the other heads notably under Duty on Hemp Drugs (85), but Foreign Liquors showed a falling-off of 80 which was chiefly due to a decrease in the consumption of locally brewed beer consequent on increased duty, and to the introduction of the Military Canteen system and importation of English beer in canteens worked by regimental authorities.	The Budget was a cautious estimate; but owing to the causes mentioned against Actuals, there were increases under Country Spirit License fees (retail) and Still Head duty, Duty on Hemp Drugs and under License fees on Opium, and a decrease under Still Head duty on Foreign Liquors. The receipts from sale of Excise Opium also exceeded expectations as a result of higher issue price of opium. There were other variations which counterbalanced each other.
Punjab . . .	56,95	58,00	64,00	The increase was generally accounted for as explained under Budget.	The increase was due to the enhanced fees realized at the annual auctions of vend licenses, the increased receipts from still-head duty owing to large issues from distilleries and the enhancement of the duty on charas, the imports of which increased instead of decreasing, as was anticipated owing to the rumours that the Chinese Government was going to stop the trade with Yarkand. The increase was further due to the increasing popularity of Excise opium and the enhancement of the acreage rate
North-West Frontier Province.	2,78	2,60	3,16	The increase was due to keen competition amongst bidders at the auction of excise leases	The increase was due partly to keen competition amongst bidders at the auctions of Excise leases and partly to larger importation of Afghan opium than was anticipated
Madras . . .	2,77,74	2,90,00	3,00,64	The increase over 1910-11 represented the normal growth of revenue as compared with the actuals of the three years ending 1908-09. This increase was not maintained in 1909-10 and 1910-11. The increase was also partly due to the enhancement of duty on ganja and bhang from 1st April 1911.	The Budget, which was based on the Revised Estimate for 1910-11 and the actuals for 1909-10 was fixed at a somewhat low figure, as the rate of increase was not so marked in these years as in the previous ones. But owing to a favourable season the receipts exceeded the Budget chiefly under excise duty on country spirits, tree-tax and rents of arrack, opium and toddy shops.

Bombay . . .	1,89,73	1,92,00	2,02,94	The increase was mainly due to administrative improvements and larger consumption.	The improvement of the revenue was mainly due to administrative improvements and a larger consumption. The still head duty was raised in almost all the districts and yielded more. The consumption of liquor in certain districts increased under the stimulus of good wages and higher prices. The consumption of toddy was more popular owing to additional facilities allowed by Government. A larger quantity of opium also was consumed, and as Government bought their stocks at a cheaper rate, the net gain was more. Changes in the licenses for the retail sale of opium, by which fees were collected according to sales, brought in additional revenue On the other hand exports of Ganja were less as a result of the very large exportation in the previous year

29. The increase or decrease of revenue under this head indicates closely the growth or decline of prosperity of the population. Consumption of exciseable liquor is regarded as a luxury and increases when the population as a whole consider that they have money to spare for luxuries Thus every province contributed towards the increase (86,91) over the Actuals of 1910-11 The increase was largely due to normal growth and occurred chiefly in Madras (22,90) due to the return of normal conditions following on two bad years, the enhancement of duty on ganja and bhang and increased issues; in the Central Provinces (15,23) due to high prices obtained at the sale of vend privileges and enhanced duty or country spirits, in Bengal (14,54) due to high prices at the sale of shops consequent on a return of favourable agricultural conditions and increased duty on foreign liquor which led to larger consumption of country spirits, and in Bombay (13,21) due to enhanced still duty in nearly all districts increased consumption and better prices for sale of licenses in some districts counterbalanced by the loss consequent on the decrease in the number of opium chests diverted for home consumption and increase in the direct purchase by Government.

30. Every province except Burma also contributed towards the increase (58,40) over the Budget. The chief increases were in Bengal (13,28) Bombay (10,94), Madras (10,64), the Central Provinces (7,12) and were generally due to the causes already enumerated; the Budget not having been framed on the anticipation of such a favourable season. The increase in the United Provinces (7,06) was due to continued prosperity and reforms introduced. The Budget provided for a growth of 14,00 in Madras and 7,00 in the Central Provinces and for a moderate growth in other provinces, as it was expected the further reforms to be undertaken would check the consumption of stimulents. The actual results showed a substantial improvement

31. The receipts under License and Distillery fees and duties for the sale of Liquors and Drugs increased by 88,30 which included an increase under country spirits (including toddy and pachwai) of 76,55. Under opium including receipts from license fees and duty the gain was only 1,82. Bengal (1,62), Bombay (1,57) and the Central Provinces (1,31) were the chief contributors to the gain under license fees (5,72). The loss on transit duty (4,27) occurred almost entirely in Bombay (3,85), and was due to the smaller number of chests diverted for home consumption and increase in the direct purchase by Government.

32. The revenue from other drugs, ganja, bhang etc., was 1,13,02 as compared with 1,06,36 in 1910-11. Of the increase (6,66), an improvement of 4,55 occurred under license fees chiefly in Bengal (2,41) due to favourable season and a return to normal conditions and in the United Provinces (82) and 2,11 occurred under ganja chiefly in Madras (1,10) due to enhanced duty and increased issues and in Bengal (74).

India . . .	2	9	11	The low actuals in 1910-11 were due to advance payment in 1909-10 of pass duty on Malwa opium in order to secure priority of export.
Eastern Bengal and Assam.	17,23	17,60	17,58	The increase was due to re-valuation of lands in some of the Eastern Bengal districts.
Bengal . . .	41,54	40,00	40,56	The fall of 1,00 as compared with accounts 1910-11 was due to withholding of payment by an important Coal Co. in Manbhum pending result of an appeal against assessment (50) and realizations of arrears in 1910-11 and the decrease in voluntary payment in Mozaffarpur in 1911-12 (43). Proprietors stopped payment on coming to know that it was not obligatory to pay cess along with the Land Revenue.	A reduction was made in the Budget of 1911-12 in consideration of smaller profits on coal mines but the profits were higher than was anticipated resulting in an improvement of 75 in revenue. Against this there was a decline (18) under General rate for the management of private estates owing to the unexpected release during the year of the Hutwa and Dumraon Estates and the sale of the greater portion of the Mahatha estate.
United Provinces of Agra and Oudh.	24,05	23,76	23,74	The decrease as compared with the previous year was mainly due to the fact that Village Police charges on account of the Family Domains of the Maharaja of Benares were no longer paid by Goverment and subsequently recovered as Cess. Release of certain Court of Wards' estates also contributed towards the fall in revenue to a small extent.

Central Provinces	2,08	2,10	2,52	The normal growth of custom revenue, taking the actuals of the last four years, averaged about 11, the large increase of 44 in 1911-12 was attributed to the successful working of mills in certain districts on account of excellent cotton crops.	The improvement was due to the cause described under Actuals.
Burma	1,65,77	1,58,12	1,69,65	Compared with the actuals of 1910-11, the increase was chiefly due to larger receipts obtained from duty on cotton manufacture, manufactured articles, raw materials, articles of food and drink, tobacco, and petroleum, partly counterbalanced by a fall under spirits, liqueurs and sugar	Compared with the Budget, the improvement was mainly due to larger receipts from duty on cotton manufactures, manufactured articles, petroleum and tobacco and to heavy exports of rice to the Straits, Java and Japan.
Eastern Bengal and Assam.	1 29	1,50	1,61	The increase in revenue occurred principally under Import Duties on (1) Articles of food and drink, (2) Chemicals, drugs, etc., (3) Sugar, (4) Cotton manufactures and (5) Manufactured metals. The Collector of Customs, Chittagong, reported that the rise under (1) and (2) was due to the proprietors of Chemists' Firms and Managers of Assam Tea Gardens obtaining their supplies direct from Europe instead of from Calcutta. The improvement under (3) was due to the low price of Java Sugar and that under (4) and (5) to the genreal prosperity of the people.	The growing demand for Cotton Goods of European Manufacture and manufactured metals was underestimated when the Budget was prepared.
Bengal	2,74,81	2,73,32	2,96,21	The improvement of 21,40 over the actuals 1910-11 included 8,71 contributed by Petroleum, the lowering of prices in the recent rate war between the Standard Oil Company and the Royal Dutch Shell Transport Combination having enabled the foreign oil to recover a portion of the lost ground, a special receipt of 5,80 resulting from the Coronation Durbar and (2,76 under Liquors, 3,04 under manufactured articles), 6,91 by duty on cotton goods owing to favourable conditions coupled by a large fall in the price of raw materials, 4,98 from Export duty on rice due to strong demand for Bengal rice caused by diversion of Burma rice to meet the famine in the Far East and drought in Europe. Increases of 1,49 occurred under Metals and of 1,28 also under Silver owing to speculative operations controlled from Bombay. Against these, there was a decline of 4,97 under Sugar resulting from the diversion of Java sugar to Europe caused by scarcity and high prices prevailing there, and 3,16 under Tobacco owing to the rapid development of the local cigarette industry.	In the Budget, allowance was made for a small increase of 2,00 over the Revised Estimate of 2,71,00 originally adopted for 1910-11. An increase of 1,50 under Tobacco, 1,50 under Cotton manufactures, 1,00 under Sugar, etc., was anticipated, while a very cautious Estimate was made for the duty on silver which was expected to fall by 2,00. A decrease of 1,00 under manufactured articles was balanced by small increases under other heads. In the actual results duty under both Sugar and Tobacco declined considerably (6,43 and 4,38 respectively), considerable improvement occurred under Petroleum (8,80), Cotton goods (7,56), Rice (4,98), Silver (1,57), and there was an exceptional receipt of 7,00 resulting from the importation of liquors and manufactured articles in connection with the Coronation festivities.
Punjab	7	8	11	......	The increase chiefly occurred in the Lahore District and was due to an under-estimate.

Madras . . .	73,75	74,50	79,71	Increase was due to larger importation of cotton goods and manufactured articles, to larger clearance from bond of spirits and liqueurs, to larger exports to Ceylon and the Reunion in place of the Burma trade and to larger exportation of kerosine oil viâ Pondicherry and Karikal.	Increase due to larger importation of cotton goods and manufactured articles, to larger clearances from bond of spirits and liqueurs and to larger exports of rice and paddy to Ceylon and the Reunion on account of the diversion of the Burma trade from those markets.
Bombay . . .	4,73,26	4,20,57	4,18,64	The decrease as compared with the actuals of the previous year was mainly under Sea Customs—Imports, which was partially covered by an excess under Excise duty on cotton manufactures. The falling off was chiefly in the imports of silver bullion, sugar and metals. It was explained that the realizations of the specific duty of annas 4 per oz. on Silver were affected by the conversion of the large quantity of bar silver into Dollars, on which under special arrangements with the Mint no duty was charged, and yielded about 65,00 as against 1,30,00 in 1910-11. Imports of sugar were contracted owing to the failure of the Continental beet crop. Stocks of beet were practically depleted and the high prices attracted cane-sugar from every quarter and Mauritius sugar purchased for Indian consumption was diverted westward. Under Metals the decline was partly due to large stocks of Copper at the close of the year 1910-11 and partly to advance in prices of copper in the second half of the year all over the world, the result being that the imports by Indian buyers were restricted. Imports of petroleum, however, greatly increased owing to keen competition by American Companies in reducing the rates.	The decrease was due to the same causes described under Actuals.

34. The actuals were 22,56 worse than the actuals of 1910-11 but were 38,19 better than the Budget. The decrease as compared with actuals was the result of a decrease under Bombay (54,62) due to less receipts from silver bullion (66,44), sugar and metals, counterbalanced by larger receipts from petroleum, manufactured articles, cotton piece goods, spirits and liqueurs and articles of food and drink and an increase under Bengal (21,40) due to larger receipts from petroleum, cotton goods, rice, manufactured articles and liquors and less receipts from sugar and tobacco.

35. The increase over the Budget occurred under Bengal (22,89) due to the causes already described and under Burma (11,53) due to larger receipts from cotton manufactures, manufactured articles, petroleum, tobacco and heavy exports of rice.

36. As compared with the Budget, the actuals showed an increase under petroleum (15,69) cotton manufactures (14,16), manufactured goods (11,54) and excise duty on cotton goods (7,79) and a decrease under sugar (ordinary duties) (11,66), tobacco (8,12) and metals excluding Silver Bullion and Coin (4,75). The Coronation Durbar was responsible for an exceptional receipt of 7,00 under liquor and manufactured articles.

India . . .	22,94	23,15	24,16	The increase as compared with the previous year was chiefly due to Departmental variations and to the recovery of certain arrears in Ajmer.	.
Central Provinces	6,32	6,4[illegible]	7,06	For normal years the standard growth of revenue works out to about 23. The difference between the actuals of 1911-12 and 1910-11 was 74, which was accounted for mainly by the improvement in the method of assessment sanctioned by the Local Administration in 1911-12.	The increase over the Budget was due to the cause shown under Actuals, the orders of the Local Administration having been received after the Budget was framed.
Burma . . .	19,36	19,62	19,40	....	In comparison with the Budget the decrease occurred mainly under Ordinary Collections, the reason assigned being depression of trade and contraction of credit chiefly in the Pegu and Tenasserim divisions, and under Deductions by local authorities from salaries and pensions owing to the reduction in the working staff of the Rangoon Port Commissioners as well as the transfer of the District Cess Fund Works of several districts to the Public Works Department.
Eastern Bengal and Assam	12,60	12,84	1[illegible],97	The revenue in 1910-11 did not reach expectations owing to the weak state of the jute market in certain divisions during that year. In 1911-12 the jute trade was prosperous and a more than normal increase in revenue occurred.	The prosperity of the jute trade which had not been fully allowed for in the Budget caused the excess in receipts.
Bengal . .	51,21	55,62	57,76	The increase was due to normal growth and arrear collections.	The Budget allowed for a normal growth of about 1,50 under Ordinary Collections and included recoveries from the Delhi-Umbala-Kalka Railway. The latter were however adjusted in the books of the Examiner, Railway Accounts, Calcutta. The normal growth was 1,25 and arrear collections due to late assessment of some limited Cos. amounted to 65. but there was a falling off of 28 in consequence of the depression in the coal, jute and gunny trades.
United Provinces of Agra and Oudh	23,67	24,10	24,16	The revenue increased from 21,13 to 23,67 in the five years from 1905-06 to 1910-11, an average of 50 per annum, which was practically maintained in the year under report.
Punjab . .	15,60	16,42	16,22	As compared with 1910-11, the increase was due to the fact that trade was good during that year and the estimate of the assessment for 1911-12 was based on that fact.	The decrease was due to an over-estimate.
North West Frontier Province.	1,38	1,38	1,43	The increase was due to a rise in the number of assessees in the Peshawar and Kohat Districts

Bombay . . .	51 07	49,02	54,30	The large increase in the revenue was not only the result of improved trade but reflects the greater efficiency of the Income Tax Department, assessment and collection being both improved under the recent arrangements. 37 The receipts of the year were better than in 1910-11 by 8,93 and than the Budget by 7,42. All provinces contributed to the increased over actuals, which was mainly due to normal growth, a prosperous year and improved trade conditions The largest increases were in Bombay (2,63) due to improved trade and increased efficiency in assessment and collection, in Bengal (1,55) due to normal growth and some arrear collections and in India (1 22) due to increased receipts from the various departments. As compared with the Budget the increases were chiefly under Bombay (5,28) and India (1,01) due to the causes already described.

				Actuals, 1910-11.	Budget, 1911-12.
India . . .	7,63	8,[illegible]6	8,80	The improvement as compared with the actuals of the preceding year was due chiefly to better prices obtained for teak wood and padouk timber in Coorg and Port Blair respectively.	Same remarks as against Actuals.
Central Provinces	21,14	22,50	25,50	Owing to the abnormal fluctuations of revenue under this head for the past few years, it was not possible to work out accurately the average growth or deterioration. The revenue decreased annually prior to 1910-11 on account of years of scarcity, exhaustion of C class forests and exemption of calves from grazing dues. With better seasons and increased activity in the Department, there has, however, been a genuine development in some Divisions, which together with the supply of grass to the Bombay Presidency, worth about 1,15, swelled the receipts of 1911-12	The actuals included 1,15 on account of grass supplied to the Bombay Presidency and which was not budgetted for as the demand was not anticipated at the time. The balance of the increase was partly due to an under-estimate and partly to development of income in the Northern Circle under the head Departmental Timber Operations and in the Berar Circle under the head Receipts from Grass and Grazing
Burma . .	1,01,08	1,02,19	99,68	Compared with the actuals of 1910-11, the decrease was mainly due to the failure to collect 3,01 due from the lessees of the Mergui Rubber Plantations and to smaller receipts from lessees' timber in the Northern and Southern Circles, partly counterbalanced by increased sales of timber from the Government Timber Depôt, Rangoon, and by the extension of the departmental supply of fuel to Government launches.	In comparison with the budget, the decrease was mainly due to the non-realisation of 8,00 payable by the lessees of the Mergui Rubber Plantations, to the falling-off in revenue from lessees' timber, to an over estimate of the revenue realizable from foreign timber in the Kado and Agency Divisions of the Tenasserim Circle, to smaller receipts from the Kheddah Department owing to the sale of a smaller number of elephants, partly counterbalanced by the larger royalty on teak paid in the Prome Division and larger extraction of timber from unclassed forests
Eastern Bengal and Assam	18,91	17,68	17,79	A decrease of 2,10 under Timber and other produce removed from the Forests by Government Agency was due almost entirely to large advance payments received in 1910-11 from the Eastern Bengal State Railway and the Engineer-in-Chief Lower Ganges Bridge on account of sleepers and other scantlings supplied from the Goalpara division during 1911-12 There was also a decrease of 21 under other receipts which was attributed in part to the disturbing influence of the Abor Expedition in the Lakhimpur Division. An increase of 1,22 under Timber and other produce removed from the Forest by Consumers and Purchasers was due mainly to the exploitation by traders of the reserved forests of the Jalpaiguri, Buxa and Goalpara Divisions (the coupes in the last named division having been closed in the previous year).	The actual receipts from Timber and other produce removed from Forests by Government Agency fell short of the estimate by 1,30 mainly owing to transport difficulties in the Goalpara Division and the consequent failure to complete sales originally proposed. This was, however, rather more than counterbalanced by an excess of 1,45 under Timber and other produce removed from Forests by Consumers and Purchasers due to large exploitation of the reserved forests in the Jalpaiguri, Buxa and Goalpara Divisions. The falling off under the former head was in marked contrast to the rise which had taken place previously the receipts having more than doubled in the five years from 1906-07 to 1910-11.

Bengal .	11,67	.2 50	11,22	The actuals were slightly less than those of 1910-11 owing chiefly to short extraction of fire-wood (29) in Sunderbans arising from tiger-scares and of timber (8).	Budget provided for an increase of 55 on account of normal growth under, Timber and Fire-wood removed by Consumers and Purchasers and of 27 on account of the proposal to work the removal of timber in Angul by Government Agency. There was however a fall under Timber and Firewood removed by Purchasers, etc. owing to tiger-scares in Sunderban and the departmental extraction in Angul was reduced in favour of extraction by purchasers.
United Provinces of Agra and Oudh.	23,79	25,00	30,16	As compared with 1910-11 the actuals showed an improvement of 3,93 in the Eastern Circle and of 2,45 in the Western Circle. In both circles receipts from timber and bamboos were better owing to higher prices fetched at auction sales and to the disposal in the Eastern Circle of a very large quantity of trees killed by the drought of 1908. There was a greater demand for fuel especially in the Eastern and for turpentine and resin in the Western Circle.	The causes enumerated against Actuals also accounted in the main for the improvement as compared with the Budget.
Punjab	12,18	12,23	13,10	The increase over 1910-11 was mainly due to the refund of contributions for maintenance of roads and bridges in the Bashahr division by the Public Works Department as well as increased receipts of salvage fees on traders' timber, rafting fees and compensation counterbalanced by smaller receipts from sale of trees in the Bashahr division.	The improvement was due to larger sales of standing trees in Kangra and Kulu, to better prices having been realized owing to the development of the 'Chir' charcoal industry, to the sale of trees in the Hamirpur range where fellings had been held in abeyance for several years, to larger sales of fire-wood from areas which came under the colonization scheme in the Montgomery and Multan divisions, to better prices obtainted from 'Van' firewood in Chenab division, to the sale of Kala Chitta coupes to purchasers, to the refund of contributions for maintenance of roads and bridges in the Bashahr division by the Public Works Department, to the realization of fees from the Patriata rope-way, to increased receipts on account of salvage fees and to an increase in the number of compensation cases and to a decrease due to the fall in the value of the Patriata rope-way, to felling of Kala Chitta coupes by purchasers, to short sales at Changa Manga owing to fall in prices and shortage of wagons and to decrease in the sale of turpentine.
North-West Frontier Province	2,05	1,61	1,58	As compared with 1910-11, the decrease was chiefly due to the recovery of 10 only on account of Hazara timber sold in Jhelum instead of the fixed contribution of 76, counter-balanced partly by increase due to larger sale of trees in the Dunga Galli and Thandiani Range and higher receipts for firewood supplied to troops in the Gallies.	Total actuals closely followed the Budget with variations under the Minor heads. The decrease was due to the sale of trees in the Jhelum circle of the Thandiani Range not having been effected, counter-balanced to some extent by higher receipts on account of seigniorage and fines.

Madras	38,80	40,00	41,69	Increase was due to increased revenue from sale of trees on darkast and poramboke lands to better demand for timber from Rampa forests, to the sale of coupes standing to contractors, to higher prices obtained for casuarina coupes and to better crops and prices and keener competition for miscellaneous produce and greater demand for road material	Increase occurred chiefly under Timber and Fire-wood and Charcoal removed by Consumers or Purchasers, due mainly to increased revenue from the sale of trees on darkast and poramboke lands, to leasing out of fuel and bamboo coupes standing to contractors and to realization of arrear kumri rents, under Other Receipts, and to an increase in the number of compounded cases.
Bombay	37,18	37,70	43,31	The following were the figures of the revenue and expenditure of the Bombay Forest Department during the two years - Revenue / Expenditure / Net Revenue 1910-11 . 37,18 / 20,70 / 16,48 1911-12 . 43,31 / 26,64 / 16,67 Excluding the figures of receipts and charges on account of Famine Grass Operations the Forest revenue showed a net advance of 74 over that in 1910-11 after covering the increased cost of collections (2,32) which was due chiefly to the introduction of the reorganization of the Subordinate Forest Service, time-scale of pay to the Provincial Forest Service and payments of Royal Bonus and Grain Compensation allowances The increase in revenue was mainly due to the timber and firewood coupes in the Northern Circle having fetched better prices Owing to scarcity of fodder higher prices were obtained for grass lands, more grass was removed from forests and large receipts came in from grazing fees in the Central Circle The improvement would have been still greater, but for the decrease in revenue in the Southern Circle, as owing to the failure of contractors to bring to the depôts the timber arranged for much of the expected timber sales could not be effected.	Excluding the special receipts (3,06) on account of Famine Grass Operations, the actuals showed an advance of 2,55 over the Budget This was mainly due to the timber and firewood coupes having fetched better prices. Owing to scarcity of fodder higher prices were obtained for grass lands, more grass was removed from forests and larger receipts came in from grazing fees. Collections of Mhowra seed and Hirda were higher than expected. The demand for bamboos and other minor produce showed a general increase The improvement would have been still greater but for decrease in revenue in the Southern Circle, as owing to the failure of the contractors to bring to depôts the full quantity of timber, budgetted for, much of the timber could not be sold. The Railway Company also failed to inspect in time, for delivery during the year the sleepers that were ready.

38. Excluding the special receipt of 4,50 in Burma on account of the instalment of the sale price of the Mergui Rubber Plantations from the actuals of 1910-11 and the similar receipt of 1,50 from the actuals of 1911-12, there was an improvement of 21,40 This figure, however, included the unexpected receipt in Bombay (3,06) and the Central Provinces (1,15) on account of Famine Grass Operations, and in the United Provinces on account of the disposal of a very large quantity of trees killed by the drought of 1908 The increases included in the improvement occurred mainly in these three Provinces, and besides the causes stated, were due in the United Provinces (6,38) to higher prices obtained at auction sales for timber and bamboos, and greater demand for fuel, turpentine and rosin ; in Bombay (6,13) to better prices obtained for timber and firewood coupes and to better receipts in connection with grass and grazing fees, and in the Central Provinces (4,36) due to general development consequent on a better season and increased activity. There was an increase also in Madras (2,89) due to better prices and greater demand.

39. The Budget provided for a receipt of 4,50 on account of the sale-proceeds of the Mergui Rubber Plantations. Only 1,50 of this was realized. Excluding these special receipts, the improvement over the Budget was 16,00. As in the comparison made above the increases occurred chiefly in Bombay (5,61), United Provinces (5,16) and Central Provinces (3,00) and Madras (1,69) and were accounted for generally in a similar way. In Bengal a normal growth of 55 and an improvement of 27 for timber worked by Government Agency was expected but there was a decrease of 1,28 due chiefly to the departmental extraction of timber being reduced in favour of extraction by purchasers and to tiger scares in the Sunderbans.

India . . .	25	23	27
Central Provinces .	3,23	3,25	3,49	The increase was about normal.	The Budget was under-estimated. A rise in the volume of registration business in Berar accounted for the increase in the actuals.
Burma . . .	2,00	1,86	2,02	......	The increase over the Budget was due to larger receipts from compulsory registrations affecting immoveable property and from instruments of sale and mortgage.
Eastern Bengal and Assam.	9,67	9,75	10,59	The increase in receipts occurred under Fees for registering documents and was partially explained by the opening of some new Registration offices.	Same remarks as for Actuals.
Bengal . . .	12,59	13,26	12,98	The increase of 39 over the actuals of 1910-11 was not much below the average growth of 50 a year.	Budget allowed for an increase of 50 over the Revised (12,75) originally adopted for 1910-11. But the expansion in the work of Registration in 1910-11 arising from general economic progress did not keep pace with the contraction caused by returning agricultural prosperity and the fall in prices: the revival of commercial activity in that year was not as great as was anticipated and the actuals fell to 12,59. Budget for 1911-12, therefore proved high.
United Provinces of Agra and Oudh.	5,07	5,50	5,95	......	Budget placed the revenue below that of the previous year which was abnormal in consequence of the renewal of a large number of deeds in view of the termination on the 7th August 1910 of the two years' grace extended by the Limitation Act (IX) of 1908 to mortgage suits otherwise time-barred. The receipts, however, exceeded expectations, the increase under Miscellaneous being attributable to an order of the High Court which made it incumbent on decree holders who desired to bring property to sale to satisfy themselves about encumbrances on the property and to pay the usual fees. Formerly this was done for them free of charge.
Punjab . . .	3,00	3,04	3,16	... .	The increase was due to a larger number of documents having been registered than was anticipated in the Budget. This was a fluctuating head.
North West Frontier Province.	34	42	41	As compared with the actuals for 1910-11 the increase was chiefly under the head Fees for Registering documents and was due to the enhanced number and value of instruments registered during the year 1911-12 chiefly in the Peshawar District.	......
Madras . . .	19,28	19,80	20,58	Increase was due to unfavourable seasons and the opening of new offices.	Increase was due to the opening of new registration offices during the year and to unfavourable seasons or untimely rains in certain districts.

Bombay	7,55	7,45	7,43	There was a special receipt of 19 in 1910-11 for registering the Vesting Order relating to the properties of the Indian Institute of Science. Allowing for this there was a small increase in revenue due to extension of Registration in Sind. The increase would have been more but for the abolition of Village Registration in the Deccan.	There was an increase of 20 in Sind due to steady increase since 1908 owing to the application of the Transfer of Property Act of 1882, to that Province. This was, however, almost nullified by the decrease consequent on the abolition of village registration in the four Deccan districts.

40 The normal growth under this head referred to last year was maintained and there was an increase as compared both with previous year's actuals (3,00) and with the Budget (2,32) The increase as compared with the actuals was most marked in Madras (1,30), due to an unfavourable season and the opening of new offices; this latter cause also partly accounted for the increase in Eastern Bengal and Assam (92) The increase as compared with the Budget was mainly in Eastern Bengal (81) and Madras (78) and was due to the same causes The Budget allowed for important growth of revenue in Bengal and Madras While the increase was more than realised in Madras, there was a falling off in Bengal (28), due to the fact that the Budget allowed for an increase of 50, the estimated normal growth over the revised estimate figures (12,75) of 1910-11 The actuals in that year, however, realized only 12,59 and compared with this, the increase actually obtained was 39 instead of 50

India	22,58	20,12	21,34	Variation under succession fees (74) and the suspension of part of the tribute due from Bundi (57) contributed chiefly to the decrease as compared with the actuals of the preceding year.	Old arrears aggregating 1,90 which were not provided for in absence of definite information about their realization, were recovered from Jaora and other States. On the other hand, an instalment of 57 payable by Bundi in 1911-12 was suspended, and the Royal announcement at the Coronation Durbar abolishing Fees on succession to Native States resulted in a decrease (11) under this head The net result of these variations produced the increase (1,22) as compared with the Budget
Central Provinces	2,42	2,30	2,36	Amounts were recovered in advance in the year 1910-11.	Recovery of 4 from the Raigarh State in 1910-11 instead of in 1911-12, as anticipated when the budget was framed, caused the reduction in the actuals.
Burma	4,12	3,08	4,31		The Budget allowed for a remission of part of the tributes from the Shan States and the increase over the Budget was due to realization of the full amount of the tribute fixed, partly counterbalanced by the fact that the tribute payable by the Mong Mit State was not credited during the year.
Eastern Bengal and Assam.	50	50	50
Bengal	52	52	52
United Provinces of Agra and Oudh.	...	1,90	3,13	The increase was due to the payment of tribute by the newly constituted Benares State and to the tribute from the Kapurthala State being paid into the Bahraich Treasury instead of into a Punjab Treasury.	Budget did not provide for the tribute from the Kapurthala State which, under an arrangement recently approved by the Local Government, was paid into the Bahraich treasury instead of, as formerly, into a Punjab treasury The increase thus caused was partly counterbalanced by a short payment of 8 by the newly constituted Benares State which has been made good in 1912-13.
Punjab	2,77	2,76	1,18	The decrease was due to the payment of the Kapurthala State tribute (1,31) into the Bahraich treasury of the United Provinces with effect from the year 1911-12	The transfer of payment referred to under Actuals accounted for the decrease.
Madras	44,97	44,97	44,97
Bombay	13,24	16,59	10,61	The decrease was due to the postponement in consequence of famine of the payment of certain tributes partly counterbalanced by the recovery of arrear Nazarana (47) due by the Limbdi State.	In consequence chiefly of the unfavourable season, in Káthiáwár, the recoveries of tributes and contributions due from certain Native States (3,18) were postponed, while 2,80 being the aggregate of the amount of Nazarana due from certain States were remitted as a Durbar concession.

XI.—Tributes from Native States—concld.

41 The decrease (1,87) as compared with the actuals of 1910-11 was the result chiefly of decreases under Bombay (2,63) due to postponement of the payment of tributes and contributions by certain Native States, counterbalanced by the recovery of arrears of Nazarana due by the Limdi State and under India (1,24) due to smaller succession fees and the postponement of payment of tributes by the Bundi State and to the fact that the previous year's actuals included similar arrears from the same State and an increase under the United Provinces (1,82) due to the payment of tribute by the newly constituted Benares State.

42 The main cause of the decrease as compared with the Budget (3,58) was the announcement made at the Coronation Durbar, that no Nazarana would henceforth be payable by Indian Princes upon succession to their States. This resulted in a decrease to the extent of 2,91. The other causes of the decrease are explained below. In Bombay, there was a decrease of 3,18 due to the postponement of payment of tributes and contributions by certain Native States owing to unfavourable season In Burma, however, there was an increase of 1,26 due to the receipt of the full tributes from the Shan States whereas a remission had been anticipated in the Budget and in India, an increase of 1,22, the result of the recovery of arrears of contribution payable by the Jaora State and the postponement of payment of part of the tribute due from the Bundi State.

India	74,02	67,61	71,69	The high actuals in the preceding year were due to the inclusion of the interest on overdraft by the Indian Midland Railway purchased by Government on 1st January 1911.	Increase over the Budget was due chiefly to larger overdraft of Capital by the Bengal Nagpur Railway in connection with the old extensions undertaken under the contract of 1902.
Central Provinces	2,53	1,85	2,17	Continued liquidation of the outstanding loans, which were heavy in 1910-11, accounted for the decrease.	The Budget was fixed low under the heads Interest on Land Improvement Loans and Interest on Agriculturists' Loans.
Burma	1,09	1,14	1,27	The increase was due to larger outstanding balance of advances made to cultivators in 1910-11 and 1911-12, and to larger receipts on account of interest on fresh loans taken by certain Municipalities.	The increase was mainly due to larger outstanding balance of advances made to cultivators in 1910-11 and 1911-12.
Eastern Bengal and Assam.	1,73	1,67	1,61	The fall in receipts compared with 1910-11 was mainly under Advances granted to cultivators under which head the balance of loans outstanding was much lower than in the previous year, the balance on 1st April 1911 being 8,11 against 10,60 on the corresponding date in 1910.	The decrease was due to the earlier repayment of loans granted to cultivators than was anticipated.
Bengal	19,78	18,1[illegible]	19,82	The actuals of 1910-11 were nearly maintained in the aggregate, arrear recovery from the Calcutta Port Fund having been set off by a diminution of recovery from cultivators (17), owing to gradual reduction of outstandings, and by smaller payment by the Maharaja Tagore (13).	Budget proved low as it did not provide for the arrear recovery (10) from the Calcutta Port Fund and the recoveries from cultivators were based, as usual, on the outstanding mean balance of the loans proposed for the year 1911-12 (as advised by Government), while the actual realizations were in respect of loans advanced in previous years.
United Provinces of Agra and Oudh	16,00	11,04	13,68	In 1910-11 the receipts from loans to agricultural classes were 2,26 higher consequent on larger outstandings at the end of the previous year.	Outstandings on account of loans to agricultural classes brought forward from 1910-11 were higher than originally contemplated. This coupled with larger advances on the same account consequent on unfavourable season and the grant of a special loan to the Murarmau estate was mainly responsible for the improvement under this head. The increase was, however, counterbalanced to a certain extent by the grant for loans to Municipalities not having been fully utilized and by recoveries from the loan granted to the United Provinces Exhibition Committee not coming up to the amount expected.
Punjab	3,22	3,11	2,93	The reasons set forth in the column for Budget also chiefly accounted for the decrease below 1910-11.	The decrease was due partly to non-recovery of 16 from the Delhi and Dera Ghazi Khan Municipalities in 1911-12 and partly to smaller recoveries under Advances to cultivators due to the failure of the Kharif harvest, counterbalanced by an increase on account of recovery of interest on the unpaid portion of purchase money due from the purchasers of proprietary rights at Lyallpur.
North-West Frontier Province.	18	12	16	......	The increase was due to larger recoveries in the Kohat District than were anticipated.
Madras	9,64	9,65	9,81	......	Increase over Budget was mainly due to increased recoveries of interest on Land Improvement and Agricultural loans, the budget under which was under-estimated.

Bombay	2,·81	29,58	25,72	The decrease was mainly due to remissions of loans due by States and Thana Circles in Kathiawar and Gujarat as a Durbar concession and to the falling off in the receipts from cultivators owing to an unfavourable season.	The decline was chiefly due to short recoveries of interest (2,81) consequent on the remission of loans as a Darbar boon to the several petty States in Kathiawar and Gujarat, short recoveries from the cultivators on Tagai Advances (89) owing to prevailing scarcity in parts of the Presidency, and smaller recoveries from Municipalities owing to the loan of 3,00 proposed to the Sholapur Municipality not having been taken up A provision of 55 was made under this head for interest due by the City Improvement Trust under Section 68 (i) of the Act, but the receipt was credited to "XXV--Miscellaneous"—Extraordinary items (Imperial). 43 In the Indian portion of the accounts there was a decrease (9,24) as compared with the receipts of 1910-11 The falling off occurred chiefly in Bombay (4,09) due to smaller receipts from cultivators owing to an unfavourable season and to the remission of certain loans due by States and Thana Circles in Kathiawar and Gujarat as a Durbar concession; in the United Provinces (2,42) due to smaller balances of outstanding loans and in India (2,33) due to the fact that, by the purchase by Government of the Indian Midland Railway in January 1911, the interest formerly realized from this railway was excluded.

44 The receipts were, however, better than was anticipated in the Budget (4,82) This was chiefly due to increases in India (4,08) due to a larger overdraft of Capital by the Bengal Nagpur Railway in connection with old extensions undertaken under the contract of 1902 and in the United Provinces (2,54) and Bengal (1,65) due mainly to a larger outstanding balance of loans to agricultural classes than was anticipated The Durbar concessions in respect of the remissions of certain loans in Kathiawar and Gujarat and the transfer of the credits due by the City Improvement Trust to the head Miscellaneous were largely responsible for a less receipt under Bombay (3,86)

45 The improvement in the English portion of the accounts on the estimate (£239,6) was again very considerable. It was due to larger sums being available for investment and a higher rate of interest than was anticipated. The receipts from the investments of two crores of rupees for the Paper Currency Reserve were also better, owing to the low price at which consols were purchased.

46 The increase over the actuals of the previous year (20,60) was due to normal expansion, to special receipts in connection with the Coronation Durbar and to better receipts from the sale of ordinary postage and unified stamps, due to compulsory insurance from October 1911 of registered covers containing Currency Notes The normal expansion of the Departmental revenue and the special receipts in connection with the Durbar were anticipated in the Budget. The revenue realized from the sale of postage and unified stamps (ordinary) was abnormally high, on account of unusual increase in the telegraph share of the stamp revenue due to increased traffic in connection with labour troubles in England, the Turko-Italian War, the Morocco Crisis, the Chinese Rebellion and the Coronation Durbar. As the Post Office share was not affected by the increase in telegraphic traffic, the total actuals did not differ materially from the Budget forecast

Indian Telegraph receipts from message revenue improved (6,91) owing mainly to increased traffic in consequence of labour troubles in England, the Turko-Italian War, the Chinese Rebellion, the Morocco Crisis and the Coronation Durbar, but owing to the disturbed conditions prevailing in Persia there was practically no improvement in receipts from message revenue of the Indo-European Telegraph Department.

United Provinces of Agra and Oudh	6,16	5 94	6,49	The increase was due mainly to higher receipts from fines and forfeitures in Magisterial courts.	Higher receipts from fines and forfeitures in Magisterial Courts and larger realizations from sale of unclaimed and escheated property almost entirely accounted for the improvement over the Budget.
Punjab	4,36	4,25	4,35	...	The increase occurred under Magisterial Fines, which is a fluctuating head partly counterbalanced by a decrease under Record Office Receipts owing to the fact that fees for inspection of records were generally paid in stamps. The change was introduced with effect from 1st July 1910 but its effect could not be foreseen very exactly.

Madras	9,45	9,00	9,22	There were less receipts under Printing and Translation fees of the High Court and Pleadership Examination fees. 50 There was a decrease this year in Madras (23) due to less receipts under Translation and Printing fees of the High Court and the abolition of the second grade Pleadership examinations The general growth under fees, fines and forfeitures continued and was responsible, with the copying fee income referred to, for the increase over the Budget (3,11).

India . . .	3,28	3,15	3,50	The increase as compared with the actuals of the preceding year was due chiefly to increasing receipts from the Convict Settlement in Port Blair.	Same remarks as in the column for Actuals.
Central Provinces .	2,00	2,27	2,28	The increase was due to larger sales of jail manufactured articles in 1911-12, partially counterbalanced by lower receipts on account of hire of convict labour and for maintenance of Native State prisoners.	...
Burma . . .	3,95	4,00	4,34	Less stock of raw materials and larger sales to Government Departments accounted for the increase.	The improvement in receipts was due to the stock of raw materials being less at the close of the year than at the commencement, to smaller amounts being due to the Jails on account of outstanding bills and to the consuming departments of Government having made larger purchases.
Eastern Bengal and Assam.	2,77	3,08	3,24	The difference was accounted for by an increase of 55 under Sale Proceeds of Jail Manufactures partly counterbalanced by a falling off of 8 under Jails, under which head the figures for 1910-11 were abnormally high on account of Jail labour supplied to the Public Works Department for manufacture of bricks in Barisal. The enhanced revenue from Sale Proceeds was largely due to realisation of outstanding dues of 30 in the Dacca Central Jail	The actuals fell short of the Budget by 44 under Sale Proceeds of Manufacture. The Budget figure was proposed in view of the provision made under Jail Manufactures on the Expenditure side The falling off in receipts might be attributed to the failure to utilize 51 provided for European Stores and Machinery.
Bengal . . .	9,42	9,11	10,52	The increase was due to the supply of tents, etc., for the Coronation Durbar	Budget was kept low as a dearth of orders, from the Military Department for tents, etc., was apprehended as in the previous year.
United Provinces of Agra and Oudh.	3,39	3,71	3,63	Compared with 1910-11 receipts from sale of quinine were lower by 24 but those from sale of other manufactures better by 49.	Receipts from sale of quinine did not come up to expectations; otherwise the Budget was practically realized.
Punjab . . .	2,82	2,64	3,41	Increase occurred in the demand for Jail manufactures	The increase was partly due to the constantly increasing demand for Jail manufactures by Government offices and the unexpected demand for carpets and tents for the Delhi Durbar and partly to larger receipts for hire of convicts consequent on the acceleration of the Canal excavation work at Montgomery.
North-West Frontier Province.	23	21	25	..	...
Madras . .	5,51	4,80	4,64	The high actuals of 1910-11 were due to large orders from the Police Department.	Decrease was due to the earnings of the presses of the Madras Penitentiary and of the Cannanore and Coimbatore Jails having been credited to XXIII.—Stationery and Printing; to lack of orders from the consuming departments of Government and to the employment of smaller number of convicts on manufactures.
Bombay . . .	2,30	2,40	2,19	The decrease was due to a smaller quantity of metal actually disposed of by the Sind Convict Gang and smaller recoveries of Jail charges from Native States.	The decline was due to a smaller quantity of metal actually disposed of by the Sind Convict Gang, a large quantity having remained on hand. The net profit earned by Prison Factories was also less owing to higher rates paid for twist. A large stock of raw material also remained on hand.

51. The increase as compared with previous actuals (2,33) and the Budget (2 00) was due mainly to larger demand for Jail supplies. In Bengal and the Punjab the demand for tents and carpets for the Coronation Durbar helped to increase the receipts. In Madras there was a decrease (87) in comparison with the actuals due to large orders from the Police Department in the previous year.

Central Provinces .	34	30	33	The actuals of 1910-11 were high owing to an adjustment of 4 on account of Police deputed to the Bastar State for the suppression of the disturbance in that State.
Burma . . .	2,23	2,15	2,79	The recoveries on account of the cost of punitive police made from the Sagaing, Lower Chindwin and Shwebo Districts, coupled with larger receipts under fines and forfeitures, mainly accounted for the improvement.	Same remarks as in the column for Actuals.
Eastern Bengal and Assam.	1,90	1,36	1,43	Receipts from Fees, Fines and Forfeitures decreased by (22). Receipts on account of Police supplied to Public Departments, Private companies and persons fell off (19) although expenditure on this account increased. This was due mainly to the extra police posted to Munshiganj and Madaripur during the course of the year for which recoveries fell into arrears.	Receipts on account of Police supplied to Public Departments, Private companies and persons fell short of the estimate by (8) owing to accumulation of arrears due for Police posted to Munshiganj and Madaripur during the course of the year. This was however more than counterbalanced by an excess (14) under Miscellaneous Receipts.
Bengal . . .	1,87	1,74	1,94	......	With the decrease in political crime smaller provision was made for recoveries for punitive police but the outbreak of a riot between Namasudras and Mussalmans in Jessore and Khulna necessitated the posting of punitive police in those districts which accounted for the increase in actuals.
United Provinces of Agra and Oudh	91	93	91
Punjab	5,81	5,61	1,79	The decrease was due to the remission of contribution recovered from Municipal Committees toward Police charges, and to higher receipts on account of Punitive Police in 1910-11.	The decrease was mainly due to the remission of contributions recovered from Municipal Committees towards Police charges, counterbalanced to some extent by an increase under Police supplied to Public Departments, etc., due to an unexpected call for the service of the Police, as also by an increase under Fees, Fines and Forfeitures, a fluctuating head.

The decrease is due to the abolition of the contributions recoverable from Municipalities on account of Police charges.
Madras . . .	4,65	4,80	4,75	Increase occurred chiefly under fines on stray cattle.	Decrease below budget was chiefly under cattle pound receipts. The decrease as compared with the Budget was mainly due to the provision for the recovery of charges on account of the Additional Mounted Police proposed for the Kaira District not having been realised, as the proposal was not finally sanctioned by Government.

52. The decrease as compared with the actuals of 1910-11 (4,89) and with the Budget (4,25) was due chiefly to the remission of contributions recoverable from Municipalities in the Punjab and North-West Frontier Province for Police supplied to them. The imposition of punitive police in the Sagaing, Lower Chindwin, and Shwebo Districts increased the receipts in Burma both as compared with previous actuals (56) and the Budget (64), while the decrease in Bombay (65) as compared with the Budget was due to the proposal for additional mounted Police for Khaira District not having been sanctioned.

Burma	5,01	4,54	4,83	The decrease was due to the reduction of one pie in the rate of tonnage.	The increase over the Budget was mainly due to better receipts realized from coast light dues on account of the heavy exportation of rice to the Straits, Java, and Japan and to the receipts from the sale of the Inland vessel "McIvor" and two Customs cutters.
Eastern Bengal and Assam	8	10	10	......	......
Bengal	15,99	15,85	16,86	Out of the improvement (87) over actuals, 42 was contributed by Miscellaneous Receipts arising chiefly from a special receipt (27) due to the employment of the "Guide" in Port Blair and 39 by Pilotage Receipts owing to trade activity.	In the Budget no allowance was made for increase under Pilotage Receipts owing to uncertainty in the continuance of trade improvements. Smaller receipts were estimated under Registration Fees on the understanding that the Eastern Bengal and Assam Government would make their own arrangement for examination of Masters and Miscellaneous Receipts were underestimated.

The increase was mainly due to an increase in the number of paying patients at the Civil Hospitals and Lunatic Asylums and to an unexpected contribution towards the dispensary at Hungund. The excess would have been larger, but for the rents of hostels at the Grant Medical College having been credited as Public Works Department receipts.

55. The increases as compared with previous actuals (47) and the Budget (55) were small and except in Burma called for no remarks. In Burma the increases (25 and 28) were due in part to larger receipts from paying patients in the new General Hospital, Rangoon.

India . . .	1,79	1,71	2,75	The increase over the actuals of the preceding year was due chiefly to the recent orders of Government directing payment by the Local Governments and Local bodies of the cost of anti-rinderpest serum supplied by the Mukhtesar Laboratory.	The increase was due to the cause described in the column for Actuals.
Central Provinces .	96	1,00	94	......	... ..
Burma . . .	9	7	8	...	......
Eastern Bengal and Assam.	42	49	45	A large demand for manure raised the revenue under Agricultural Receipts.	The Budget did not allow for the gradual decrease in the immigration of coolies for the Tea Industry and proved too high by 8 under Inland Labour Transport Fees. This was partly balanced by an improvement under Agricultural Receipts on account of sales of manure.
Bengal . . .	3,31	3,70	2,40	The decrease was due to the fact that the Medical depots at Calcutta and Lahore Cantonment as also the Prisons Department, Bengal and Punjab, received only about half the quantity of quinine taken in 1910-11. The sale proceeds on this account amounted to 1,20 in 1911-12, against 1,97 in 1910-11.	Budget proved high as it followed the Revised Estimate originally adopted for 1910-11 and included 2,37 on account of sale of quinine.
United Provinces of Agra and Oudh.	1,15	1,79	1,69	As compared with 1910-11 there were larger receipts from the Magh Mela owing to Ardh Kumbh Fair. Agricultural and miscellaneous receipts were also higher.	Higher Magh Mela collections and improvement under other receipts were more than counterbalanced by lower receipts from the Horticultural Garden, Lucknow, and the Botanical Garden, Saharanpur, as also by decrease under Boiler Inspection fees consequent on the expenditure on the Steam Boiler Inspection Establishment having been taken in reduction of these receipts.
Punjab . . .	1,10	1,20	1,04		The decrease occurred principally under Agricultural Receipts partly in the income from the Bruceabad Farm in the Dera Ghazi Khan District due to the loss of a fertile part of the estate by erosion of the river Indus and partly in the income from the Agricultural College, Lyallpur, due to the income having been over-estimated by the Principal. There were also smaller receipts than estimated on account of the Well Department.
North West Frontier Province.	...	..	3	. ..	......
Madras . . .	6,50	5,37	6,42	The increase due to an abnormal demand for quinine was balanced by a decrease consequent on the transfer of Industrial school receipts to Education.	Increase was mainly due to an abnormally large demand for quinine from Rangoon and to an increased demand from Madras and Bombay Medical Stores and to some extent to the higher rate for quinine issued in small quantities.
Bombay . . .	1,21	1,20	1,18	Excluding the special receipt of 9 in the previous year from the Gujarat Cattle Preservation Association, the excess was due to sale-proceeds of bulls at the Northcote Cattle Farm, Charodi. The receipts from the sale of agricultural produce also gave better results.	The Budget under Agricultural Receipts was not fully realised owing to an unfavourable season. The excess under Veterinary and Stallion Receipts was due to sale-proceeds of bulls at the Northcote Cattle Farm, Charodi.

56. The increases as compared with previous actuals (15) and the Budget (45) were small but were the result of considerable differences. The recent orders of Government directing that Local Governments and local bodies should pay the cost of anti-rinderpest serum supplied by the Mukhtesar Laboratory was the chief cause of an increase under India (96) as compared with previous actuals. This was met by a decrease in Bengal (91) due chiefly to a much smaller demand for quinine from the Medical Depôts at Calcutta and Lahore Cantonments and the Prison Departments of Bengal and the Punjab. The sales in Bengal in 1911-12 amounted to 1,20 as against 1,97 in 1910-11. In Madras an abnormal demand for quinine from Rangoon and increased demands from Madras and Bombay Medical Stores were counterbalanced by the nominal decrease consequent on the transfer of the receipts from Industrial Schools to Education with effect from January 1911.

57. The same causes were responsible for a decrease in Bengal (1,30) and increases in Madras (1,05), and India (1,04) as compared with the Budget.

Eastern Bengal and Assam.	78	81	87	The increase occurred under Subscriptions under the Indian Civil Service Family Pension Regulations and was due principally to large marriage donations.	The cause described in the preceding column for Actuals accounted for the increase.
Bengal	2,51	2,27	2,41	Decrease as compared with 1910-11 was due to larger expenditure on improvements in the Kiddorpur Orphanganj Market, the net receipts of which (i.e., gross receipts minus expenditure) were credited to this head.	Budget provided for large outlay on improvements in the Kidderpur Orphanganj Market but the full amount provided could not be spent within the year. the net receipts were therefore a little high.
United Provinces of Agra and Oudh.	2,68	2,42	2,54	Payment of contributions for zila school teachers for the first four months of 1910-11, consequent on the delay in the provincialization of these schools, mainly accounted for the difference.	The employment of a larger number of Government servants by foreign bodies coupled with increased contributions on behalf of District Board employés chiefly explained the improvement over Budget.
Punjab	1,56	1,57	1,75	...	The increase was due to an under estimate under the head Contributions for Pensions and Gratuities which was based on past actuals.

India . . .	4,53	5,01	4,46	An increase (54) under Stationery Receipts due to the recovery of arrears from the Eastern Bengal State Railway was counterbalanced by a decrease (48) under Other Press Receipts due to diminishing indents, discontinuance of advertisements and arrears.	Decrease was due chiefly to diminishing indents for types and printing materials received from the Provincial Government Presses and to the discontinuance of advertisements in the Trade Journal.
Central Provinces .	45	47	38	The decrease was due to a decrease in the demand for forms by local and private bodies.	The decrease was due to the cause enumerated in the column for Actuals.
Burma . . .	59	55	62	...	The increase was mainly due to larger receipts for printing work executed for public departments by the Secretariat and Jail Presses.
Eastern Bengal and Assam.	21	20	40	The increase was chiefly under Other Press Receipts and was due to arrear payments for work done for private and local bodies.	The increase was almost wholly under Other Press Receipts on account of arrear payments for work done for private and local bodies. The Budget was low as it was framed on the figures of years when recoveries fell into arrears.
Bengal . . .	1,53	1,43	1,25	Actuals, 1910-11 included a special receipt (20) from sale of General Rules of 1906 for working open lines of Railways which was reprinted in that year.	Decrease as compared with Budget, was due to stoppage of reprinting of back number of Indian Law Reports.
United Provinces of Agra and Oudh.	2,06	2,22	2,21	The improvement over 1910-11 in the receipts from stationery supplied to the Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway (22) was partly set off by smaller realizations from Courts of Wards, Local Funds and other independent bodies who made payments to the Stationery Office direct.
Punjab . . .	2,68	2,[illegible]7	2,48	As compared with 1910-11 the decrease was partly due to the fact that bills outstanding at the close of 1909-10 were paid by the Railway Department in the next year and partly to the fact that there were higher receipts in 1910-11, owing to the revision of Police and Judicial Department forms.	The increase was due to special indents to meet unforeseen requirements in the Railway Department.
North-West Frontier Province.	14	12	18	...	The increase was chiefly due to the extension of the Peshawar Jail Press which was not anticipated at the time the Budget was framed.
Madras . . .	1,35	1,30	1,21	...	Decrease was chiefly under sale of Acts and books by the Secretariat Press and under cost of printing work done by Government or Jail Presses.
Bombay . . .	1,11	1,11	1,25	The increase was due to the causes described in the column for Budget.	The receipts from the sale of a large number of copies of the Revised Edition of the publication "Specifications, Rates and Notes on Works" and larger receipts at the Jail Press, Yeravda, on account of forms, etc., supplied on payment to Local Bodies financially independent of Government, chiefly accounted for the increase.

59. The variations were on the whole unimportant The arrear recoveries referred to last year resulted in increases in Eastern Bengal and Assam over both previous actuals (28) and the Budget (29). The decrease as compared with the actuals of 1910-11 in Bengal (28) and Punjab (20) were due to special receipts in the previous year.

60. As compared with the Budget there was a decrease in India (58) due to diminishing indents for type and printing materials from Provincial Government Presses and to the discontinuance of advertisements in the Trade Journal and an increase in the Punjab (41) due to special indents from the Railway Department.

The Budget was as usual calculated at an average rate of 16*d*. the rupee, but the actual average rate obtained proved to be higher, being 16 0835*d* This accounted for the net credit of 14,69 under Net Expenditure in England, a debit of 1 under Subsidised and other Companies and a net credit of 1,17 under Remittance Accounts.

India	5,47	13,18	18,97	The increase as compared with the actuals of the preceding year was due principally to a special receipt of 8,21 representing sale-proceeds of certain Mint lands.	The improvement over the Budget was the result of an increase of 42 under Percentage on Europe Stores, 10 under Premium on Bills due to increased demand for Burma Telegraphic transfers, 8 under sale of Durbar presents, 8 under Audit fees, 6 under Miscellaneous Fees and Fines, and 9 under other items.
Central Provinces	2,81	1,41	1,20	The high figures in 1910-11 were partly due to sale of weavers' famine relief cloth (1,02) and partly to Unclaimed Deposits being abnormally high.	The decrease was due to an over-estimate of Unclaimed Deposits which was based on the average of the past three years.
Burma	1,59	1,16	1,30	Compared with the actuals for 1910-11, the decrease was mainly due to less receipts under Unclaimed Deposits owing to the lapses of heavy Revenue Deposits in the Hanthawaddy District in 1910-11 partly counterbalanced by larger receipts on account of Premium on Bills owing to heavy issue of Supply Bills in January, February and March 1912 in certain districts to meet trade demands.	The increase over the Budget was mainly due to the realization of a larger amount of premium consequent on the heavy issue of Supply Bills in the closing three months of the year to meet trade demands in certain districts, and to a number of unclaimed bills having lapsed to Government.
Eastern Bengal and Assam.	3,14	2,76	3,80	The abnormally high receipt under this head was under Unclaimed Deposits, 3,11 against 2,51 in 1910-11. There were also larger receipts under Other Items (11) and under Government Audit Fees (4). In 1910-11 the receipts under the latter head were low as the Local Audit Staff was engaged for a long period on a very protracted audit of Court of Wards Estates in the Bakarganj District where embezzlements were suspected. Under the former head the increase was due to a recovery of 6 on account of payments made in previous years for outlay on improvements in Government Estates and colonization of Sundarbans in the Bakarganj District and an adjustment of 4 recovered from certain private estates in Rangpur on account of surveys.	An increase of 1,11 occurred under Unclaimed Deposits.
Bengal	7,17	7,38	7,24	Actuals, 1910-11, included a special receipt of 1,86 on account of sale of buildings. Excluding this, the increase in 1911-12 was nearly 1,50 which was due to a few special refunds of lapsed deposits of large amount in 1910-11.	Budget was nearly maintained; transfer of provision for sale of Garden Reach Thana having been made up by increased receipts under Unclaimed Deposits.

				Actuals, 1910-11.	Budget, 1911-12.
United Provinces of Agra and Oudh.	2,50	2,09	4,38	Improvement over the actuals of 1910-11 was mainly attributable to higher net receipts on account of Unclaimed Deposits consequent on larger lapses and smaller refunds of lapsed deposits in the year under report and to certain extraordinary receipts.	The credit of certain special items aggregating 1,18 accounted in the main for the increase over Budget. The items were 75 for Lapsed Deposits in the districts of Moradabad, Gorakhpur and Aligarh, 14 being the adjusted value of land relinquished by the Army Department and taken up by the Bengal and North-Western Railway, 13 paid by the Secretary to the United Provinces Exhibition Committee in partial liquidation of the loan which was written off in 1910-11, and 6 and 5, respectively, on account of the sale-proceeds of elephants presented by the Nepal Durbar and peshkash received from His Highness the Maharaja of Benares on his installation. Improved nazul receipts from sale of lands and houses and from rents (13) and recovery of arrear audit fees (6) also contributed to the increase.
Punjab . . .	11,82	7,63	14,15	After eliminating the special item of 3,24 adjusted on account of the cost of Fort Gobindgarh, Amritsar, the decrease below 1910-11, was chiefly due to smaller receipts on account of sale proceeds of town sites counterbalanced to some extent by higher receipts under Unclaimed Deposits.	The increase was due to the special item of 3,24 adjusted on account of Fort Gobindgarh (Amritsar), the receipts on account of the sale-proceeds of town sites provision for which was made under Land Revenue in the original Budget, very large receipts under Unclaimed Deposits, 208, including lapsed Tahsildari letters of credit, 130, and the receipts realized from sale-proceeds of Nazul property in the Ludhiana and Ferozepur Districts.
North-West Frontier Province.	1,30	1,25	1,44	Increase occurred chiefly under Toll fees on the Khyber Road due to larger and more valuable traffic during 1911-12. This coupled with arrear recovery for 1910-11 of 20 per cent. contribution of Dera Ismail Khan District, counterbalanced by a decrease under Unclaimed Deposits, a fluctuating head, accounted for the increase over the actuals for 1910-11.	Increase occurred chiefly under Toll fees on the Khyber Road due to larger and more valuable traffic during 1911-12.
Madras	3,72	3,38	4,13	Increase was due mainly to a special credit of 17, the sale-proceeds of a plot of land sold to the Madras Corporation by the Military Department, and larger recoveries of law charges.	Increase occurred chiefly under Unclaimed Deposits; contributions due to arrear recoveries from the Court of Wards section of the Board's Office; Extraordinary Items due to a special credit of 17 being the sale-proceeds of a plot of land sold to the Madras Corporation by the Military Department and under Miscellaneous due to adjustments of large amounts on account of the difference between the Treasury and Ledger balances of agricultural loans.

Bombay . . .	3,23	2,23	4,06	The increase over the actuals of 1910-11 was mainly under Premium on Bills due to more numerous Currency Transfers, under Extraordinary Items due to a special receipt on account of sale of land to the G. I. P. Railway, and under Unclaimed Deposits due to smaller adjustments on account of lapsed deposits.	There was an increase over the Budget owing chiefly to (i) an improvement under Premium on Bills due to larger Currency Transfers in consequence of the concession granted to Exchange Banks reducing the rate of premium from one to half anna for transfers granted against gold deposited in the Bombay Mint, (ii) the receipt of interest from the City Improvement Trust under section 68 (i) of the Act, (iii) a special receipt on account of sale of land at Bori Bunder to the G. 62. The receipts were better than those of the year 1910-11 by 13,10 and than the Budget by 12,53 As compared with the previous actuals, the increase was largely due to the special item of receipt (8,21) from the Calcutta Port Commissioners as the sale price of the Government Mint Lands referred to in the last Report and to larger amounts transferred to Unclaimed Deposits The increase under Unclaimed Deposits (4,68) occurred chiefly in the Punjab (1,68), the United Provinces (1,66), Bengal (1,63) and Eastern Bengal and Assam (60). Other special features as regards the actuals were the decrease in the Central Provinces (1,02) under sale of weavers' famine relief cloths, there being no further receipts on this account and the nominal increase in the Punjab (99) due to the transfer to this head from Land Revenue of the sale-proceeds of town sites.

63. As compared with the Budget the increase was due to similar causes The receipts from the sale of Mint Lands was provided for but no provision was made in the Punjab for the value of Fort Gobindgarh, Amritsar, (3 24) In Bombay there was an increase (77) under Premium on Bills as a result of the concession granted to Exchange Banks in January 1911, under which transfers were granted against gold deposited in the Bombay Mint at a premium of half an anna In addition to the nominal increase in the Punjab (99) already referred to, there was a further nominal increase in Bombay (57) where the interest payable by the City of Bombay Improvement Trust was credited to this head, instead of under Interest where provision existed.

Bengal Nagpur ...	3,09,99	3,27,00	3,43,75	The actual improvement amounted to 33,76 or 16,75 over the Budget.
				The improvement under coaching traffic of 10,52 was due to development of traffic on the Satpura Railway, unrestricted booking of 3rd class passengers by mail trains at enhanced fares, the Coronation Durbar at Delhi, His Imperial Majesty's visit to Calcutta and the provision of intermediate class accommodation on mail trains.
				Goods receipts increased by 28,12 chiefly owing to long lead traffic in grain and seeds and increased despatches of coal via Katni-Murwara. The improvement in coal traffic was due to a great demand for the shipment of coal, while the famine in Gujrat drew large consignments of grain.
				These increases took into account the earnings of new extensions, on which an improvement of 1,68 occurred through the development of traffic on the Gondia-Chanda Extension which had not yet been opened throughout for traffic.
				Against these increases there was a falling off of 78 under Sundries consequent on the introduction of new rules for the interchange of goods stock from 1st January 1911, while an increase of 2,53 in the amount of fares and freight outstanding under Suspense caused a further reduction in the receipts.
Bombay, Baroda and Central India.	5,46,35	5,57,00	6,00,80	A normal growth of 10,65 was expected. The actual increase was 54,45 or 43,80 over the Budget.
				Both coaching and goods traffic contributed to the increase, the former showing an improvement of 24,30 and the latter of 42,52. The increase in coaching receipts was attributed to the celebration of a greater number of Hindu marriages, larger attendance at fairs, the visit of Their Imperial Majesties to India and the Coronation Durbar held at Dehli in December 1911. A general development of the ordinary passenger traffic along the whole line also helped to account for the increase in these receipts. The increase in goods traffic resulted chiefly from heavier bookings of grains and fodder owing to the failure of the rains in Gujrat, Kathiawar and parts of Rajputana. There was also a large increase in miscellaneous traffic over the whole system. The sundry receipts showed an increase of 2,76 due partly to larger recoveries for hire and demurrage of vehicles, chiefly from the Jodhpur-Bikaner Railway under the new Conference rule and partly to the profits of workshops from work done for foreign lines. The recoveries on account of supervision charges from feeder lines under construction also exceeded the realizations in 1910-11. Against these increases large outstandings for fares and freight on account of heavy traffic in fodder and grain from foreign lines at the end of the year reduced the actual receipts of the year by 15,39.
Burma Railways including Extensions.	1,99,90	2,06,30	2,10,78	The actual improvement amounted to 10,88 or 4,48 over Budget. Under coaching traffic there was an improvement of 9,92 in long distance passenger traffic consequent on migrations of the population due to the failure of crops in parts of Upper Burma and the cessation of competition between rival steamship lines through the purchase by the old established Irrawaddy Flotilla Company of the Burma Rivers Transport Company towards the close of the year. The improvement under this head would have been greater but for the removal of the Burma Mines Smelters from Mandalay to Manpwe. Against these increases, there was a falling off of 1,18 in the receipts under Sundries while the receipts were less than the earnings owing mainly to a larger amount of cash in transit at the close of the year.
Eastern Bengal	2,87,32	3,00,00	3,19,59	The actual improvement amounted to 32,27 resulting in an increase of 19,59 over the Budget. Coaching traffic showed an improvement of 15,35 due to an increase in third class passenger traffic of about 5,00 on account of the Churamoni Jog: Solar and Lunar Eclipses and certain bathing festivals, while the Imperial visit to Calcutta accounted for about 3,30 of the increase, the balance being due to general development. Under goods traffic there was an improvement of 20,98 of which jute contributed 17,00 and food grains 2,30. The actual receipts of the year were less than the earnings owing to the large amount outstanding for fares and freight (showing an increase 3,18 over the outstandings of the previous year) and to the increased amount (1,10) of cash in transit at the close of the year, the last day of which fell on a Sunday.
East Indian—
England	3	3	3	The increases over the Budget of 49,97 occurred chiefly under coaching and goods traffic. The former contributed 15,49 and was due to the Solar Eclipse in October 1911, the Imperial Durbar at Delhi and the Royal visit to Calcutta, while the improvement under the latter amounted to 40,49 due to heavier traffic in grain and seeds on account of heavy exports, and to coal carried longer leads up-country and to Western India, owing to sea freights being unusually high.
India	8,79,79	8,75,00	9,24,97	Against these increases, there was a reduction in the actual receipts due to an increase (11,85) in the outstandings under Suspense for fares and freight, caused chiefly by the large traffic carried near the close of the year.
Great Indian Peninsula Railway including Baran-Kotah,-Agra-Delhi Chord and Bhopal State Railways.	6,96,59	6,96,80	7,74,38	The actuals showed an improvement of 77,79 of which coaching traffic contributed 22,93 due to increased passenger, luggage, parcels and other traffic chiefly attributable to the Delhi Durbar, and goods traffic 65,86 which was due to larger traffic in foodgrains, cotton, oil-seeds, wheat, coal for the public, military stores and general merchandise. Against these increases, there were heavy outstandings under Suspense on account of fares and freight which reduced the receipts of the year by 11,06. These heavy outstandings were caused by the large traffic carried at the close of the year.
Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway.	3,09,40	3,25,00	3,40,03	The actuals showed an improvement of 30,63 or 15,03 over the Budget. The improvement under goods traffic amounted to 22,63 which was due to larger movements of food grains, and oil seeds, and of coal from the Singareni Collieries to the Kolar Gold Fields, and to larger bookings of manganese ore and cotton seeds to Mormugao and of timber from the Shimoga Branch, while the expansion of coaching traffic resulted in an increase of 6,48. A larger realization of outstandings of fares and freight under Suspense further increased the receipts by 2,43.

				Against the above increases there was a decrease under Sundries of 95 due to the inclusion in the previous year of receipts for back periods of (1) shunting charges at Jalarpet with South Indian Railway, (2) charges for the supply of Rolling-Stock to the metre gauge branch lines of the Mysore State Railway and to the receipts of 1911-12 having been reduced by a refund to the South Indian Railway of a share of interest on Capital works at Jalarpet Joint Station prior to 1st January 1908.
North Western Railway	7,36,48	7,85,00	8,23,60	The actual improvement amounted to 87,12 resulting in an increase of 38,60 over the Budget. Coaching traffic showed an improvement of 25,37 of which 11,70 were due to increased bookings on account of the Delhi Durbar, 4,50 to the opening of new lines, 2,70 to pilgrimages, etc., and 6,47 to the general development of traffic. Under goods traffic there was an improvement of 65,20. This very satisfactory result was due to larger bookings of wheat grain, pulse, Jawar and Bajra to Karachi for export to Europe. A reduction of 55 in the net debit to Suspense as compared with that of the previous year added further to the improvement in receipts. Against the above increases, there was a decrease of 4,07 under Sundries due mainly to smaller receipts by 81 for the hire of vehicles and an adjustment of 2,52 on account of payments to the East Indian Railway for the use of the Delhi Ghaziabad joint line in the previous year.
Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway.	1,90,73	1,92,00	2,13,76	The actual improvement amounted to 23,03 or an increase of 21,76 over the Budget. This very satisfactory result was mainly due to the combined effect of an increase of 73 miles in the mean mileage worked which added about 9,00 to the income, and to the heavier export of grain which marked the closing months of the year and contributed about 4,00. The Allahabad-Rae Bareli-Cawnpore and the Gajraula Chandpur extensions were opened for traffic during 1911-12, but at the time of the preparation of the Budget it was anticipated that these lines would be opened too late in the year to materially affect the situation and an insufficient allowance was made for earnings from the increased open mileage. Passenger traffic benefited by the Coronation Durbar which appears to have added about 3,00 to the Revenue, and by the occurrence during the year of the Ardhkhumbha Mela and the exceptional double occurrence of the Ramnaumi Fair within the year. These two together added roughly about 3,00 to the receipts. Beyond these factors the most interesting item is a heavy increase of about 2,50 in receipts from the hire of vehicles, partly no doubt the natural accompaniment of a generally busy season, and partly due to the revised rules for interchange of stock. Under goods traffic there was an increase of 2,00 in coal of which about half was for the purposes of the Home line. These increases, however, were not fully realised as there was an increase of 1,56 in the outstandings under Suspense for fares and freight.
South India Railway .	2,29,00	2,37,00	2,53,82	The actual improvement amounted to 24,82 resulting in an increase of 16,82 over the Budget. Coaching traffic showed an improvement of 8,98 due to the introduction of convenient additional train services, while goods traffic increased by 13,60 owing to heavier despatches of cotton and imports of food grains. The receipts under Sundries also showed an increase of 1,12, chiefly on account of rebate from the Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway and the hire of locomotives and vehicles from Foreign Railways. The actual receipts were less than the earnings by 66 owing to outstandings for fares and freight.

Tirhoot . . .	82,94	86,00	90,52	The actual improvement amounted to 7,58 resulting in an increase of 4,52 over the Budget. Coaching traffic shewed an improvement of 7,14 due chiefly to the development of local traffic and to a Solar Eclipse Mela at Benares. Foreign traffic also contributed to the increase, bookings viâ Katihar shewing a marked improvement. Under goods the receipts increased by 15,08 due to abnormal crops, the commodities chiefly contributing to the increase being, piece-goods, food grains of all kinds, sugar and tobacco, as well as coal. This heavy traffic also accounted for the increase of 1,78, under Steam Boat earnings. There were also small increases of 7 under Electric Telegraph and 29 under Sundries. Hire and demurrage of vehicles absent on Foreign Railways was the main cause of the increase under the latter. The above increases represented the aggregate improvement on Bengal and North-Western Railway System including the Company's Section. The Tirhoot Railway share of the improvement amounted to 7,08.

PRINCIPAL LINES.
Bengal Nagpur Railway.	1,65,12	1,72,20	1,69,11	The decrease of 3,09 as compared with the Budget occurred in the provision for special and optional expenditure and was due to large credits for permanent-way materials returned to stores from relaying section No. 3 Chakardharpur District, and to works not having been carried out to the full extent anticipated owing chiefly to materials not having been received from England during the year. The variations under ordinary maintenance and working expenses were as under :— Under maintenance of way and works there was a lapse of 1,82 due to leave vacancies, to additional staff provided for not having been employed, to a smaller carriage of materials, and to repairs not having been carried out to the extent anticipated. There were increases under Locomotive expenses (1,72) and traffic expenses (90) due to increase in running expenses and to fuel and station and train staff consequent on increased traffic and train miles run. Carriage and Wagon expenses also shewed an increase of 2,34 due to extensive repairs to goods vehicles and there was an increase of 1,69 under miscellaneous expenditure due chiefly to arrear charges of the Gomoh Joint Station and to increased contributions to the Provident Fund owing to increased net earnings. A portion (2,91) of these increases occurred on new extensions the net earnings of which were taken in reduction of the interest charge to construction account. A decrease of 90 occurred under general charges owing to Home charges and Electric Telegraph having been over-estimated and there was a further decrease of 15 under Steam Boat Service.
Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway.	2,72,27	2,97,49	2,99,46	The actual increase amounted to 27,19 or 1,97 over the Budget. The excess occurred wholly under ordinary maintenance and working expenses as distinct from special or optional expenditure, and was due generally to the increased development of traffic as reflected in the receipts. A lapse of 13,74 occurred on special or optional expenditure due to the late receipt of English materials for certain Engineering works (10,04), and for renewals of locomotives and coaching and goods vehicles (5,69). A portion (2,83) of these lapses was utilised on other special engineering works, which were found necessary for purposes of Durbar traffic. Under ordinary maintenance and working expenses the excess of 16,94 was accounted for by the following :— Increases of 10,48, 1,03 and 5,57 occurred in Locomotive, Carriage and Wagon and Traffic expenses due partly to the enhanced cost of working trains owing to the increased train miles run, and partly to the engagement of additional staff to cope with the Delhi Durbar traffic. A further increase of 7,44 occurred under miscellaneous expenditure due partly to the grant of the Coronation bonus, and partly to payments for decorations and illuminations in connection with the Royal visit. These increases were counterbalanced to a certain extent by a lapse of 6,79 under maintenance of Way and Works due mainly to the late receipt of English materials. An increase in outstandings reduced the actual expenditure of the year by 1,23.

Burma Railways, including extensions	1,27,36	1,27,41	1,30,89	The budget based on the actuals of the previous year was found insufficient and the grant had to be raised during the course of the year resulting in an excess of 3,48 over the Budget. Special or optional expenditure accounted for the greater portion of this excess Under maintenance of Way and Works, there was an increase of 2,68 due to breaches, in the Mandalay and Sagaing Districts and to larger writes-back from Capital than were anticipated in connection with the replacement of and alteration to old bridges, Rangoon remodelling and other special works. Locomotive expenses were 26 in excess and were due to the renewal of 3 E. Class engines provided for in 1910-11, but carried out during 1911-12, owing to the late arrival of locomotives from England, and expenses in connection with the Steam Boat Service resulted in an excess of 28 due to a larger number of wagons crossed and more fuel stores, etc., carried An increase under Suspense caused an excess of 42 over the Budget Against these excesses a saving of 67 occurred under Traffic expenses as the Budget under almost all heads was too high, particularly under printing and stores
Eastern Bengal Railway . .	1,68,15	1,82,00	1,85,34	The Budget provided for an increase over the actuals of the previous year of 13,85. Against this the actual increase amounted to 17,19, shewing an excess over the Budget of 3,34 The excess occurred wholly under ordinary maintenance and working expenses as distinct from special or optional expenditure and was due generally to the large increase in earnings. Under maintenance of Way and Works there was an excess of 2,94 made up of increases of 2,80 on relaying the Katihar and Purneah Sections, and the Puttipukur Branch which were not provided for in the Budget and of 1,99 on account of adjustment of flood damages of the Gauhati Extension counterbalanced by a decrease under repairs to Stations and Buildings, due to the provision in the Budget for remodelling the Naihati and Chitpore yards and the new Carriage and Wagon Shops at Kanchrapara not having been utilised. Under Locomotive expenses there was a saving of 4,71 due (2,31) to the late arrival of English materials for 8 engines on replacement account, (1,00) to no expenditure having been incurred on the electrification of the Kanchrapara and Saidpur Shops for which provision was made in the Budget, and the balance to reduction in the costs of carriage of revenue stores due to the introduction of through booking of coal on the metre gauge There was also a saving 58 in Carriage and Wagon expenses due to the late arrival of English materials for renewals. Under working expenses proper there were increases of 2,85 under Traffic 92 under Steam Boat and 3,12 under special and miscellaneous expenditure due mainly to the larger volume of traffic worked than was provided for in the Budget resulting in extra staff having to be entertained and larger payments having to be made in respect of compensation claims and to other railways for hire and demurrage of stock. Against these increases a reduction of 1,15 in Suspense balances was effected in the course of the year.

Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway	1,86,70	1,92,40	1,90,03	To meet the normal development of traffic, the Budget provided for an increase of 5,70 over the actuals of the previous year The actual expenditure of the year resulted in a lapse of 2,37 which occurred wholly under special or optional expenditure as distinct from ordinary maintenance and working expenses The lapse was the net result of the following variations Under maintenance of Way and Works there was a decrease of 3,68 due to the stoppage of re-sleepering on the Gadag District and the smaller use of wooden sleepers, to savings under Ballast, Points and Crossings, etc, to smaller expenditure on remodelling of the Bezwada Yard, and on alterations and additions at Korukupettai and to store-credits This decrease was counterbalanced to a certain extent by an increase of 1,06 due to heavier repairs to signals and staff quarters and to an adjustment of the original cost of the dismantled Engine Shed at Sitanagaram on the North-East Line The increase of 43 under Locomotive Expenses was due to enhanced expenditure on running expenses and fuel brought about by increased mileage The decrease of 2,30 in carriage and wagon expenses occurred under repairs and renewals of vehicles on account of debits in the previous period against Revenue re-adjusted Traffic expenses resulted in an increase of 1,43 due to a write-back of the South Indian Railway share of the Jalarpet Joint station expenses previously charged to that line Under general charges an increase of 1,25 occurred owing to the introduction of monthly instead of half-yearly adjustments of charges such as Telegraphs Supervision, Police etc The Durbar bonus and monthly instead of half-yearly adjustments under Provident Fund added a further increase of 2,03 and rebate payments to the South Indian Railway increased by 74 An increase in outstandings reduced the actual expenditure of the year by 1.74

The increase of 23,98 on ordinary maintenance and working expenses was the result of the following variations :— An increase of 4,83 occurred on the maintenance of Way and Works due to more tools and plant required and to more materials carried for Revenue purposes Locomotive, Carriage and Wagon expenses increased by 5,50 and Traffic expenses by 9,06 owing to increased repairs and renewals, to larger consumption of fuel, oil, etc, to the entertainment of extra staff owing to increased train mileage consequent on the opening of new lines and the Delhi Durbar Railway, and to the heavy Durbar traffic worked Under general charges there was an increase of 2,19 due to a larger supply of furniture, stationery and forms to Departments than was anticipated, and to increased Electric Telegraph charges due to the opening of additional branch lines and the Delhi Durbar Railway A payment of 4,19 as rebate to the Sutlej Valley Railway added further to the increased expenditure
Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway	94,11	1,00,00	98,22	The Budget provided for 1,00,00 or an increase of 5,89 over the actuals of the previous year Against this the actual expenditure of the year amounted to 98,22 shewing a lapse of 1,78 due to a reduction of 2,12 in the outstandings under Suspense, which was not provided for in the Budget The following are the principal items calling for remarks — A lapse of 2,64 occurred on the provision made in the Budget for special or optional expenditure due—(38) to credits not provided for in the Budget for permanent-way materials and 60 feet girders released from works, (30) to the non-receipt of English materials for one engine, and (1,96) to increased traffic consequent on the Delhi Durbar, necessitating the provision of extra funds for ordinary maintenance and working expenses, which was affected by re-appropriation from the allotment for special and optional expenditure The principal excesses in ordinary maintenance and working expenses were those of 1,63 and 1,20 in the Locomotive and Carriage and Wagon Departments respectively due to increased train mileage and outlay on maintenance in connection with Rolling stock employed for the Delhi Durbar traffic
South Indian Railway	1,21,02	1,30,50	1,28,95	The Budget provided for an increase over the actuals of the previous year of 9,48 Against this the actual increase amounted to 7,93 shewing a lapse of 1,55 on the Budget provision which occurred chiefly under special or optional expenditure as distinct from ordinary maintenance and working expenses Under Maintenance of Way and Works there was a lapse of 4,14 due to officers being on leave or engaged on other duty, and to a smaller expenditure than was anticipated on rail renewals and betterments on the metre gauge section and on renewing weak girders on the Vikravandi, Karunguzhi and Gingee Bridges and on the Thondiar Bridge owing to the late receipt of materials A reduction of 75 was also effected in the outstandings under Suspense Against the above savings, there were increases of 83 and 1,01 under Locomotive, Carriage and Wagon expenses due to the provision made under Running Expenses Fuel, Maintenance and Repairs being inadequate for the heavier traffic worked and increased mileage run.

The following were the principal variations under the several heads of expenditure An increase of 3,46 under maintenance of Way and Works was due to increased expenditure on repairs to flood damages of the Elgin Bridge (1,00), provision for a new alignment below Bunwarchak and Dighwara not provided for in the Budget (1,50) and heavier sleeper renewals on the Tirhoot Section partly counterbalanced by savings under Repairs of Bridges (1,27) An increase of 2,38 under Locomotive expenses for coal and carriage of revenue stores following on the heavier traffic worked Under Carriage and Wagon expenses there were increases of 28 in replacing oil lamps by electric light and 40 on repairs to goods vehicles necessitated by accidents early in the year Special and Miscellaneous expenditure increased by 71 due chiefly to the Coronation Durbar Bonus. Central Provinces—Imperial	58	80	59	...	The decrease was due to a favourable monsoon.
Burma—Imperial	8,21	11,50	9,16	The increase was chiefly due to larger receipts under Shwebo Canal owing to extension of Irrigation and arrear collections of revenue.	The decrease was chiefly due to the non-realisation of revenue in the Mon Canal and to a smaller area having been irrigated by the Shwebo Canal than that estimated.
Bengal—Imperial		12,75	12,79	The separation into Imperial and Provincial was due to the new Provincial settlement under which half share was made Imperial. No allowance for growth was made in Budget and the actuals of 1910-11 were on the whole maintained. There was however a decrease under Sone Canals, due to smaller irrigation in 1910-11 owing to increased rainfall, which was counterbalanced by increased receipts in the Midnapur and Tribeni Canals for which the water rate collections were underestimated. In Midnapur no allowance was made for the enhanced rates adopted and Tribeni was brought under Revenue Account for the first time in 1911-12.
United Provinces—Imperial	3,21	3,27	3,14		As compared with the Budget there was a decrease under the Ken Canal (31) which was partly set off by improvement under the Betwa Canal (19). This was attributable to curtailment of the irrigation area consequent on heavy rain at the beginning of the rabi season and in January 1911, which was somewhat made up by the large demand for canal water in the Kharif resulting from deficient rainfall during the monsoon.
Provincial	83,34	84,58	82,60	As compared with 1910-11, there were decreases under all the canals except the Lower Ganges Canal which showed an improvement of 1,24	The causes enumerated under Imperial also explained the falling off under the Ganges (2,56) Eastern Jumna (1,21) and Dun (15) Canals and the increases under the Lower Ganges (1,94) and the Agra (7) Canals.
Punjab—Imperial	1,24,93	98,85	1,06,54	The variation was partly the effect of the new Provincial Settlement under which half share instead of a three-eighths share was made provincial. The abolition of the rate in the districts of the Delhi Division accounts for the decrease below 1910-11.	The improvement was the result of an increase in Gujranwala due to the anticipated abolition of the owners' rate on the Lower Chenab Canal not having been effected and of a decrease in Lyallpur due to an over-estimate.
Provincial	74 96	98,85	1,06,54	The increase was generally due to increased irrigation The abolition of the old Kharaba system in the Lower Chenab Canal and the luxuriant crops in the Indus Inundation Canal Division also accounted for the increase which was partly counterbalanced by short receipts on the Jumna Canal due to the Kharif Crops having been damaged by boll-worm and grass-hoppers and on the Upper Sutlej Canal due to short supply in the river The above causes coupled with the levying of revised water rates in the Western Jumna Canal accounted for the increase over 1910-11.	The increase was generally due to increased irrigation The abolition of the old Kharaba system in the Lower Chenab Canal and the luxuriant crops in the Indus Inundation Canal Division also accounted for the increase which was partly counterbalanced by short receipts on the Jamuna Canal due to the Kharif crops having been damaged by boll-worm and grasshoppers and on the Upper Sutlej Canal due to short supply in the river.

Imperial	7,17	8,00	7,20	...	The decrease was chiefly due to mills on the Kabul River Canal having been leased at lower rates than usual, and over-estimate of the Budget in the case of Lower Swat River Canal counterbalanced by a small increase under other canals due to development of irrigation.
Madras—
Imperial	1,34	1,37	1,26	Decrease was chiefly due to a fall in the realizations from the sales of grass and navigation receipts in the Kistna Delta system. 68. Compared with the receipts of the previous year there was an increase of 14,02. The receipts were also better than the Budget by 10,44 This was almost entirely the result of an improvement in the Punjab due to increased irrigation. The abolition of the old Kharaba system in the Lower Chenab Canal and the luxuriant crops in the Indus Inundation Canal Division also contributed to the increase The canals which were chiefly concerned were the Sirhind, the Western Jumna and the Upper Bari Doab canals, where the increases as compared with the previous year were 10,37, 5,39, and 2,53 respectively. The abolition of the rate in the Delhi Division however resulted in a decrease of 8,35 in the portion in charge of Civil Officers. As compared with the Budget there was a fall of 2,35 in Burma and of 2,11 in the United Provinces due to a smaller area being irrigated and the non-realisation of revenue from the new Mon canal due to late assessment.

Imperial	21,64	21,19	29,12	Increase over 1910-11 was ascribed to the Land Revenue in the colony villages on the Jhang and Gugera Branches having been levied at the new enhanced rates fixed at the new settlement.	The increase over the Budget was due to an under-estimate on the Western Jumna Canal and to the fact that receipts on account of interest on the sale proceeds of waste lands were not provided for.
Provincial	12,98	21,19	29,12
North-West Frontier—
Imperial	46	60	66	Increase over 1910-11 was due to the fact that the receipts for that year were reduced by 10 by transfer adjustment on account of wrong credit in 1909-10 of Paharpur Canal receipts. Moreover in 1910-11 there were no receipts for that canal.
Madras—
Imperial	49,23	50,80	52,41	Increase occurred chiefly under the Godavari Delta System. Increase occurred chiefly under the Godavari Delta System and was partly counterbalanced by a decrease under the Divi System. It was also due to the fact that the receipts of the Nagavalli River Project in 1911-1912 inclusive of those collected in 1909-1910 and 1910-1911 were shown under this head for the first time.

Bombay—
Imperial	12,63	13,47	10,28	The decrease was chiefly due to unfavourable inundation and to a deficiency of water in the Canals. There was, however, an increased revenue from the Eastern Nara and Jamrao canals due to recovery of arrears and to extension of cultivation.	The revenue officers attributed the failure of the estimate to deficiency of water in the canals and unfavourable inundation.

69. The improvement over the actuals of the previous year was 26,02 and over the Budget was 12,68. It was mainly the result of increases in the Punjab and Madras and a decrease in Bombay. The receipts improved in the Punjab, 23,62 due to the Land Revenue in the Colony villages on the Jhang and Gugera Branches having been levied at the enhanced rates fixed at the new Settlement. This was anticipated in the Budget but an underestimate on the Western Jumna Canal and no provision for interest on sale-proceeds of waste land resulted in an increase of 15,87 over the Budget The improvement in Madras occurred under the Godaveri Delta system. The receipts of the Nagavalli River Project were also included for the first time. The decrease in Bombay (4,69 below actuals and 6,38 below Budget) was due to a deficiency of water in the canals and to unfavourable inundations.

The fall in revenue in comparison with the budget was mainly due to smaller receipts from the canals in the Meiktila and Myingyan Districts on account of insufficient rainfall, and to smaller revenue realized in the Mandalay District owing to the destruction of crops by floods. The decrease would have been more but for the larger receipts obtained from the Pegu and Sittang Canal and to the arrear collections of the previous year realized in the Minbu District.

Actuals 1910-11 included similar receipts amounting to 20.
Provincial . .	3,87	7,14	4,19	Increase was due to arrear recovery of Strand Bank rent (19), a special receipt of 24 arising from sale of stalls in the Maidan during the King's visit, increased rent of buildings (10) and other miscellaneous receipts (29). The increase (1,21) in this Grant was due chiefly to larger contributions towards the Indian Military Service Family Pensions owing to enhanced rates of subscriptions and donations ordered by the Secretary of State (87); and to recoveries on account of pension contributions of officers and men of the 127th Baluch Light Infantry lent for service in the Somaliland Protectorate.

74. The receipts in India in 1911-12 exceeded the actuals of the previous year by 8,96. The abnormally high receipts under Ordnance in 1911-12 by larger sales of obsolete and useless stores and leather cuttings were mainly responsible for this increase. There was also some increase (1,28) under Clothing, due chiefly to larger sales of personal clothing to British troops (70) and to the sale of surplus clothing stores in the Alipore Factory (51). The receipts under Medical Stores also showed a rise (94), owing to increased demands from Civil institutions. On the other hand, there was a decrease of 87 under Supply and Transport receipts, owing chiefly to a change in classification whereby sale proceeds of condemned fort and mobilisation reserve stores were adjusted by deduction from expenditure (1,14), and to more restricted issue of rum (77); partly counterbalanced by more realisations by sale of dairy produce (1,10).

75. The receipts in In dia in 1911-12 exceeded the Budget by 9,94. The more important variations occurred under Grant IV—Supply and Transport, Grant VI—Clothing, Grant X—Ordnance and Grant XX—Pensions. The increase of 2,85 under Clothing was chiefly due to larger realisations by the sale of personal clothing to British troops (2,30); and to the sale of surplus clothing stores in the Army Clothing Factory, Alipore (56). The receipts under Ordnance exceeded the Budget by 8,78, owing mainly to unusually heavy sales of unserviceable ordnance stores from certain factories (4,10); to large sales of leather from the Harness and Saddlery Factory at Cawnpore (2,16); to increased sales of old metals and unserviceable stores from arsenals and depôts, and to the issue, on payment, of ammunition to the Nepal Durbar (57). The increase (1,21) under Pensions was caused by larger contributions towards the Indian Military Service Family Pensions in consequence of enhanced rates of subscriptions and donations ordered by the Secretary of State (87); also by the recoveries of pension contributions of officers and men of the 127th Baluch Light Infantry lent for service to the Somaliland Protectorate. The receipts under Supply and Transport fell short of the Budget by 4,35 of which 2,64 occurred under dairy farms, owing mainly to the fact that the central creamery at Ahmedabad was not in full working order during the year and to the absence of troops at Delhi in connection with the Coronation Durbar; the balance of the decrease was due partly to a change in classification under which realisations by sale of condemned fort and mobilisation reserve stores are now adjusted by deduction from expenditure (85), and partly to more restricted supply of rum (82).

Effective Services—
Dockyard Services, etc.	11,88	11,60	10,69	The decrease was chiefly due to vessels having been employed on Imperial Service for shorter periods in 1911-12 counter-balanced by increased receipts for work done or services rendered to Local Governments and other Departments.	Provision to the extent of 5,22 was made in the Budget for general recoveries on account of hire of vessels, but the actuals amounted to 3,17 due to the cost of conveyance of the 3rd Brahmans and 90 Deccan Infantry having been adjusted in 1910-11 (77) to certain vessels not having been employed entirely on Imperial service as anticipated and to coal having been obtained from Admiralty Depots thus reducing recoveries (1,28). There was, however, an increase (94) under other heads due to additional works undertaken for Local Governments and other Departments and to additional recoveries (20) on account of hire of troop flotilla for shipping of stores consigned to Royal Navy vessels.
Sale-proceeds of vessels, etc.	40	32	67	The increase was due to the sale of certain condemned vessels sanctioned during the year and of a large quantity of iron scrap, old metal and unserviceable stores and zinc slabs.	The Budget did not provide for the sale of certain vessels and stores sold during the year, there was also a larger sale of stores and unserviceable material than was anticipated.
Other receipts	1,24	1,40	1,14		Decrease due chiefly to less imported stores used on works of conversion.

India	44	38	57	The excess over the actuals of the preceding year was due to certain unexpected refunds of receipts under Land Revenue, Stamps and Income Tax.	Same remarks as in the column for Actuals.
Central Provinces	85	83	88		The variation was small and called for no explanation. Additional provision by reappropriation was sanctioned before the close of the year.
Burma	6,85	5,28	6,96		The excess as compared with the Budget was due to remissions of tributes already collected and to refunds of Customs export duty owing to inability to ship rice for which duty had been paid.
Eastern Bengal and Assam.	1,41	90	1,19	The decrease in expenditure occurred under Land Revenue. The figures for 1910-11 included an unusual item of 45 representing the payment of mesne profits to a decree-holder. In 1911-12 there was an unusual item of 25 transferred from Special Ad[illegible]ances on account of a refund to the Baikunthpur Wards Estate.	The excess over Budget was caused by an unusual item of 25 transferred from the head Special Ad[illegible]ances on account of a refund to the Baikunthpur Wards Estate.
Bengal	8,38	8,17	12,72		Budget was based on the average actuals of 3 years ending 1909-10 and closely followed the actuals of 1910-11. The increase of 4,55 was almost wholly caused by unusually large re-export of Java Sugar due to a scarcity in Europe and high prices pre-vailing there, of which about 2,00 occurred by end of December 1911 and was covered by a saving of 37 under Salt and reappropriations of 1,36 and 41 sanctioned by the Bengal and India Governments, respectively. The expenditure under this head is not audited against grant and the further increase occurred too late to permit of an extra grant being obtained within the year on review of actuals after completion of accounts. Excess under Provincial was due to under-estimate of Land Revenue refunds and occurred late in the year.
United Provinces of Agra and Oudh.	2,27	2,11	1,93	The actuals for 1910-11 included special Land Revenue refunds (aggregating about 30) on account of Village Police charges recovered in excess from certain District Boards in previous years which were taken to I.—Land Revenue.	Expenditure under this head fluctuates. Smaller Stamp and Forest refunds mainly accounted for the variation.

Madras . . .	4,76	4,21	5,18		Budget was exceeded under Land Revenue, Stamps, Customs, and Forest owing to special Land Revenue refunds necessitated by a High Court decree and by the cancellation of sales of land for arrears of Land Revenue, to adjustments of erroneous credits to Forest in 1910-11 and to the generally uncertain nature of the items expected to be debited under this head.
Bombay . . .	15,60	13,69	19,17	The excess under Land Revenue was due to the sale of certain forest lands in the Poona District having been subsequently cancelled, to refunds of certain amounts realized by the Collector of Bombay on account of Government interest on lands acquired by the City Improvement Trust owing to the parties not having finally accepted the valuation made by the Special Collector and to refunds of Patedars' shares in Sukkur; that under Stamps was due to larger refunds on account of Court-fee Stamps; under Customs Refunds it was due to larger exports of silver bullion and petroleum and to refunds on goods exported to Kashmir; and that under Drawbacks was due to abnormal shipments of sugar to the United Kingdom and of coined dollars to Hong-kong.	The excesses under Refunds were (i) Land Revenue (1,16) due to refunds of sale-proceeds of certain forest lands in the Poona District owing to sales having been subsequently cancelled, to refunds of certain amounts realized by the Collector of Bombay on account of Government interest on lands acquired by the City Improvement Trust owing to the parties not having finally accepted the valuation made by the Special Collector and to refunds of Patedars' shares in Sukkur; (ii) Customs (1,07) due to larger exports of silver bullion and petroleum and to refunds on goods exported to Kashmir; (iii)—Stamps (4[illegible]) due to larger refunds on account of Court-fee Stamps; (iv)—Excise (38) due to large refunds of ⅓rd share of Opium Pass Fees to certain Native States and of duty levied on hemp-drugs imported into the Baroda State. 78. The expenditure exceeded the actuals of the previous year by 8,50 and the Budget by 13,02. The variations were most marked in Bengal and Bombay. In Bengal the excesses over both the previous actuals (4,34) and over the Budget (4,55) occurred under Customs and were due to the unusually large re-export of Java Sugar consequent on a scarcity in Europe and high prices prevailing there In Bombay, the excesses (3,57 and 5,48 respectively) were chiefly due to abnormal shipments of sugar to the United Kingdom and of coined dollars to Hongkong and exports of petroleum resulting in large drawbacks and refunds under Customs and large refunds of Land Revenue, owing to the cancelling of certain sales of forest land in the Poona District and the refund of amounts realized as Government interest on lands acquired by the City Improvement Trust, owing to the valuation made by the Special Collector not having been accepted In Burma there was also a considerable increase as compared with the Budget (1,68) due to remissions of tributes for expenditure by the Native States on Public Works and to the inability to ship rice for which duty had already been paid.

79. The excesses over the Budget were anticipated for the most part and additional allotments were obtained during the year. Unexpected excesses occurring late in the year could not however be provided for and a large Imperial excess of 3,37 and Provincial excess of 14 require the sanction of the Government of India. The excess in Bengal alone was 2,67. Up to the end of December 1911, the excess due to the unusual re-export of Java Sugar amounted to about 2,00 which was duly provided for The further increases were known too late to permit of an extra grant being obtained in time. The Imperial portion of the Bombay grant was exceeded by 4,27 of which 3,84 was provided for leaving an excess of 43 to be sanctioned. The Customs refunds in March were heavier than was anticipated. The excess in Eastern Bengal and Assam over the Budget was 26 and was due to an item of 25 transferred after the close of the year from the head Special Advances on account of a refund to the Baikunthpur Wards Estate A portion of this excess (14) occurred under Provincial, but owing to the redistribution of provinces it now awaits the sanction of the Government of India There were further Provincial excesses of 27 which have been sanctioned by the Local Governments.

India	34,24	34,60	33,44	Variation in the fluctuating Royalty paid to the Jaipur and Jodhpur Durbars contributed to the increase as compared with the actuals of the preceding year.	The savings from the Budget were due to the payment of smaller Salt Royalty to the Jaipur and Jodhpur States, and to certain other States, chiefly Tonk and Shahpur States, having left a portion of their dues undrawn.

Eastern Bengal and Assam.	91	1,00	80	Expenditure under Miscellaneous Compensations decreased by 7 through non-payment of Posa allowance to Akas, Duflas, Abors and Miris. Payments of Malikana also decreased by 4.	The non-payment of Posa allowances to some of the Hill Tribes and savings of 11 under Malikana the estimate for which was framed with reference to the unusually high actuals of 1909-10 caused expenditure to fall short of the Budget by 20.
Bengal	1,86	1,87	2,12		Excess over Budget was due to a special payment (15) of resumed land not provided for in Budget, and to arrear payments (10) of Malikana. The audit is not conducted against grant; the small excess over Revised grant was due to heavy payment of Malikana in February 1912.
United Provinces of Agra and Oudh.	3,27	3,21	3,04	Smaller payments in 1911-12, on account of allowance to excluded proprietors, were in the main the explanation of the decrease as compared with the actuals of the previous year.	Same remarks as in the column for Actuals.
Punjab	1,15	1,20	84	The actuals for 1910-11 included 13 on account of payment of Customs compensation to the Sirmur State which was in arrears in 1911-12 and a special debit of 6 under Land Revenue compensations.	The decrease was chiefly due to the superfluous provision of 15 on account of the compensations in the Hoshiarpur district under this head and to the payment of 13 on account of Customs compensation to the Sirmur State in 1912-1[illegible]

Bombay	1,03,37	1,03,33	1,03,89	The increase was chiefly in the adjustment of Assessment of Alienated Lands in Sind. owing to insufficiency of the water supply. On the other hand, in 1911-12 there were payments of arrears of Land Revenue compensations to certain village officers, Salt compensation to the Jinjuwada State, increased payments of Excise compensations to certain Native States in the Khandesh Agency owing to an increase in consumption and enhancement of Still Head duties, and advance payment to the Sachin State for Durbar expenses. The Sangli State also drew an instalment earlier than usual.	The excess was chiefly und[illegible] Excise compensations, owing to increased payments to certain Native States, consequent on an increase in the consumption of country liquor and enhancement of the rates of Still-Head duty. An instalment due to the Nawab of Sachin in 1912-13 was paid to him in advance for Durbar expenses. The Sangli State also drew an instalment earlier than usual. There were also payments of arrears of Salt compensations to the Jinjuwada State which were partially cov[illegible]d by savings in the grant for [illegible]pensation to the Jawhar State, caused by delay in completing the agreement.

80. As compared with previous actuals, the more important variations were an increase in Madras (1,47) due to enhanced Customs compensation paid to the Cochin Durbar and a decrease in India (80) due to smaller Salt Royalty payable to the Jodhpur and Jaipur States under the Sambhar Lake Treaty. The charge was paid with reference to the actual sales of the previous year.

India . . .	6,70	6,39	6,42	The decrease as compared with the actuals of 1910-11 was due chiefly to the settlement operations in Ajmer having drawn to a close.	The increase over the Budget was due to the payment of Grain Compensation Allowance, Royal Bonus and acting allowances in leave vacancies and to the revision of certain establishments in Coorg, Quetta and Ajmer for which no provision existed in the Budget.
Central Provinces .	39,07	39,60	39,07	There was a saving of 1,42 under Survey and Settlement establishment in 1911-12 as compared with the previous year. This saving was fully counterbalanced by expenditure on Royal Bonus and introduction of reforms in the Department of Land Records and Agriculture.	Large savings accrued under Survey and Settlement owing to the settlement operations in certain districts having approached completion during the year and to delay in the commencement of operations in one district. These savings were partially counterbalanced by charges on account of the Royal Bonus.
Burma . .	65,12	68,33	68,24	The increase over the actuals of 1910-11 was due to larger outlay under Compensation for Lands taken up for Public Purposes, to larger payments of commission on account of Land Revenue collections, capitation-tax and miscellaneous collections to the employment of a larger Land Records staff in Districts and consequent larger expenditure under Travelling Allowances, Supplies and Services, and Contingencies, and to the payment of bonus to Subordinates	The decrease below the Budget was due to the incomplete utilization of the provision made for the formation of the new Syriam District, to smaller outlay under General and Oil well establishments and under cost of boundary marks, to smaller expenditure on account of commission on Land Revenue and thathameda collections, to savings in Salaries under Commissioner of Settlements and Land Records, owing to the absence of the Commissioner on long leave and to the appointment of a Junior Officer as Deputy Director These savings were reduced by the excess under Land Records, owing to the contribution from Local Funds towards the cost of Supplementary Survey establishment having been only partially recovered, and by larger outlay under Town Survey charges, and by the payment of bonus to Subordinates.
Eastern Bengal and Assam.	45,94	49,51	48,81	The increase of expenditure, (2,87) was due to increases in— Establishment charges (83) owing to the new rates of pay introduced with the revision of Ministerial Establishments. Expenditure on management of Government Estates (62) owing to the employment of a larger number of officers on collection duty and to larger outlay on Agricultural and Miscellaneous public improvements. Salaries (44) owing to 3 additional appointments of Magistrates and Collectors and to the loan of officers from other Provinces. Collectorate Settlements (37). Royal Bonus (34) Against these increases there were small savings under Grain Compensation Allowance and Partition and Steam Boat Establishments.	Excluding the payment of Bonus (34), the net due to other accounts w ustoms Survey and Settleme Cochi accounted for a 1,90 of which 1,40 wa postponement of the Excise settlement and savings crease settlements the balance b ative to the economical wor rease the Drawing Office. Othe savings were 13 under Land Records mainly due to a junior officer holding the post of Director and 8 for establishing a fish curing yard in Sylhet which was not utilized. Under District Administration there was an excess of 74 on account of Contingencies mainly under Law Charges and Cost of Land. The estimate under Management of Government Estates was also exceeded partly owing to larger outlay than was provided for on Agricultural and Miscellaneous Improvements and partly to the non-collection of 15 paid to Local Funds for Road and Public Works Cess.

Bengal . . .	49,48	53,26	52,52	Increase over 1910-11 was due to payment of arrear salaries of Ministerial establishments for 3 years ending 1911-12 amounting in all to about 4,00 and Royal Bonus, partly set-off by savings of about 1,00 under Traverse Survey.	The Budget provided for salaries of Ministerial establishments at the enhanced rates for 1911-12 due to a reorganization and for payment of ⅓rd of arrears for the preceding two years resulting in an increase of over 2,00. The full amount of arrears for 3 years were, however, paid under special orders of Government resulting in an excess of about 1,00 over Budget. Expenditure on Traverse Survey and Maintenance of records of rights were, however, less than anticipated by about 2,00 which explains the net saving in Budget.
United Provinces of Agra and Oudh.	83,91	85,56	86,42	Excluding the special payment of 1,78 on account of the Royal Bonus the actuals for 1911-12 showed an increase of 73 only as compared with the previous year. This was mainly attributable to higher charges under Survey and Settlement and Land Records chiefly on Kanungo establishment consequent on the revision having effect during the whole of the year under report as against a part only of the previous year. The actuals for 1911-12 excluded the charges of the Deputy Superintendent of the Benares Maharaja's Family Domains which have now been taken over by the newly constituted Benares State.	Budget included lump provisions aggregating 30 for improvement of the cadre of Assistant Commissioners and Deputy Collectors which was not carried into effect. The provision of 85 for settlement operations in the Etawah and Fatehpur districts was also not fully utilized. The savings thus caused (about 44) as well as a decrease of 88 under Management of Government estates partly resulting from the leasing out of the Government estate at Allahabad and of 12 under partition contingencies were more than counterbalanced by the special payment of 1,78 on account of the Royal Bonus.
Punjab . . .	4[illegible]1	48,45	48,03	The increase over 1910-11 was due partly to the payment of the Royal Bonus (82) and partly to the re-organization of the Provincial Service.	The decrease chiefly occurred under Survey and Settlement (92) and Land Records (28). Under the former it was due to a smaller Establishment having been entertained than provided for for Settlement operations in certain districts, while under the latter it occurred under the Patwaris establishment, due chiefly to the non-utilization of the provision for the construction of Patwarkhanas and to savings in establishment due to new incumbents having been appointed on the minimum pay, counterbalanced by higher expenditure under Sub-Divisional Salaries and Travelling Allowance and Contingencies of the general establishment and bonus to Patwaris
North-West Frontier Province.	5,88	6,14	6,04	The increase over 1910-11 was due to the payment of the Royal Bonus and to increase in the pay of menials.	The decrease below the Budget was chiefly under Land Records and was due to savings in the charges for Patwaris counterbalanced to some extent by an expenditure of 6 on account of Royal Bonus.
Madras .	1,27,50	1,31,77	1,29,38	Increase was due to payments of the Royal Bonus, the revision of village establishments and the formation of the Chittoor and Ramnad Districts.	Savings in Budget were due to lapse of lump provisions for the revision of taluk establishments and pay of Deputy Tahsildars, savings under Salaries, Grain Compensation Allowance and temporary Inam Establishments, and owing to irregular drawing of allowances by village officers.

Bombay . . .	78,67	81,81	82,73	There was an increase of 4,05, due to Payments of Royal Bonus (90), and of arrears to village officers and extra allowances in connection with scarcity (58) and Grain Compensation Allowance (56). There was also larger expenditure on the development of Sálsette (38), construction of chávdis (35), temporary establishments (30), and the introduction of the new form of Jagni accounts (9). Under Salaries, Establishments, Allowances and Contingencies also there were increases due to larger number of officers having been on duty on account of the Royal Visit and the famine conditions obtaining in certain parts of the Presidency	The Budget allowed for a lump deduction of 1,00 for probable savings, but the anticipation was not realized owing to payments of Royal Bonus (90), Grain Compensation (56), and extra allowances to village officers in connection with scarcity (24) which were not provided for. The excess was, however, met partly by an additional grant and partly from the savings in the provisions for temporary establishments of various kinds The net expenditure on chávdis (village offices) was much less owing to larger recoveries of popular contributions which were adjusted by deduction from charges. Service Postage charges and cost of boundary marks were also less. The contributions from the Tálukdári Estates were backward owing to the bad season in Gujarát, but the decrease was counterbalanced by recoveries of arrears from Encumbered Estates in Sind There was also an increase in the adjustment on account of Assessment of Alienated Lands owing to an under-estimate in Sitára and revision of settlement in Dhárwár.

83. As compared with the actuals of 1910-11 there was a large increase of 18,58 which occurred in all provinces except India. Apart from the special charges in connection with the Royal Bonus which affected all Provinces, the increases were practically anticipated and provided for. The variations were most marked in Bombay (4,06), due besides the charges for the Royal Bonus (90), to the presence of famine conditions in some parts of the Presidency, to Grain Compensation Allowances, to the Royal Visit, the construction of Chardis (villages offices) and larger expenditure on the development of Salsette ; in Burma (3,12) due to payments for land taken up for public purposes, and larger commissions on revenue collections ; in Bengal (3,04) due almost entirely to the payments in connection with the reorganisation of the ministerial establishments ; in Eastern Bengal and Assam (2,87) due to additional appointments and increase in establishment charges following on the improvement of the pay of ministerial establishments and in the United Provinces (2,51) due to Royal Bonus (1,78) and higher charges under Survey and Settlement resulting from the revision of the Kanungo establishment.

84. The Budget provided for special expenditure in several Provinces. The Budget was exceeded in Bombay (92), the United Provinces (86), and India (13), but on the whole the actuals were better by 3,09. The excess in Bombay was due to the payments of Royal Bonus, Grain Compensation Allowances, and allowances in connection with the scarcity already referred to. In the United Provinces the charges in connection with the Royal Bonus more than absorbed the provision made for improving the cadre of Assistant Commissioners and Deputy Collectors, which was not carried out, and other small savings. There was a large decrease (2,39) in Madras due to the lapse of the special provision made for the revision of Taluq establishments and the pay of Deputy Tahsildars.

85 There were excesses over the Provincial grants in Eastern Bengal and Assam (50) and Bengal (1,41). In the case of the former, the excess occurred in March, when the expenditure was much in excess of the normal and was not anticipated The excess requires the sanction of the Government of India In the case of Bengal, the excess was considerable and was due to the payments made in March of the full amount of arrears (3,50) due to the reorganisation of the ministerial establishments with effect from May 1909. Only a portion of these charges were provided for and as the bills were paid in March, at the request of the Local Government, the amount likely to be required could not be accurately estimated in time and the grant was exceeded The excess has since received the sanction of the Local Government.

86. In Bombay the Contract Contingent Grants were exceeded by several Collectors and a sum of Rs. 4,794 was under objection on this account. The cases are being brought specially to the notice of the Local Government.

Budget provided for expenditure of the Opium godowns only at Calcutta. Increase over Budget was due to the raising of freight on abkari opium chests carried from Calcutta to Rangoon for which a reappropriation was sanctioned by the Local Government.
United Provinces of Agra and Oudh	..	1,76,77	1,08,46	The bulk of the decrease appeared under payments to cultivators for the reasons set forth against Budget. Absence of charges on account of the Behar agency in the year under report coupled with the abolition of the Patna Factory in the closing months of the year also contributed towards the decrease.	There were decreases under all the minor heads generally attributable to contraction of departmental operations. Smaller outturn of crop partly owing to the failure of the 1910-11 season and partly to a considerable curtailment in 1911-12, of the area for cultivation resulted in a large saving (65,03) in the grant for payments to cultivators. The Patna and Ghazipur Factories showed a decrease of 1,20 chiefly due to lower outlay on freight and manufacturing charges. The saving of 2,02 under District Staff was caused by absence of officers on leave and reduction of establishment and the consequent smaller payment of travelling allowance and by lower outlay on Commission to cultivators, [illegible] and weighment as also on rents and taxes. The special expenditure on account of the Royal Bonus aggregated about 11.

87. The decrease as compared both with the previous actuals (77,74) and the Budget (68,27) was the result of the contraction of departmental operations and occurred chiefly under payment to cultivators, where the expenditure was 65,03 better than the Budget and was due to curtailment of the area of cultivation and an unfavourable season in 1910-11. The large lapse due to the curtailment of the area of cultivation would appear to indicate an inaccurate Budget estimate

India . .	12,27	11,95	11,44	The decrease from the actuals of the preceding year was due to smaller expenditure on manufacture and excavation	Manufacture of a smaller quantity of salt owing to failure of rains at the Sambhar Lake produced the betterness as compared with the Budget.
Burma . . .	28	34	27		The saving in comparison with the Budget was due to the provision made for the additional establishment for the Amherst District not having been utilized
Eastern Bengal and Assam.	74	85	74		The provision of 7 for purchase of boats and of 1 for uniforms was not utilized. There was also some saving under salaries.
Bengal . . .	2,76	3,28	2,72		Budget for rent, steamer and boat charges was over-estimated.
Madras . . .	16,67	16,31	17,31	The increase occurred mainly under Purchase of Salt, Charges for conveying and storing salt and Petty Works for manufacture and storage of salt	The excess over Budget was attributed to the quantity of salt manufactured in the season of 1911 having exceeded anticipations and to the model Saltern opened at Vayalur having had to be completed in 1911-12.
Bombay . . .	23,46	22,17	24,68	The actuals of the previous year included 31 on account of the conversion of the schooner "Pelican" into a steamer and the expenditure on the Udu Salt Sidings was larger in that year by 1,77 On the other hand there were payments on account of Royal Bonus and Grain Compensation in 1911-12. 88. The expenditure was better than in 1910-11 by 1,02, the result of decreases in India (83) due to less manufacture owing to the failure of rains at the Sambhar Lakes and in Bombay ([illegible]8) due to the exclusion of the bulk of the special expenditure of the previous year, and an increase in Madras (64) due to large manufactures of salt in 1911 As compared with the Budget the expenditure was greater in Madras (1,00) and Bombay (51). In Madras it was due to larger manufacture of salt in 1911 and the continuance of expenditure on the construction of the model Saltern at Vayalur and in Bombay, to the Royal Bonus and Grain Compensation Allowance.

89. An excess of 21 in Madras requires the sanction of the Government of India. The excess occurred in the closing months and was not anticipated.

India	—15,17	—15,63	—15,98	The betterness as compared with the actuals of 1910-11 was due chiefly to a larger debit to the Post Office on account of cost of unified Stamps.	The betterness as compared with the Budget was the net result of larger debits to the Post Office on account of cost of unified stamps (46), smaller expenditure incurred on purchase of plain paper (9) counterbalanced by smaller recoveries from the Provincial Governments for stamp supplies (19) and an unforeseen payment of 1 on account of the Royal Bonus.
Central Provinces	1,18	1,30	1,27	The increase was partly due to larger sales of stamps and partly to a larger supply of Stamp Paper from Central Stores.

The excesses under the minor heads were covered by reappropriations sanctioned by the Local Government within the year.
Punjab	1,63	1,70	1,77	The increase over 1910-11 occurred chiefly under Stamps supplied from Central Stores, consequent on increased sales.	Increase was due to increased supplies from Central Stores.

Bombay	2,33	2,37	2,28	A decrease in the sale of Court-Fee stamps led to a smaller charge for issues from Central Stores and to smaller payments for discount, but the Royal Bonus and Grain Compensation charges and increased charges for Establishment, Packing and Conveyance and Value of and freight on Europe Stores slightly reduced the saving.	The variations are chiefly due to a smaller number of Non-Judicial and Court-Fee Stamps issued, saving in Establishment, Packing and Postage charges, and smaller payments on account of discount on the sale of Court-Fee Stamps owing to a decrease of the corresponding Revenue

India	1,70	1,55	1,52	The higher actuals in 1910-11 were on account of the charges of the Excise Laboratory at Kasauli closed from 1st January 1912.
Central Provinces	2,76	3,08	2,90	The increase was due to the gradual introduction of a revised scale of establishment and to the grant of the Royal Bonus.	The saving was due to establishments up to the full sanctioned scale not having been worked up to pending the investigation of the work of Excise Officers under the orders of the Local Administration and to the consequent delay in the selection of clerks, to the entertainment of peons on lower rates of pay against vacancies in higher grades, and to savings under Travelling Allowance of establishment and Contingencies. The above savings were partially counterbalanced by the grant of the Royal Bonus.
Burma	11,82	13,52	11,93		The decrease below the Budget was chiefly due to the lapse of the lump provision made for the reorganisation of the District Executive Establishment, to smaller outlay on Allowances, Supplies and Services, and Contingencies, to the non-entertainment of the full sanctioned strength of Excise Officers and to the non-utilisation of the provision made under Superintendence for the pay and allowances of Excise Inspectors.
Eastern Bengal and Assam.	3,11	3,14	3,21	Excluding an expenditure of 3 on Royal Bonus, charges increased by 8 in spite of a saving of 5 on hill allowances to the Head-quarters Establishments due to its removal from Shillong. The revision of the Ministerial Establishments accounted for an increase of 3 and the balance was due to larger expenditure on rewards, remuneration to coolies and purchase of gunny, twine and instruments.	The excess over the Budget was due to the revision of the Ministerial Establishments and payment of Royal Bonus in equal proportions.
Bengal	8,83	9,50	9,12	Increase over 1910-11 was chiefly due to payment of Royal Bonus (10), larger payment of ministerial officers' salaries arising from the reorganization and travelling allowances	Budget included 50 for the amalgamation of the Excise with the Salt Department which was not utilized. Excluding this, the increase over Budget was 12 due to payment of Royal Bonus.
United Provinces of Agra and Oudh.	3,60	3,87	3,92	The actuals for 1911-12 included charges on account of the additional Distillery staff entertained in connection with the extension to Bundelkhand and Kumaon of the contract system of supplying liquors for the full year as against a part only of the previous year, as also higher expenditure on rewards and the special charge on account of the Royal Bonus.	The small increase was covered by re-appropriation sanctioned by the Local Government within the year.
Punjab	1,09	1,78	1,71	...	The decrease was due to savings partly under Salaries and partly under Contingencies counterbalanced to some extent by an increase due to the fact that the Budget did not provide for the share of pay and travelling allowance of the Inspector of Distilleries.

Bombay . .	9,46	9,99	10,57	The actuals of 1910-11 included 62 on account of the recovery of establishment contribution from Opium Farmers, which has been discontinued from the 1st April 1911. On the other hand, in 1911-12 there was an increase in expenditure in consequence of the reorganisation of establishments and payments of Royal Bonus and Grain Compensation. Higher expenditure under Value of, and Freight on, Europe Stores and Conveyance of Excise Opium also contributed towards the excess.	The lump deduction of 70 for probable savings proved too high. The savings which accrued in the provisions for additional Clerical Establishments owing to delay in sanction and in the grants for Rewards to Informers, Clothing, Postage Charges, Petty Supplies and Peons' uniforms were partially appropriated to meet charges on account of Royal Bonus (11), Grain Compensation (8) and Payments to Officers of other Provinces (3). The excess over the net grant was, however, foreseen and met by reappropriations from other heads.

				Actuals, 1910-11.	Budget, 1911-12.
India . . .	7,34	8,95	8,31	The introduction of a time-scale of pay in the Provincial Forest Service and the appointment of a larger number of Research Officers at Dehra contributed to the increase over the actuals of the preceding year.	Decrease was due chiefly to the provision in the Port Blair Budget for a slipway (40) not having been required.
Central Provinces	15,90	17,11	18,38	The average growth of expenditure calculated on the figures of four normal years was 1,74. The abnormal increase of 2,48 in the actuals of 1911-12 as compared with 1910-11 was due to a sum of 1,01 incurred on the operations undertaken to supply grass to famine-stricken districts in the Bombay Presidency and the grant of the Royal Bonus of 14.	The excess was due to the unexpected expenditure on grass operations and the grant of the Royal Bonus.
Burma . . .	40,05	43,72	42,57	Increase was due to the introduction of the time-scale of pay in the Provincial Service, the strengthening of the subordinate service and to a larger outlay on extraction of timber by Government agency counterbalanced by a falling off in departmental extraction and suspension of Khedda operations.	The decrease in comparison with the Budget was mainly caused by the curtailment of Departmental extraction of timber in the Tenasserim Circle and by the suspension of Khedda operations in anticipation of the dissolution of the department.
Eastern Bengal and Assam.	10,87	10,95	[illegible]1,10	Establishment charges rose by 35 a result to which the introduction of the time scale of pay, revision of subordinate forest establishment and payment of Royal Bonus (6) and larger travelling allowance contributed. Under Conservancy and Works reduced extraction and carriage of timber to sale depôts for delivery to Railway Companies caused a decrease of 17.	The completion of departmental works undertaken in th[illegible] previous year for supply of timbe[illegible] the Eastern Bengal State Ra[illegible] and the Engineer-in-Chief in charge of the Lower Ganges Bridge for which advance payments were made in 1910-11 caused an excess of 44 over the Estimates under Timber and other produce removed from the Forests by Government Agency. Bengal . . .	6,43	7,34	7,06	Increase over 1910-11 was due to payment to the Rajah of Porahat on account of arrear rent, 41 and larger payment of salaries (37) due to re-organization partly balanced by smaller expenditure under other heads. This was mainly attributable to larger outlay on communications and buildings (40) chiefly in the Western Circle for road work in the Naini Tal district and proper housing of the Forest subordinates, on Establishment (31) chiefly due to revision of the Provincial Forest Service and development of the District Protected Forests and on fuel and turpentine operations in the Naini Tal and Chakrata divisions (10) counterbalanced by smaller payment to the Maharaja of Tehri (37).	Taking into consideratio[illegible] provision of 88 for [illegible] the lump of District Protec[illegible]opment there was a small[illegible]sts of 80 as compared [illegible]se Budget. 					absence of officers on leave. The special payments to Colonel Ward for surrender of certain land and buildings (48) and higher outlay in the Western Circle on roads and buildings (18), and on account of the Royal Bonus (6) however, partly set off the decrease.
Punjab	7,41	7,69	7,65	Increase over 1910-11 was due to the extraction of a larger quantity of fire-wood in the Lahore Division, the extension of the rosin factory in the Rawalpindi Division, the introduction of the time scale of pay for the Provincial Service and the payment of Bonus, counterbalanced by a smaller expenditure in connection with the Patriata ropeway. 1910-11 also included the contribution to the Public Works Department for the improvement and maintenance of Hindustan-Tibet Road.
North-West Frontier Province.	72	1,10	90	Increase over 1910-11 is due to additional Executive and Provincial establishment.	The decrease was partly due to the abandonment of the execution of certain projects and partly to no seigniorage having been paid on the trees in the Jhelum Circle which were not sold.
Madras	[illegible]2,23	35,26	31,15	Increase was due to larger charges on construction and maintenance, larger expenditure on fire protection, payment of a special item of compensation (20), the formation of a new Circle and the introduction of the time scale of pay for the Provincial Service counterbalanced by a savings due to decrease under Firewood and Charcoal, closing of sale depôts and a decrease under Sowing and Planting	The decrease below Budget occurred mainly under Firewood and Charcoal corresponding to the decrease under receipts and was due to the programme of departmental operations not having been fully worked up to on account of the non-renewal of railway contracts and to closure of sale depôts. There was also a decrease under Grain Compensation Allowance due to menials on the temporary establishment having been declared ineligible for it. The savings under the above heads were partly counterbalanced by increased charges on the construction of roads and bridges and on account of the formation of a new circle and the payment of Royal Bonus.
Bombay	20,70	24,20	26,61	Excluding the expenditure on famine grass (3,12), the excess of 2,32 over the actuals of 1910-11, was mostly due to increased expenditure on the reorganization of the Subordinate Forest Establishments, introduction of the time scale of pay for the officers of the Provincial Forest Service, payments of Royal Bonus and Grain Compensation Allowance, larger expenditure on collection of Mhowra and Hirda seeds, and larger supplies of timber to Depôts in the Southern Circle and of fuel to the Madras and Southern Maratha Railway.	Excluding 3,62 spent on Famine Grass operations the ordinary expenditure was 23,02. Larger collections of Mhowra seed and Hirda and larger payments for timber and firewood brought to Government Depôts caused some excess expenditure, but in consequence of orders of Government enjoining economy certain Forest works were postponed and the reorganisation of the staff was only partially introduced.

98. There was a very large increase in expenditure (16,31) as compared with previous actuals which was, however, to a great extent anticipated and provided for in the Budget. So that the increase as compared with the Budget (94) was small. The Budget provided for normal growth and for the reorganisation of the Provincial Forest Service in consequence of the introduction of the time-scale of pay. The operations undertaken for the supply of grass to famine-stricken districts in the Bombay Presidency entailed a special and unexpected expenditure in Bombay (3,62) and in the Central Provinces (1,01). Excluding this special charge, the expenditure was well within the Budget As compared with the previous actuals and excluding the special grass operations the increase was largely due to the reorganisations of the Service It was the result of increases in all provinces but chiefly in Bombay (2,32) where large collections of Mhowra and Hirda seeds, larger receipts of timber at depôts and of supplies of firewood to the Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway also contributed to the increase; in Burma (2,52), where a larger outlay on the extraction of timber by Government agency was met by a decrease due to the suspension of Kheddah operations in view of the closing of the Department; in Madras (1,89) where there were in addition increased charges on construction and maintenance of communications and buildings and on fire protection and a special payment of compensation (20) in the Jarugumalai reserve suit and in the United Provinces (1,26) due also to a special item of compensation (48) to Colonel Ward for surrender of certain lands and buildings in the reserve forests, to larger outlay on communications and buildings and the cost of settlement in connection with the development of the District Protected Forests.

99. As compared with the Budget and apart from the special grass operations, the variations was unimportant except for decreases in Burma (1,15) due to suspension of Kheddah operations in anticipation of the closing of the department and to the curtailment of departmental extraction of timber and in Madras (1,11) due to less departmental operations on account of the non-renewal of railway contracts and to the closure of sale depots

100. An excess of 6 occurred in the North-West Frontier Province too late to obtain an extra grant The sum of 3 requires the sanction of the Government of India, while the sanction of the Local Administration has been accorded to the remainder.

The increase was due to the causes mentioned in the column for Actuals.
Burma . . .	89	86	98	The increase was mainly due to larger payments made to registering officers in consequence of the increase in revenue and to the entertainment of a greater number of paid non-official Sub-Registrars.	Compared with the Budget, the increase occurred chiefly in the Hanthawaddy, Henzada, Pegu Rangoon, Myaungmya, Pyapon, Tharrawaddy and Toungoo Districts.
Eastern Bengal and Assam.	6,30	6,26	6,28	The payment of Royal Bonus amounted to 7 and setting aside this unusual item, expenditure decreased by 9. Expenditure on salaries of Sub-Registrars, however, increased by 10 owing to regrading and the net decrease was due to savings of 8 under Contingencies 5 under Establishment, and 5 under Superintendence, the last saving being due to the stoppage of Hill Allowances to the head-quarters establishment on its transfer to Dacca from Shillong.	An excess expenditure of 7 on account of Royal Bonus was almost balanced by a saving of 5 due to the stoppage of Hill Allowances to the Head Quarters Establishment on its transfer from Shillong to Dacca.
Bengal . . .	7,74	7,94	8,07	Actuals, 1911-12, included 8 on account of Royal Bonus. The real growth was therefore 25, which was due to opening of new Sub-Registry offices.	Increase over Budget was due to payment of Royal Bonus (8), to payment of privilege leave allowances, and to large deductions on account of probable savings. The excess occurred chiefly in February (8) and March 1912 (3), and the actuals appeared too late to permit of extra grant being obtained within the year
United Provinces of Agra and Oudh.	2,83	2,95	2,93	Delay in the introduction of the revised scheme for remunerating Sub-Registrars otherwise than by commission resulted in smaller payments in 1910-11 of salaries and commission combined. This coupled with the payment of the Royal Bonus in 1911-12 accounted for the increase in the actuals.

North-West Frontier Province	10	10	11
Madras . . .	12,08	12,59	12,49	The increase was due to Royal Bonus and opening of new Sub-Registry offices.	Decrease below Budget was due to large savings under salaries and to the provision for new sub-registry offices and revision of clerical establishments not having been fully utilized.
Bombay . . .	3,78	3,88	3,80	The abolition of village Registration offices caused a decrease, but payments of Royal Bonus and Grain Compensation counterbalanced it.	The saving in the grant was due to the abolition of Village Registration offices from April 1911. The Royal Bonus and Grain Compensation, however, partly absorbed the saving.

This produced a worseness of 1,64 in 1911-12 as compared with 1910-11. Normal interest charges on the current loans also were more by 6,56. On the other hand, there was a betterness of 48 under the 4 per cent Loan in consequence of the repayment of the annual instalment of 12 lakhs to the Gwalior Durbar. These variations contributed to the worseness of 7,72 in the gross expenditure of the year under report as compared with that in the preceding year.	Compared with the Budget the saving of nearly 5,60 was due to the full amount of interest due not having been claimed.

This has now been sanctioned by the Local Government.
Punjab .	2,16	2,06	2,08	The decrease below 1910-11 was due to a larger balance remaining outstanding at the beginning of that year than at the beginning of 1911-12.	The excess was sanctioned by the Local Government during the year.

Bombay	5,96	5,77	6,36	The variations in the actuals of the two years were due to prevailing scarcity in parts of the Presidency. In Gujarat more Talukdars took advantage of the cash-down system and re-payments were smaller. Provincialization of loans to certain non-jurisdictional Native States and larger loans to the Poona City Municipality and to the District Local Board, East Khandesh, caused the major portion of the excess.	The excess was due to large advances owing to scarcity, to provincialization of loans to the extent of 5,41 to certain non-jurisdictional States, and to fresh loans to the extent of 16,22 to certain Native States on account of famine out of the grants placed at the disposal of Political Agents. The excess would have been still greater, but for the recovery to the extent of 1,58 on account of provincialized loans and 61 36 from Patwardhan Shastri estate (the whole loan having been repaid) and larger repayments by the Ahmednagar and the Jalgaon Municipalities. The Hubli Municipality also did not draw the full amount of the sanctioned loan of 2,00.

Control	23,22	24,30	23,82		Savings in budget (48) were the net result of minor fluctuations The requirements of Circle Officers, Post Offices under Supplies and Services and Contingencies were lower than was estimated (1,08), but this was partly counterbalanced by the payment of Royal Bonus (16) and the increased payment under salaries and establishment (46) due to annual increments and extra cost of leave arrangements for which no provision was made in the Budget.
Office of Account and Audit	8,03	8,62	8,29		Savings in Budget were due to vacancies not having been filled and also to the transfer of a portion of the cost of the Accountant-General's Office to the Telegraphs for which no allowance was made in the Post Office Budget.
Presidency and District Offices	1,66,91	1,70,58	1,74,18		Budget provided for a growth of 5,10 due to normal expansion excluding items of special charges, which were higher by 1,43 in 1910-11. Excess over Budget was chiefly due to the payment of 3,08 under Royal Bonus and of 1,70 under Grain Compensation Allowance for which no provision was made. These excess charges were partly set off by lapses under establishment (85) due to the lump provisions (3,00) for the revision of fixed Post Office establishment not having been fully utilised and also to smaller charges on account of plague (33) due to the outbreak of plague being less virulent than in the preceding year.
Conveyance of Mails	64,95	68,96	65,41		Budget provided for an advance of 4,66 chiefly on account of additional accommodation on some lines and for new lines and sections expected to be opened for the Railway Mail Service and increased provision under construction of vans. No provision was made for the payment of Grain Compensation Allowance which amounted to 65 in the previous year. Actuals for 1911-12 included payment of grain allowance to the extent of 70 but the savings of nearly 4,25 occurred mainly under Railway Charges (2,22) and Construction of Vans (2,03). The estimates for Railway Charges prepared by the Inspector-General, Railway Mail Service and Sorting, were approved by the Director General, but the requirements of Railway accommodation were lower than was anticipated owing to the growth in the bulk of mails not being to the extent that was expected. Decrease was also due to the non-utilisation of the provision (2,03) under Construction of Vans due to the abolition of the outward Punjab Special as the present number of bogie overland vans was found sufficient for the remaining overland services by postal special trains.
Stationery and Printing	11,64	10,82	9,42		Budget provision under this head proved to be largely in excess of actual requirements. The estimates as well as the accounts prepared by the local officers were generally accepted.

The estimate for Repairs of Lines was for normal requirements as the average expenditure on previous three years amounted to 10,41. The actuals for 1911-12 amounted to 7,99 only although a provision of 10,31 was made by the Director-General based on the average expenditure.
Signalling	72,98	80,30	77,94		Savings in the Budget (2,36) occurred under clerks and servants (81), Telegraph Masters and Telegraphists (52) and Military Telegraphists (15). The estimated amount sanctioned under house-rent and local allowance was not required (28). The expenditure on account of materials required for replacement of consumable and perishable stores used in Signal Offices was (61) less than the Budget.

107. The expenditure of the Indian Telegraph Department in this country was 9,37 more than in 1910-11 mainly owing to a larger programme of works having been undertaken for installation of Radio stations at Bombay, Karachi, Nagpur and Lahore, to revision of Signal office establishments, to larger payments of pie money and travelling allowances, to the payment of Royal Bonus and special charges in connection with the Royal Visit and the Coronation Durbar, partly counterbalanced by savings in the annual repair charges.

108. The increase in English expenditure (55,1) was due to an increased payment to the Marconi Company for the installation of Radio offices (40,0) and to larger outlay on purchase of stores from England (16,0)

109. In the Indian Telegraph Department there was a decrease as compared with the Budget (5,33) This was the result of a decrease under Revenue charges (6,77) which was the result of an over-estimate of requirements on several accounts. The grant under Capital was exceeded (1,50) mainly owing to the installation of Radio stations in India. The Director-General of Telegraphs was requested in the Accountant General, Post Office and Telegraphs' letter No. D. G.-479, dated 13th February 1912, to apply to the Government of India for an additional grant of 1,66 to meet the estimated excess expenditure but a reappropriation of 68 only from the grant for Revenue expenditure in India to that for Capital expenditure was sanctioned by the Government of India in Commerce and Industry Department letter No. 1828-206, dated 27th February 1912, and this reappropriation partly covered the excess outlay. The excess under Capital was, however, more than covered by the lapse under Revenue charges.

110 In the Indo-European Department the decrease as compared with the Budget (2,05) was due to savings in the Revenue expenses, nearly half of which occurred under repairs to cables. The excess under Capital (7) was very small and could not be foreseen in time to apply for an additional grant during the year

India . . .	65,69	1,55,39	1,31.22	The worseness, as compared with the actuals of the preceding year was principally on account of the expenditure in connection with the Royal Visit and the Coronation Durbar.	The Budget included a lump provision of 90,40 on account of the Royal Visit and the Coronation Durbar against which actuals amounted to 66,55 only. The savings occurred chiefly in the charges of the Central Committee and were also due to recoveries from sale of dismantled properties having exceeded the estimate. It included also a provision of 1,91 on account of the charges of the Accountant General, Railways, which, under later orders, are being adjusted in the Railway books. These being eliminated, the variation from the Budget reduced itself to a worseness of nearly 1,50 which fell almost wholly under the Civil Secretariats chiefly on account of the entertainment of a large number of officers on special duty. The differences under other heads nearly balanced one another.
Central Provinces .	10,28	11,90	12,39	The increase in 1911-12 was chiefly due to the following causes :— (a) A sum of 2,04 was spent on the Royal Visit. (b) The amalgamation of the Civil and Public Works Account offices resulted in a net increase of 26 under this head. These increases were partially counterbalanced by savings under establishments of the Civil Secretariat.	The chief increases were under the head Royal Visit and Civil Secretariat, the increase under the latter head being due mainly to the employment of officers on special duty. These excesses were to a great extent counterbalanced by savings effected by the amalgamation of the Civil and Public Works Account offices and by savings under Staff and Household of the Chief Commissioner
Burma . . .	18,99	21,79	24,73	The increase as compared with previous actuals was mainly due to the Royal Visit, to the amalgamation of the Civil and Public Works Accounts offices and to temporary establishment in the Currency Office.	The increase over the Budget was chiefly due to the increased expenditure under Royal Visit sanctioned by the Government of India, to the entertainment of a large temporary establishment in the Currency Office, to excess expenditure under Hill Journey Charges, to increase under Officer on special duty and Clerks under Civil Secretariat. The excess was partly counterbalanced by savings under Furniture grant, Tour charges, and Establishment and Allowances of Civil Offices of Account and Audit (Provincial).
Eastern Bengal and Assam.	15,32	19,85	22,48	The increase of expenditure was chiefly due to the Delhi Durbar, (4,28) to the transfer of Headquarters from Shillong to Dacca and the breaking up of establishments at Dacca owing to rearrangement of Provinces (1,70), and to miscellaneous causes (1,22). The increase of 1,70 was due to an increase under Tour Charges, and Travelling Allowance (85) including items under Civil Secretariat, office of Account and Audit, Tour charges and expenditure from contract allowance. 				Furniture (70) for furnishing Government Houses at Dacca and Chittagong and in connection with offices at Dacca, and under Office Expenses (45) representing in the main the cost of packing and despatch of office records, counterbalanced by a saving of 30 under Hill Allowances due to the removal of the Secretariat and Account offices from Shil'ong. The increase under Miscellaneous Causes (122) occurred under Civil office of Account and Audit (70) owing to the Public Works portion of the office being included under this head instead of under 45—Civil Works as before, under Civil Secretariat (30) representing payment of a subsidy to a vernacular paper, and under Commissioners (22) owing to privilege leave arrangements and revision of the Ministerial establishment. It may be noted that the expenditure in connection with the Delhi Durbar was not final, further expenditure remaining to be incurred and recoveries to be made.	on furniture obtained for the new Government House at Dacca and the Government House at Chittagong. The Royal Bonus amounted to 6 under this head. Against these there were savings under Civil Officer of Account and Audit (4) on account of less expenditure on Salaries, Travelling Allowances and Contingencies, under Inspector General of Register tion (6) and Legislative Council (4).
Bengal	23,32	29,13	34,08	Actuals 1911-12 included 7,78 on account of the Royal Visit Excluding this, the other items amounted to 26,25 against 23,32 in 1910-11. The increase was due to inclusion of charges for Public Work audit and accounting (1,46), to payment of a full year's charge of the Executive Council (1,33), to increased Secretariat charges (60) due to the creation of a separate Judicial Branch and the reorganization of establishment and to payment of the Royal Bonus (10). Against these there was a saving of 58 under Board of Revenue chiefly due to reduction of members from 2 to 1.	Budget provided for normal expenditure and 3,00 for expenditure on Provincial camps and guests in connection with the Coronation Durbar. In the actual result all charges in connection with the Royal Visit, including illumination and other charges, which amounted to 7,78 were adjusted under this head. The excess expenditure was met by an additional grant of 97 from the Government of India and by reappropriations, amounting to 5,59 sanctioned by the Local Government chiefly from the Public Works heads.
United Provinces of Agra and Oudh.	21,67	23,53	23,96	Excluding from the actuals for 1910-11, the special expenditure of 1,21 in connection with the visit of His Imperial Highness the Crown Prince of Germany, (debited under Staff and Household and under Contract Allowance), of about 66 for officers on special duty in the Civil Secretariat and 10 consequent on the grant of leave to Sir John Hewett and similarly from the actuals from 1911-12, the special payments of 2,69, consequent on the Royal Visit, the charges on account of the Public Works Branch of the Account Office amounting to 86 transferred to this head from the current year; expenditure of about 29 for officers on special duty in the Secretariat	Higher outlay in connection with the Royal Visit (84) alone more than accounted for the increase over the Budget. Larger expenditure from the Contract Allowance of His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor (15,—of which 10 only was sanctioned by the Secretary of State as a temporary measure and the balance of 5 representing the cost of a motor car payable out of the ordinary grant was adjusted by reduction of the grant for 1912-13,)—and on purchase of tents and salaries of officers on special duty in the Secretariat (about 18) and Royal Bonus (7) also contributed towards the increase. The excess thus caused was partly counterbalanced by savings and for Royal Bonus (7), the actuals showed an increase of 46 only over the previous year. This was chiefly attributable to higher outlay under the Imperial Section of the Account Office, mainly under Salaries, and to larger expenditure from Contract Allowance and under Commissioners consequent on the creation of the new Bundelkhand division partly counterbalanced by petty savings.	under Commissioners almost entirely due to the delay in the creation of the Bundelkhand division, under Legislative Council and Staff and Household owing respectively to lower expenditure on salaries and travelling allowance and to non-utilization of the special grants for renewal of curtains, etc., and under Currency (10) chiefly attributable to the appointment of a junior officer and also by other petty savings. The excess under the minor head Royal Visit (Rajputana)—Imperial and Civil office of Account and Audit—Imperial were not covered by reappropriations sanctioned within the year. The former was trifling and hence an additional grant was not arranged for. In respect of the latter application for a re-appropriation was submitted to the Comptroller-General too late to admit of orders being passed by the Government of India within the year. Both these excesses were, however, covered by general savings under the Imperial Section.

Punjab . . .	14,29	16,95	18,83	The increase over 1910-11 was due to Durbar expenditure, to the amalgamation of the office of the late Examiner, Public Works Accounts with the Civil Account Office, to the appointment of the Second Financial Commissioner and his establishment and the raising of the salary of the Junior Secretary to the Financial Commissioner, counterbalanced to some extent by a decrease caused by the abolition of the office of Inspector-General of Stamps, etc. (47)	The increase was chiefly due to the expenditure of 2,59 in connection with the Coronation Durbar for which a provision of 80 only was made in the Budget, counterbalanced to some extent by decreases under Commissioners (26) and Account Offices (19). The former was due to an over-estimate of the provision made for the leave allowances of Commissioners and the non-utilization of the provision of 10 made for the purchase of a motor car. The latter was ascribed partly to the appointment of a Junior Officer as Examiner, Local Funds.
North-West Frontier Province.	3,17	4,53	3,09		The decrease was chiefly under Royal Visit (1,08) due to the whole Durbar expenditure being adjusted on the books of the Comptroller India, Treasuries, under Secretariat (18) due to the abolition of the appointments of Mir Munshi and Nazir and to the non-utilization of the provision made for the revision of establishment, under Tour Charges (12) due to smaller expenditure on tours by the Chief Commissioner and under Revenue Commissioner (12) due to the non-utilization of the provision made for revision of establishment and purchase of tents.
Madras . . .	15,68	20,29	22,54	Increase was due to the Royal Visit, the amalgamation of the Civil and Public Works Account offices and reorganization of the staff and to the increase of pay of the Deputy Secretary and the appointment of a Curator for the Central Record Office.	Increase was mainly due to the actual expenditure on account of the Royal visit having exceeded the lump provision made for the purpose.

Bombay	22,84	26,38	34,80	The actuals of 1910-11 did not include charges of the Public Works Section of the Account Office (1,42) which were included in 1911-12 owing to the amalgamation of the Civil and Public Works Account offices. The expenditure on account of the Royal Visit and payments of Royal Bonus and Grain Compensation were responsible for the greater portion of the excess over the previous year.	The actuals of 1911-12 included special expenditure of 10,13 incurred on Their Imperial Majesties' Visit to India and the Durbar held at Delhi. All direct charges in this connection, whether Imperial or Provincial and whether incurred in the Civil or Public Works Department, were debited to this head and treated as Provincial, corresponding assignments in the case of the Imperial portion of the expenditure having been sanctioned to Provincial Revenues through the Land Revenue head. The charges for the Royal Tour in this Presidency amounted to 27, while the charges for the Durbar at Delhi amounted to 5,48 and illuminations and local celebrations to 4,38. For this special expenditure a provision of 2,00 only was made in the Budget under this head and a further provision of 3,00 under 45—Civil Works. The excess was met from the additional grant of 27,46 sanctioned by the Government of India in their Finance Department No. 1689-F, dated the 13th March 1912, to cover the total excess over the Provincial Grants under this and other major heads. Excluding this special expenditure, the Budget was exceeded by 29, i.e., 14 in Imperial and 15 in Provincial. The excess under Imperial was chiefly due to the payments of Royal Bonus in the Account and Currency Offices and to increased Establishment, Remittance and Postage and Telegram Charges in the Currency Office. Additional grants were obtained subsequently to cover it. The excess under Provincial was chiefly due to changes in personnel and privilege leave arrangements, creation of temporary appointments for Durbar work and payments of Royal Bonus in the Secretariat, and to recoveries of contributions from some District Local Boards on account of the Local Fund Establishments having remained in arrears.

112. The total expenditure in 1911-12 exceeded that of 1910-11 by 1,16,12, but was less than the Budget by 2,17. The variations occurred chiefly in the Imperial portion of the accounts and were the result of two main causes Of the excess over previous actuals 1,03 75 represented outlay in connection with the Royal Visit and the Coronation Durbar. The total expenditure recorded in connection with the Coronation Durbar (86,99), illuminations and local celebrations (11,95) and the Royal Tour (6,48) was 1,05,42 as against a preparatory expenditure of 1,67 in the previous year. The second contributory cause was the decision to show under this head, with effect from 1st April 1911, the entire charges of the offices engaged in the various Provinces in the audit and accounting of Public Works expenditure consequent on their amalgamation with the corresponding Civil Offices. The estimated cost was 10,31. The increase in the actuals under Civil Offices of Account and Audit, including the offices of the Comptroller General and of the late Accountant General, Public Works Department was 9,27 This increase was thus nominal. Other causes accounting for the smaller variations were the charges in India in connection with the new Education Department for the whole year, as against charges for a few months in the past year The charges in connection with the Accountant General, Railways, were subsequently transferred to 41 -Miscellaneous Railway Expenditure though provision was made under this head In Eastern Bengal and Assam the transfer of head-quarters from Shillong to Dacca and the breaking up of the establishments at Dacca, owing to the re-arrangement of Provinces, caused some increases, while in Bengal the charges for the Executive Council were incurred for the whole year instead of only for part of the year as in 1910-11 There were also several appointments on special duty which were not anticipated.

113. Charges under Civil Secretariats increased by 2,61. The increases were most marked in India, (1,08) due to the charges for the Education Department for the whole year instead of for only a few months in the previous year and to the appointment of a large number of officers on special duty in the Foreign Department; in Eastern Bengal and Assam, (80) due to the move to Dacca and subsequent re-arrangement of provinces and to a subsidy to a vernacular paper; in Bengal (60) due to the appointment of several officers on special duty in the Political and Appointment Departments and in Madras, (43) due to the higher rate of salary of a Deputy Secretary, the appointment of a Curator for the Central Record Office, leave allowances and increases of establishment

114. The increase under Executive Councils (1,78) occurred in Bengal, (133) due to the payment of a full year's charge of the Executive Council and in India (44) including a full year's charge for the Member for Education.

115. An Imperial excess of 2 in Burma and a Provincial excess of 2,19 in Eastern Bengal and Assam require the sanction of the Government of India. The Provincial excess occurred in the last two months of the year on the Coronation Durbar and in consequence of the redistribution of provinces

Central Provinces	25,06	25,80	25,24	...	The decrease was due to large savings on account of employment of junior officers and of non-civilians as Civil and Sessions and District Judges, and also under Diet money and travelling expenses of witnesses. This was partly counterbalanced by expenditure on the Royal Bonus.
Burma	47,51	48,21	47,65	The increase was due to the Royal Bonus and Rangoon House allowances and other ordinary fluctuations.	The decrease in comparison with the Budget was due to the entertainment of an additional Judge for a shorter period than that anticipated, to smaller outlay on Supplies and Services under Chief Court and Civil and Sessions Courts and on Contingencies under Chief Court, and to the appointment of an officer on lower salary as the Judge of the Small Cause Court, Rangoon, during leave of the permanent incumbent.
Eastern Bengal and Assam.	47,37	48,33	49,96	The revision of ministerial establishments accounted for increased expenditure of 1,40 Salaries increased by 44 on account of Magistrates (a similar increase appearing under 3 Land Revenue), by 28 on account of District and Sessions Judges, two new appointments having been created and by 14 on account of temporary Munsiffs. Royal Bonus accounted for an expenditure of 15 under this head Fees to pleaders dropped by 34, but the figure was still very high, the Dacca Conspiracy and other cases being responsible for large expenditure on this account as in 1910-11	The Budget was exceeded by 1,63 —or setting aside 45 representing Royal Bonus, by 1,18 The lump provision for the revision of ministerial establishments proved insufficient by 15 and the entertainment of temporary Munsiffs caused a further excess, of 10 To the remaining excess the Dacca Conspiracy case and similar cases mainly contributed expenditure on fees to pleaders exceeding the estimate by 42, while diet money to witnesses in criminal cases also caused an excess of 37 Remuneration to copyists and diet money in Civil and Sessions Courts were also higher than the estimate by 25
Bengal	85,91	87,34	92,76	The actuals of both years included heavy charges for prosecution of political cases The increase of 6,85 over the actuals of 1910-11 was due to payment of arrear salaries for 3 years ending 1911-12 of ministerial establishments in Civil and Criminal Courts amounting to 2,50 and 3,00 respectively, to increase of High Court Judges and revision of the High Court's establishment which contributed 60, and to payment of Royal Bonus amounting to 68	Budget provided for normal expenditure under Law Officers, for revision of the High Court's establishment and for salaries of ministerial establishments of Mufassil Courts at the increased rates for 1911-12. Provision was also made for payment of a portion of the arrear salaries of ministerial establishments for the two years ending 1910-11. But the prosecution of a few lengthy political cases resulted in an increased expenditure of 2,72 which was covered by re-appropriation sanctioned by Local Government from other heads, and the payment of the full amount of arrear salaries of ministerial establishments in Civil and Criminal Courts caused an excess of 1,00 and 1,50 respectively over Budget which were partly met by savings under other heads. The bulk of the arrear payments occurred in March 1912 (3,28). The audit was not conducted against grant but against sanctioned scales and the actuals appeared too late to permit of extra grants being obtained within the year.

United Provinces of Agra and Oudh	60,05	62,19	62,24	Excluding from the actuals of 1911-12 the payments for Royal Bonus aggregating 54, there was an increase of 1,65. This was mainly attributable to higher expenditure on extra Courts, consequent on the institution of an abnormally large number of suits in the two previous years.	Excesses due to the payment of Royal Bonus and the appointment of an additional Judge for the Small Cause Court at Lucknow, not originally provided for and to higher expenditure on Contingencies consequent on extra Civil Courts and larger outlay on Travelling Allowance and Contingencies of Criminal Courts were counterbalanced by savings attributable to smaller total payments of fees to pleaders and barristers in civil and criminal cases and of diet to witnesses and assessors in civil suits as well as by a decrease in the share of salaries of district officers debitable to criminal courts.
Punjab . . .	40,94	41,17	43,17	The increase over 1910-11 was chiefly due to the appointment of a 7th Judge and his establishment, the reorganization of the Provincial Service and the payment of the Royal Bonus (29).	The excess was due to the payment of the Royal Bonus (29) and higher expenditure on account of diet and road money to witnesses (23) as also to leave arrangements of Divisional and Sessions and District Judges.
North-West Frontier Province.	5,70	5,67	5,80		The increase was chiefly under Criminal Courts and was due to the reorganization of the Political Department. An extra grant was sanctioned by the Government of India to cover the increase.
Madras . . .	59 23	61,86	62,19	The increase occurred chiefly under Civil and Sessions Courts (1,77) and was due to an increase of two Sub-judges in the cadre, the establishment of temporary courts in certain districts, the payment of the Royal Bonus (57) and to an increase in Process Serving and Copyists establishments (24). Other causes were higher adjusting figures received from Land Revenue and the appointment of additional Puisne Judges.	The increase was due chiefly to appointment of two Puisne Judges to the High Court, appointment of two temporary additional District and Sessions Judges and of two permanent Sub-Judges under Civil and Sessions Courts; establishment of temporary Sub-Judges and District Munsifs' Courts, payment of Royal bonus; increased expenditure under Process-Serving and Copyists establishments and under Printing and translation charges partly counterbalanced by large savings under Criminal Courts due to variations in the one-fifth charge transferred from 3—Land Revenue.
Bombay . . .	54 55	54,59	55,31	The increase was due to the charges for the Royal Bonus and Grain Compensation, to a larger number of Officers having been on duty and to increased expenditure on Diet and Road money to witnesses and also to the post of a Puisne Judge having remained vacant for a longer period in 1910-11.	The excess over the Budget was mainly due to payments of Royal Bonus (40) and Grain Compensation Allowance (20), to heavy charges incurred on account of a larger number of criminal appeals and other criminal cases in which Government were interested and to a refund of 12 to the Ahmedabad Municipality on account of Municipal fines for the years 1906-07 to 1909-10. The excess was, however, foreseen and met by reappropriation.

116. Compared with the previous year, expenditure increased during 1911-12 by 16,98. The most important increases were in Bengal (6,85) due chiefly to increases under Civil and Sessions Courts (3,06) and Criminal Courts (3,40) consequent on the reorganisation of ministerial establishments and payment of resulting arrears and the Royal Bonus; in Madras (2,96) due to the increase of two in the cadre of Sub-Judges, to the establishment of temporary courts, to the appointment of two additional Puisne Judges and to the Royal Bonus; in Eastern Bengal and Assam (2,59) due to the revision of ministerial establishments, increases in salaries and new and temporary appointments; in the United Provinces (2,19) due to the expenditure on additional courts required to try the special mortgage suits instituted during the previous year and the Royal Bonus

117 Compared with the Budget the expenditure increased by 8,68 due chiefly to increases in Bengal (5,42) under Law Officers (2,72) due to payment of counsel's fees in the Dacca Conspiracy, Dumraon Raj and Midnapur cases and the payment of arrears consequent on the reorganisation of establishments referred to above and in Eastern Bengal and Assam (1,63) due to the Royal Bonus, higher fees to pleaders, and payments of diet money

118 Expenditure under Civil and Sessions courts increased by 9,20 chiefly under Establishments (6,11) due to reorganisations in Bengal and Eastern Bengal and the creation of additional Courts and Service of Process (1,81) in all Provinces The increase under Criminal Courts (7,29) was mainly due to the reorganisation of establishments Under Law Officers charges decreased by 1,[illegible]

119 Provincial excesses in Bengal (1,66) due to arrear establishment charges and in Madras (27) occurred late and have been sanctioned by the Local Government A Provincial excess of 4 in Eastern Bengal and Assam requires the sanction of the Government of India

India	17,58	18,08	16,82	The decrease was due to smaller charges under Commissariat Supplies and passage money.	The decrease from the Budget occurred in the charges of the convict settlements at Port Blair on account of vacancies in several establishments, smaller passage requirements, savings under Commissariat Supplies and reduced demand for coal and other supplies.
Central Provinces	5,68	5,82	5,53	There was a large reduction in 1911-12 under Rations on account of smaller Jail population and cheapness of provisions, which was partly counterbalanced by an increase in expenditure under Purchase of Raw Materials	The decrease was due to the appointments of Superintendents, Central Jail, being held by junior officers, less expenditure on Rations owing to small Jail population and cheapness of provisions and savings under Jail Manufactures.
Burma	13,37	12,91	13,60	The increase was due to larger purchases of raw materials in Central Jails, and to a rise in the price of food partly counterbalanced by less outlay on repairs.	The increase in comparison with the Budget was due to an over-estimate of probable savings, to the payment of the Royal Bonus, and to larger outlay on rations as well as on diet and conveyance of under-trial prisoners, owing to the rise in the price of rice.
Eastern Bengal and Assam.	9 74	10 61	9,32	Under Jails expenditure decreased by 31—for though the revision of pay of Jailors and Warders establishment involved an increase of 35 and the payment of Royal Bonus came to 5, this was more than wiped out by a decrease of 77 under Dietary Charges due partly to the release of convicts on the occasion of the Royal Visit to India and partly to the lower price of grain Under Jail Manufactures, enhanced expenditure of 10 on raw materials, and 2 on contingencies together with smaller expenditure of 20 on machinery resulted in a falling off in expenditure of 8.	The saving in the Budget was made up of 82 on account of dietary charges due partly to the release of convicts on the occasion of the Royal Visit to India and partly to the lower price of food grains and of 51, representing provision for European Stores and Machinery which was not utilized.
Bengal	23,73	27 00	23,87	The actuals of 1910-11 were nearly maintained. The expenditure under Jails was however less by 1,35 owing to smaller dietary charges consequent on a fall in prices and to reduction of jail population, while there was a corresponding increase in the outlay on the purchase of raw materials for manufacturing purposes.	Savings in Budget were caused mainly by smaller dietary charges due to a fall in prices and to a reduction in the jail population.

United Provinces of Agra and Oudh.	19,19	20,04	18,09	As compared with 1910-11, the dietary charges were lower by 1,01 mainly due to a decline in the prison population. The special payment of the Royal Bonus (12) and larger outlay on purchase of raw materials (24) in the year under report were almost counterbalanced by lower expenditure on purchase of quinine (15) and on the Sansiah Colony at Khori (14) as a result of the transfer of its management to the Salvation Army.	Excluding the special charges of 12 on account of the Royal Bonus from the actuals for 1911-12, the lower dietary and hospital charges and smaller outlay on purchase of raw materials and quinine coupled with savings under salaries of Superintendents, Central Jails, chiefly due to the appointment of junior officers, in place of seniors on leave and deputation, accounted for almost the whole of the variation.
Punjab . . .	11,09	11,35	12,27	The increase over 1910-11 was due to the causes mentioned in the column for Budget and to some extent to the revision of the warder and other Jail establishments	The increase was partly in the charges for the purchase of raw materials (57) due to a larger demand for Jail-made articles by public offices and to the rise in the price of cotton yarn and other raw materials and partly in the charges for moving prisoners (16) The payment of the Bonus (10) also accounted for the increase to some extent
North-West Frontier Province.	1,32	1,37	1,48	The increase over 1910-11 was chiefly under dietary charges and was partly due to the increase in the daily average number of prisoners confined in Jails and partly to excess purchases made in consequence of short stock of grains at the close of 1910-11	The excess was due to the fact that the unpde luc ion of 11, made in the Budget for probable savings, was not realized
Madras . . .	15,09	15,12	14,07	Decrease was due to smaller prison population and lower rates for articles of diet Large orders from the Police Department also increased charges under manufactures in 1910-11	Decrease below Budget was due mainly to reduction of temporary establishment charges, absence of officers on leave in England, and considerable fall in dietary charges as a result of smaller prison population and more favourable rates for articles of diet
Bombay . .	10,99	10,77	11,36	High prices of food-grains and raw material for Jail Manufactures and the payments of Royal Bonus and Grain Compensation were the chief causes of the excess	The excess was chiefly under dietary charges (33) due to higher prices of food grains, under salaries and establishments (11) due to increments and leave, under Royal Bonus (6) and Grain Compensation (3)

120. Expenditure was less than both the previous actuals (1,27) and the Budget (6,75). As compared with the previous year the actuals were 2,61 better under Jails and 2,06 worse under Jail Manufactures The improvement under Jails occurred chiefly in Bengal (1,35), due to smaller dietary charges consequent on a fall in prices and a smaller jail population and in the United Provinces (1,11) also due to the latter cause The higher expenditure under Jail Manufactures occurred chiefly in Bengal (1,44) and was due to larger outlay on the purchase of raw material.

121. The improvement as compared with the Budget occurred mainly in Bengal (3,22) due to smaller dietary charges owing to cheaper prices and smaller Jail population ; in the United Provinces (1,95) due to lower dietary charges and less purchase of raw material ; in Eastern Bengal and Assam (1,29) due also to lower dietary charges and less purchase of stores and in India (1,26) in the charges of the Convict Settlement at Port Blair, on account of vacancies in establishments, less passage requirements and smaller commissariat supplies

122. A Provincial excess of 32 in the Punjab, which occurred in March, has been sanctioned by the Local Government.

				Actuals, 1910-11.	Budget, 1911-12.
India . . .	12,54	14,33	13,71	The increase as compared with the actuals of the preceding year was due to the gradual introduction of the reforms in connection with the reorganisation of Police in several minor Administrations.	The savings were due chiefly to the provision for the reorganisation of the Police in Baluchistan not having been fully utilised.
Central Provinces .	32,06	32,80	33,46	The variation was chiefly due to the grant of the Royal Bonus amounting to 60 and the gradual filling up of the sanctioned scale in 1911-12. The average growth of Police expenditure based on five years' figures was about 2,02, but this could not be taken as a safe standard for estimating the increase in future expenditure as the average was high owing to the gradual introduction of the Police reforms.	The increase was chiefly due to the grant of the Royal Bonus amounting to 60.
Burma . . .	1,20,99	1,23,80	1,26,76	In 1911-12, the increase under Police Force (1,81) resulted from the creation of new Police Circles in certain districts, to larger expenditure under Punitive Police and to arrear pay drawn by Military Policemen. Under ordinary items there was a normal increase (1,57). The increase under Travelling Allowance of Police Force (35) was due to the increased rate of Travelling allowance sanctioned by the Local Government.	The increase over the Budget was mainly due to the payment of the Royal Bonus amounting to 2,45, to the drawal of conveyance allowance amounting to 71, to an over estimate of probable savings under Police Force and Establishment, to larger expenditure under Travelling Allowance of Police Force, Inspectors and Police Force to and from India, and under District Executive Force—Contingencies, partly counterbalanced by smaller outlay on Petty Constructions and Repairs in the Civil Police, on purchase and carriage of supplies under Police Food Supply, on arms and accoutrements and contingencies under Special Police and by the appointment of Sub-Assistant Surgeons on lower salary under Hospital charges.
Eastern Bengal and Assam.	53,00	60,46	58,09	The increase of 5,09 was mainly accounted for by increases of 4,38 under District Executive Force and 90 under Special Police. If payments of Royal Bonus amounting to 59 and 17 be excluded these increases stand at 3,79 and 73 respectively. Under the former head salaries increased by 75 (the figure in 1910-11 having been very low) and additions to the sanctioned strength of Inspectors and Constables accounted for a rise of 55. The increase in strength involved additional expenditure on Travelling Allowance, construction of buildings and contingencies (especially rent of buildings for subordinate police officers) and expenditure on these accounts rose by 33,61 and 47. Under Special Police the increase occurred in connection with the Assam Frontier Police and was apparently due to the operations in the Abor country. The full complement of officers was retained on duty salaries thereby rising by 22 and contingencies increasing proportionately.	Under the head District Executive Force savings accrued to the extent of 3,2. The provision under Police Force was 21,58 which included a lump provision of 2,50 for the reorganisation of the Subordinate Force. The expenditure was 19,70 or, excluding 55 for Royal Bonus 19,15, and this was practically covered by the provision excluding the lump grant (the lump deduction for savings having been under-estimated) although expenditure of 55 was incurred for additional appointments of Inspectors and constables. Under River Police there was a lump provision of 2,75 for reorganisation and another of 30 for the Stop Boat Scheme. From the former only 1,62 was expended and from the latter 20. Minor savings and excesses occurred which balanced one another principally a saving of 40 under Construction against an excess of the same amount under Travelling Allowance very large provision having been made under the former head while under the latter the estimate overlooked the requirements of the increased Police Force. Excess occurred under special Police (67) Criminal Investigation Department (13) and Superintendence (4) due in the first United Provinces of Agra and Oudh	1,08,32	1,11,81	1,10,43	Excluding from the actuals for 1910 11 the extra charges in connection with United Provinces Exhibition about 42 and from those of 1911 12 the special payment of 2 25 on account of the Royal Bonus there was an increase of 3 28 in the year under report Cost of further reforms about 2 87) and of relieving towns of Police charges (1 57) coupled with higher expenditure on arms and accoutrements (80) and on establishment of the Criminal Investigation Department (32) chiefly owing to the reorganization having been given effect to in the latter part of the previous year accounted in the main for the increase On the other hand there was a decrease of 23 owing to the exclusion of village Police charges in the Family Domains of the Maharaja of Benares which now form part of the Benares State	Out of the lump allotment of 7 85 for further reforms about 2,87 was utilized under District Executive Force and Railway Police, 1 57 expended for relieving towns of Police charges and a nominal amount (about 7) on petty construction and repairs The lapse of 2 84 was enhanced by savings mainly under District Executive Force purchase of tents and clothing (89), salaries (22 rewards to general police (15) allowance to cadets of the Police Training school (10) and several heads of supplies and services and Hospital charges (87) as also under Village Police (12) and Railway Police (35) chiefly due to the lump provision of 20 for re distribution of the share of Railway Police charges not having been utilised and by the transfer of 13 out of the grant for petty construction and repairs for expenditure in the Public Works Department Against this there have been excesses owing to the payment of Royal Bonus (225), on purchase of arms (75) and higher outlay on travelling allowance of District Executive Force (87).

Punjab . . .	56,50	64,85	58,63	The increase over 1910-11 was due partly to the payment of the Bonus (107) and partly to the increase in the Police Force under Railway Police and District Police (103).	After eliminating 5,22, provided for Budget purposes on account of contribution to Municipalities for relief from Police charges, the increase was chiefly due to the payment of the Bonus (1 07) and to an over-estimate of the deduction for probable savings and, to some extent, to leave arrangements.

123. The expenditure increased by 37,78 as compared with that of 1910-11. The increase was due partly to the cost of reforms already introduced in the previous year as well as to further reforms undertaken during the year and partly to the very considerable expenditure on the Royal Bonus which affected all Provinces. In the Punjab and some Minor Administrations, Municipalities were relieved of all police expenditure hitherto incurred by them and in the United Provinces small rural towns were similarly relieved of such expenditure. The effect of the relief afforded to Municipalities will mainly be a loss of revenue but as the result will be to transfer the expenditure to the state it is referred to here.

124. Under Inspectors, Constables, etc., the increase was 11,66 being most marked in the Punjab (3,03), Madras (2,04), the United Provinces (1,49), and Eastern Bengal and Assam (1,21). Under office and other establishments the increase was (8,90) and under house-rent and other allowances (5,27).

125. The increase as compared with previous actuals occurred in all Provinces but chiefly in the United Provinces (7,11), Bombay (6,70), Burma (5,77) and Eastern Bengal and Assam (5,09).

126. As compared with the Budget, the expenditure was less by 5,52 due chiefly to decreases in the Punjab, (3,72) due to the provision made from the relief of municipalities from Police charges being in excess and in Eastern Bengal and Assam (2,37) due to less expenditure against the lump grants provided for reorganization under District Executive Force and River Police and an increase in Burma (2,96) due to the payment of the Royal Bonus (2,45) and conveyance allowances.

127. The excesses over grants were apparent late in the year. The excess of 25 in Eastern Bengal and Assam requires the sanction of the Government of India. Provincial and Imperial (Special) excesses aggregating 1,40 have been sanctioned by the Local Governments and Administration.

Burma . . .	12,42	12,45	12,64	The increase was under Ordinary charges.	The increase in comparison with the Budget was mainly due to larger outlay on purchase of marine stores, to the arrear payment of subsidies, to steam-boat companies, to larger expenditure on Marine Establishment, to larger outlay on Light Houses and Light ships under Supplies and Services, and to the payment of Bonus under Salaries and allowances of officers and men afloat. The increase would have been much more had not the Store account ended in a minus entry. The excess was partly counterbalanced by savings under Purchase and hire of ships and vessels and under Miscellaneous.
Eastern Bengal and Assam.	92	1,22	1,13	The payment of a contribution of 30 to the Pilotage Fund and larger expenditure of 4 on coal raised the expenditure by 34. This was partly counterbalanced by the non-payment of the subsidy of 12 for the Accelerated Service between Barisal and Chittagong and the reduction by 8 of the subsidy for the Accelerated Service between Narayanganj and Chandpur.	Provision of 12 as subsidy for the Accelerated Service between Barisal and Chittagong was not utilized and there was a saving of 8 owing to a reduction of that amount in the subsidy for the service between Narayanganj and Chandpur. The provision for Marine Stores, Coal, etc., was however exceeded by 8.
Bengal . . .	12,33	11,89	12,56	Actuals 1911-12 showed an increase of 23 over those for 1910-11. The adjustment of recoveries by the Agent, Government Consignments, which were taken in reduction of charges for his office, provided under Marine Establishment, was postponed till next year owing to delay in the submisson of recovery claims for the last 2 months of 1911-12. But for this the actuals would have been less by about 31, expenditure on Marine Stores having been less by 62 and that under Pilotage Establishment greater by 30 on account of trade activity.	The excess over Budget was nominal and was due to postponement of the recoveries referred to in the column for Actuals.
Madras . . .	22	19	21	Accounts, 1910-11, included a special item of 3 on account of purchase of a motor launch while Landing and Shipping charges in 1911-12 exceeded those in 1910-11 by 2.	The increase was due to increased expenditure under Landing and Shipping charges.
Bombay . . .	78	78	71	The decrease was due to the cost of special repairs to the steamer Jhelum, the expenditure on that account having been 7 against 14 in the previous year.	The savings in the Budget were due chiefly to the provision of 13 for special repairs to the Steamer Jhelum not having been fully utilized.

India	7 67	5 86	5 61	The higher expenditure in the preceding year was due to the payment of Imperial special grants to certain schools in Bangalore, Baluchistan and Coorg	Excess over Budget was due to the payment from Imperial Revenues of the salaries of certain Furlough Reserve Officers
Central Provinces	17 26	20 15	17 89	The average increase of expenditure based on the figures of the last four years worked out to 94. Reforms introduced of recent years were however approaching completion and this average was not a safe guide in estimating the increase in future years. The increase of 7 in 1911-12 was due (1) to the conversion of the Training School at Jubbulpore into a Training College, (2) to larger grants paid for Municipal and Local Schools, (3) to the provincialization of certain High Schools and (4) to the payment of the Royal Bonus	The savings were largely out of the non recurring grant of 200 of which 1 07 were transferred to Public Works Department for expenditure on educational buildings and 58 were not utilized. There was also a saving of 25 under Stipends to pupils in Training Schools
Burma	18 75	24 04	20 42	From a review of the actuals of the last five years it appeared that the average annual rate of increase under this head, now charges under the control of the Director of Public Instruction, was nearly 74. The expenditure in 1909-10 and 1910-11 had to be restricted owing to the financial position of the Local Government	The decrease below the Budget was mainly due to the transfer of 2 80 to 45 Civil Works for expenditure on the construction of Government School buildings and hostels, to the unspent balance of 64 of special Imperial grant, to the savings under building grants and grants for books and equipment, to the non utilization of the full provision made for fees for revision of Vernacular Readers and to the appointment of an officer of the Provincial Educational Service as Assistant Director of Public Instruction. The decrease was partly counterbalanced by an increase under Salaries and Establishments under Inspection due to probable savings having been over estimated in the Budget and by larger expenditure under Pali Examination charges
Eastern Bengal and Assam	26 11	1 18	31 58	Excluding 15 on account of Royal Bonus expenditure increased by 5 32. This occurred principally under the following heads for which figures for the last three years are given — Heads: 1909-10 / 1910-11 / 1911-12 Inspection: 4 32 / 4 60 / 5 15 Government Colleges General: 2 35 / 3 87 / 4 02 Government Schools General: 8 85 / 9 47 / 10 89 Grants in aid: 3 08 / 3 92 / 5 48 Miscellaneous: 57 / 38 / 94 Under the first three heads the increase was due to increases in the Inspecting and Teaching Staffs and appointments of Additional Professors, to larger expenditure on Books and Apparatus and larger grants to Local Bodies. Under Miscellaneous the abnormal increase included additional expenditure of 23 representing cost of land and 25 spent on Manuals supplied to Local Boards	The Budget contained a lump provision of 60 for Collegiate education and another of 5 00 for Educational Reforms. The former was not utilised under 22 Education and the latter was used in part only to meet excess expenditure under the various minor heads. Owing to large increases in the Inspecting and Teaching Staffs and to increased expenditure on Books and Apparatus and large grants to Local Bodies the lump provision of 5 00 was drawn upon to the extent of 31 24 and 66 under the heads Inspection, Government Colleges General and Government Schools General respectively. There was further an excess of 1 68 under grants-in aid due to very large expenditure on this account at the end of the year particularly for grants for buildings. The provision under Miscellaneous was also exceeded by 48, expenditure on Manuals and Land being very high during the year. The net saving was 1,60

Bengal . . .	55,21	70,26	58,54	The increase over 1910-11 was 3,33 which included 26 on account of Royal Bonus and 1,78 spent in the Education Department out of the lump provision of 12,00 for non-recurring expenditure. The latter amount was spent in equipment and buildings of Primary Schools and of a few private colleges and schools and laboratories and fittings for the Civil Engineering and Presidency Colleges. The remaining increase of 1,29 was recurring and was due to augmentation of Inspecting Staff (inc'uding an Inspector of Muhammadan education) and to the strengthening of teaching staff in Arts Colleges and Secondary Schools and to larger grants to European Girl's Schools.	Budget included 12,00 for non-recurring expenditure out of which about 1,78 were spent in the Education Department and about 4,69 in the Public Works Department on the following objects, viz., construction of new laboratories in the Presidency College, of hostels in several Zila schools and of buildings for Guru Training Schools, about 1,50 on buildings for the new Government at Ranchi and 1·37 were transferred to other heads and the remainder lapsed. Increased provision of about 2,50 was also made for augmentation of Inspecting Staff (inc'uding an Inspector of Muhammadan Education) for revision of pay of Sub-Inspectors transferred from Districts and for strengthening and improvement of teaching staff in Arts Colleges and Secondary schools. Owing, however, to delay in the maturing and introduction of some of the schemes, the full provision could not be utilized and a little over 100 lapsed.
United Provinces of Agra and Oudh.	38,15	54,86	48,35	Excluding from the actuals for 1911-12 payments aggregating about 7,74 out of the special grant given by the Government of India for non-recurring expenditure the principal items of which were larger grants to District Boards (3,01), to Private Educational Institutions (2,88), for purchase of apparatus, furniture, etc., in Government Professional Colleges and Schools (General and Special) aggregating about 93, to the University for building and library (95), as also the special payment of 17 for the Royal Bonus there was an increase of 2,00 as compared with the previous year. This was mainly attributable to the fact that the actuals for the year under report included charges for the Provincialized Zila Schools for the whole year as against a part only of the previous year. Setting apart special payments, the smaller expenditure of 1,89 on contributions to District Boards was almost counterbalanced by a further payment of grants to private institutions (76) and higher outlay on Government Schools—Special (76) and Scholarships (10).	The main causes contributing to the dearness (6,50) as compared with the Budget were — (a) Non-utilization under this head during the year of 5,17 from the special grant . 5,17 (i) 4,01 not having been spent during the year, and (ii) 1,16 having been transferred to the Public Works Department for expenditure on Educational buildings. (b) Non-utilization of lump al'otments for reasons given below 1,03 (i) 82 for the Technical Institution at Cawnpore not being opened, and (ii) 21 for the regrading of the Provincial Education Service not having been sanctioned. (c) Transfer to the Public Works Department for expenditure in that Department of grants detailed below . . . 70 (i) 40 out of the original grant for University. (ii) 30 from the lump provision of 34 for school leaving certificate examination classes. (d) Savings amounting to 1,63 under the following heads:— (1) Government Schools, Special owing to delay in opening

(ii) 24 under Special Schools for purchase of machinary for the Industrial School, Lucknow. Other variations of minor importance almost counterbalance one another.
Punjab .	22,81	26,82	23,[illegible]	As compared with 1910-11 the increase was chiefly due to larger grants-in-aid having been made during the year.	The decrease was due to the non-utilization of the lump provision of 3,00 for improvement of education under Government College and Schools and of 50 for the Lawrence Memorial Asylum, Murree, owing to the institution not having been provincialised as was anticipated. Out of 3,00 a transfer to the extent of about 1,37 was, however, made to the Public Works Department for School buildings. The increase under Grants-in-aid due to the payment of 25 to the Lawrence Memorial Asylum was counterbalanced by savings under Salaries and Stipends under Government Schools.
North-West Frontier Province.	1,62	1 27	1,61	In 1910-11 there was higher expenditure under Grants-in-aid while there was smaller expenditure under Direction and Inspection taken together owing to the fact that the appointment of the Director was held by an Assistant Inspector of Schools for the greater part of the year.	The increase was chiefly under the head Grants-in-aid and was due to new grants made by the Local Administration during the year.
Madras . . .	39,86	49,94	45,67	Increase was due to increase in teaching grants to Elementary Schools and grants for furniture and other special objects (3,48), in Subsidies to Local Boards (98), to the transfer to this head from 26.—Scientific etc of the Technical Institute and Industrial Departments and to additional appointments in the Presidency College.	Decrease below the Budget was due to partial lapse of grant to University, lapse of lump provisions for the establishment of Government Model High Schools and for the reorganisation of Training Schools for Masters, transfer of a portion of the special additional grant sanctioned by the Government of India to 45.—Civil Works, savings in the salaries of Inspecting officers, and non-utilisation in full of the allotments for contributions to Local Boards and Municipalities.

Bombay . . .	47,54	56,78	48,73	The increase was mainly due to heavy payments in support of Local Schools for the extension of Primary Education. Expenditure on account of the purchase of furniture for Secondary Schools, payments of arrears of Grants-in-aid for collegiate reforms, increased payments of grants to Primary and special Schools, Grants-in-aid by results, grants for books and furniture, Royal Bonus and Grain Compensation also contributed to a considerable extent towards the increase The excess was however, partly counterbalanced by smaller payments on account of building grants and recoveries of arrears of contribution towards the cost of the Raj Kumar College Staff.	Excluding 3,45 transferred to the Public Works Department for the construction and repair of Educational buildings, the net Budget showed savings aggregating 4,60, out of which 2,54 (being the unspent balance of the Imperial assignments for the development of Technical Education 1,19 and for non-recurring expenditure on Education 1,35) were transferred to the Estimate of 1912-13. The rest of the savings was chiefly due to (i) delay in taking over the Gujarat College under Government management, (ii) the provisions for additional trained teachers in the mofussil, for increase in the pay of Assistant Masters of High Schools and for Grants to Secondary Schools not having been fully utilized owing to delay in sanction, and (iii) provisions for Building Grants to aided schools, publication of Sanskrit Series, Girls' Readers and Text Book of moral teaching for schools not having been wholly required. The savings were, however, absorbed to a certain extent on payments of arrears of grants-in-aid for Collegiate Reforms, increased payments of grants to Primary and Special Schools, grants-in-aid by results and grants for books and furniture, Royal Bonus (10) and Grain Compensation (2).

130. The expenditure was greater than that of 1910-11 by 26,29 but was less than the Budget by 41,06. The Budget provided for a very large increase of 67,36 and included allotments to the various provinces of 47,91 for non-recurring expenditure on buildings and equipment of schools and colleges of various classes or on grants made for these purposes, on hostels etc These allotments could not be entirely expended during the year and about 11,00 remained over for future use. Expenditure on buildings, etc., to the extent of 15,49 provided for under this head was transferred to 45.—Civil Works or other heads so that the decrease as compared with the Budget was partly nominal. With the exception of India, where the absence of the special grants made in the previous year resulted in a decrease (2,16) and of the North-West Frontier Province all other Provinces shared in the increase. It was most marked in the United Provinces (9,91) due to payments to the extent of 7,74 out of the special allotment of 12,91 given for non-recurring expenditure and to the increase consequent on the charges for the full year of the Provincialized Zila Schools and in Madras (5,81) due to increased grants-in-aid and subsidies to Local Boards and to the nominal increase consequent on the record under this head of charges for the Technical Institute and Industrial Departments instead of under 26.—Scientific. The increase in Eastern Bengal and Assam (5,47) and Bengal (3,33) apart from special grants-in-aid were due to the increase and strengthening of the Inspecting and teaching staffs

131 As compared with the Budget there were large decreases in Bengal (11,72), Bombay (8,05), the United Provinces (6,50) and Madras (4,27) These were largely due to the non-utilization during the year of the whole of the special allotments or to part of it being recorded under 45.—Public Works. In Bengal the special allotment was 12,00, out of which only 1,78 was spent under this head and 4,69 under Public Works. The special provision of about 2,50 for strengthening and improving the Inspecting and Teaching staffs and for the regrading of pay of sub-inspectors transferred from District Boards was also only partially required, resulting in a saving of about 1,00. In Bombay out of the special allotment of 5,00 only 50 was spent under this head, 3,15 was transferred to Public Works and 1,35 was carried forward In the United Provinces 4,01 from the special grant of 12,91 was not spent during the year and the special provision for the Technological Institute at Cawnpore, for the regrading of the Provincial Educational Service and for the opening of certain Technical and Industrial Institutions was not required, owing to the institutions not having been opened and the regrading not having been sanctioned during the year In Madras the decrease was due to the transfer of 1,25 from the special allotment of 3,00 to Public Works, to a smaller grant to the University and to the reorganisation of the Government Model High School not having been sanctioned during the year During the year 1911-12 expenditure increased materially under the heads Government Schools, Secondary (5,21), Payment by Results (4,94) Government Schools, General, Contributions to schools (3,35), Grants-in-aid (3,01) and Contributions to District Boards (2,08).

132. An Imperial excess of 3 and Provincial excess of 23 in Eastern Bengal and Assam require the sanction of the Government of India. A Provincial excess of 25 in the Punjab has been sanctioned by the Local Government and the Imperial (Special) excess of 4 in the North-West Frontier Province by the Local Administration concerned. The excesses were apparent late in the year.

India . . .	7,70	7,34	6,81	Certain special grants for sanitary works in Bangalore and Coorg in 1910-11 accounted for the decrease.	The savings were due chiefly to a temporary vacancy in the appointment of the Sanitary Commissioner and to the usual provision for Plague charges not having been fully required.
Central Provinces .	8,73	10,25	9,81	There was an extra expenditure of 31 in 1911-12 on account of purchase of quinine Excluding this amount, the net excess over the last year's actuals was 77, which was chiefly the result of increased expenditure under Salaries of District Medical Officers, and Grants for dispensary buildings and for medical purposes and sanitation.	The actuals included 41 on account of the cost of quinine, which was chargeable to this head under the revised system sanctioned by the Local Administration. But for this expenditure, the decrease would have been 85 which was mainly due to non-utilization of the full provision made for sanitation and plague grants, partially counterbalanced by an increase under Hospitals and Dispensaries due to grade promotions of Sub-Assistant Surgeons and to grants sanctioned for dispensary buildings.
Burma . . .	19,09	25,18	21,89	The increase was due to annual growth of expenditure, to 1,51 spent in 1911-12 on contributions to Municipalities for sanitary purposes from the non-recurring Imperial assignment of 7,00 given in 1910-11 for expenditure in 1911-12 and 1912-13 and to larger expenditure incurred on account of the introduction of the Divisional Plague Scheme	The decrease was mainly due to the absence of senior officers on long leave, smaller outlay on allowances, supplies and services, and contingencies under medical establishment, to the incomplete utilization of the provision made for the reorganisation of the Rangoon General Hospital establishment, to the number of Sub-Assistant Surgeons having been below the sanctioned strength; to the non-utilization of the provision made for payment to the Pasteur Institute, Maymyo; to smaller outlay on medical scholarships, to the non-utilization of 1,49 out of 3,00 provided for sanitary grants, to smaller outlay on vaccination establishment, supplies and services, and contingencies, and to the savings under Grants for Medical purposes These savings were partly counterbalanced by an increase in the expenditure under Captains, Civil and Military Assistant Surgeons, by the payment of Bonus and Rangoon House allowance, by the excess expenditure under Provincial Malarial Committee, and by an over-estimate of probable savings under Officers on special duty including flying columns.

				Actuals, 1910-11.	Budget, 1911-12.
Eastern Bengal and Assam.	10,68	16,09	12,57	Expenditure on salaries increased by 41 partly owing to promotions of officers, partly to the appointment of an Additional Civil Surgeon for Dacca and partly as a result of the re-organization of Sub-Assistant Surgeons which took effect from 1st July 1910. Grants to dispensaries rose from 80 in 1910-11 to 1,98 in 1911-12, but the effect of this was largely reduced by an increase of 71 in recoveries made from Local Funds and Municipalities for Assistant and Sub-Assistant Surgeons lent to them. Sanitary and Antimalarial measures accounted for an increase of 50, the expenditure taking the form of grants, salaries, etc. The contribution to the Lady Dufferin Hospital was increased by 6.	The actuals fell short of the Budget by 3,52. This was mainly due to the transfer of grants amounting to 3,76 out of 4,00 provided in lump for sanitary improvements to 45-Civil Works and other heads. There was an excess of 21 under Medical Establishments under which head the deduction for probable savings proved too large. There were also slight excesses under Hospitals and Dispensaries and Grants for medical purposes owing to the payment of enhanced contributions and grants.
Bengal . . .	24,27	25,13	25,07	Actuals, 1911-12, included 12 on account of Royal Bonus. Increase over 1910-11 was due to payment of fresh grants for improvement of hospitals.	Though there were variations in minor heads, in the aggregate the Budget was closely worked up to. Under Medical Establishment the provision of 41 for revision of pay of Assistant Surgeons was not utilized owing to delay in giving effect to the scheme. There were other savings arising from the over-estimate of pay of Civil Surgeons and from non-entertainment of a Probationary Chemical Examiner for some time. These savings were, however, balanced by fresh grants for improvement of hospitals and dispensaries for which reappropriations were sanctioned by the Local Government.
United Provinces of Agra and Oudh.	17,89	31,54	30,03	Excluding from the actuals for 1911-12 payment of 9,48 out of the special grant of 10,50 given by the Government of India, the special payments aggregating 1,25 to the Allahabad and Mussooree Municipalities and the expenditure of 30 on account of the newly opened Medical College at Lucknow, there was an increase of 1,11 only as compared with the previous year. Expenditure in connection with the bubonic plague was higher by 1,01, and that out of the special recurring grant of 5,00 for sanitary improvement by 13 and there was also an increase (18) due to larger grants-in-aid to the Dufferin Fund and a small set off caused by smaller payment on account of contribution to District Boards (23).	Savings in the plague grant (1,34), in the special non-recurring grant (1,02) which were reallotted in 1912-13, and on the recurring grant for sanitary improvement (43), as well as in the lump allotments for the Medical College at Lucknow (14), consequent on the delay in its opening and for raising the pay of sub-assistant surgeons (10) were partly set off by special payments for sanitary purposes to the Municipalities of Allahabad and Mussooree (1,25) by higher expenditure on contribution to District Boards (19) and on account of the Royal Bonus (5) and grants to the Dufferin Fund (5). There were other variations of minor importance which counterbalance each other.

				Actuals, 1910-11.	Budget, 1911-12.
Punjab . . .	14,20	23,77	21,27	The increase over 1910-11 was due to the payments of 5,00 to the Central Research Institute at Kasauli, to larger grants made to local bodies for improvement of sanitation (1,79) and to a payment of 50 to the North India School of Medicine for Women at Ludhiana. These increases were to some extent counterbalanced by a decrease under Medical Establishment due to transfer of charges on account of the cost of quinine to Advances (25).	The decrease below the Budget was due partly to the debit of 1,00 on account of the grant made to the Amritsar Municipality for Dhab lands having been transferred to the head 45—Civil Works in charge of Civil Officers and partly to smaller expenditure on Sanitation (76) and Plague (60). The transfer of the charges for the purchase of quinine for the Quinine Depôt to Advances also accounts for the decrease. The payment of 50 to the North India School of Medicine at Ludhiana, for which no provision was made in the Budget, was counter-balanced by the non-utilization of the provision for a similar amount made for a grant to the Enteric Hospital in Simla.
North-West Frontier Province.	2,20	2,20	1,60	Higher expenditure in 1910-11 on account of grants-in-aid for Sanitation, counter-balanced by a decrease under Hospitals and Dispensaries, accounted for the increase over 1911-12.	Decrease was due to the non-utilization of the provision of 50 for Sanitation owing to the schemes not having sufficiently matured and of 30 made for revision of establishment under Medical Establishment as part revision was sanctioned only in September 1911 and the increases proposed in the pay of Assistant Surgeons were refused, and to a smaller expenditure on plague counter-balanced to some extent by an increase (16) under the head Hospitals and Dispensaries due to the payment of a grant-in-aid to District Boards to meet the expenditure devolving upon them by reason of the reorganization of the Medical Department.
Madras	18,22	18,61	18,27		Savings were mainly due to lapse of the lump provision for two additional Deputy Sanitary Commissioners, to the lower rates of salary drawn by the Sanitary and Deputy Sanitary Commissioners and the Chemical Examiner, and decreased expenditure on account of Plague Establishments—Salaries.
Bombay . . .	22,72	31,87	24,36	The excess was due to the purchase of a large quantity of quinine for extending its use in the treatment of malaria, to payment of a grant to the Bombay Nursing Association, to payments of Royal Bonus and Grain Compensation Allowance, to larger payments to Officers of other Provinces and of grants-in-aid to Local Bodies towards special schemes of Sanitation. The expenditure in connection with Plague and that of the Bacteriological Laboratory was less owing to larger recoveries	Compared with the Budget the large decrease in expenditure was due to transfers aggregating 5,44 to the major head 45—Civil Works—(Public Works) being grants-in-aid for works to be carried out through the Public Works Agency and 20 to 8—Land Revenue for works in connection with the development of Sálsette, out of the provision of 9,50 for Special Sanitation Schemes, to lapse of a large portion of the grant for plague charges and of the grant for filling in Kafila Serai Tank in Lárkána, to larger recoveries of

133. The expenditure increased by 25,88 over the actuals of the previous year but was less than the Budget by 20,50. The Budget provided an advance of 46,38 over the actuals of 1910-11, out of which 28,00 represented non-recurring outlay, mainly on grants to local bodies for the improvement of drainage and water supply out of a special Imperial assignment The provision under Sanitation and Vaccination was 63,34 while the actual expenditure was 43,04. The saving of 20,30 was partly nominal as grants to the extent of 10,40 were transferred to 45—Civil Works and other heads where the expenditure was recorded In the Punjab 5,00 was re-appropriated from this head and paid as a grant to the Central Research Institute at Kasauli, and in Burma, the special grant was not utilized to the extent of 1,51. As compared with the previous year expenditure on Sanitation and Vaccination was more by 14,84 to which the United Provinces contributed 10,95. Under grants for Medical purposes the expenditure increased by 5,93, to which the special grant to the Central Research Institute at Kasauli chiefly contributed. Charges in connection with plague, included under the above head, increased by 1,09 chiefly in the United Provinces (1,04) and Burma (61), while there was a decrease in Bombay (36). The special provision in Bengal (41) for revision of pay of Assistant Surgeons was not utilized, as effect was given to the revision only from 1912-13 and the expenditure in the United Provinces and Bombay on the Medical College at Lucknow and on the improvement of the prospects of Sub-Assistant Surgeons respectively was not so large as was anticipated

134. The excess of 23 in the Central Provinces occurred in March and has been sanctioned by the Local Administration.

India . . .	1,07,59	79,88	85,04	The actuals of 1910-11 included 20,00, representing a special investment and this accounted chiefly for the increase in that year.	The excess of about 5,00 was due to increased expenditure amounting to nearly 2,50 in several Political Agencies and Persian Consulates, chiefly on account of the reorganisation of the Political Department, higher telegram charges in the Consulates, and the appointment of special duty officers, to non-recovery of items aggregating 88 from several Native States on account of cost of maintaining Political Residencies within their jurisdictions, to higher charges amounting to about 58 incurred by the Foreign Department in connection with the entertainment of Envoys and Chiefs, to transfer to a debt head of about 53 representing undrawn balance of Amir's subsidy, and to increased cost amounting to 52 on account of deputation of an officer for the suppression of arms traffic in the Persian Gulf.
Central Provinces .	29	34	32
Burma . . .	4,27	4,41	4,51	The increase was due to the expenditure of 37 on account of Survey operations in unadministered territory north of Myitkyina, partly counterbalanced by smaller outlay under Miscellaneous. The actuals of 1910-11 under Miscellaneous included arrear payments of contributions amounting to 8 for the moiety of pay of the two Assistant Superintendents in the Mong Mit State.	The excess over the Budget was mainly due to the cost of survey operations in unadministered territories north of Myitkyina for which the Government of India sanctioned an additional assignment of 46. The savings under Political Agents partly counterbalanced this excess.
Eastern Bengal and Assam.	1,23	1,17	5,39	The large increase of expenditure was due to the Mishmi and Miri Missions undertaken in the latter half of the year.	The increase was due to the expenditure on the Mishmi and Miri Missions.
Bengal . . .	71	75	67		Savings were due to smaller expenditure on Durbar presents.
United Provinces of Agra and Oudh.	1,24	1,20	1,00	The actuals for 1910-11, included larger payments to the extent of 12 to Sardar Musa Jan, charges for probationers of the Political Department under training in these Provinces (9) which were adjusted on the books of the Comptroller, India Treasuries, from the year under report, and special expenditure of 5 on account of a khilat presented to His Highness the Maharaja of Benares on his installation.	Adjustment of charges on account of probationers of the Political Department on the books of the Comptroller, India Treasuries, and the absence of Sardar Musa Jan out of India accounted for the decrease.
Punjab . . .	6,13	6,62	6,29	The increase over 1910-11 occurred mainly under Political Agents in the charges of the Kashmir Residency due to a large expenditure on purchase of furniture.	The decrease was partly under Refugees and State Prisoners (22) due to Sardar Muhammad Ayub Khan not having drawn his allowance at the increased rate, as also to deaths and desertions and partly under Political Agents (18) in the charges of the Gilgit Agency mainly in the provision for the maintenance of the telephone line, counterbalanced by small increase under Political subsidies due to advance payments to Gilgit Chiefs proceeding to the Delhi Durbar.

North-West Frontier Province.	31,45	31,84	30,62	The decrease was due to there being no expenditure on account of the Anglo-Afghan Border Offences Commission and to the non-payment of certain allowances to Chiefs for guarding Hill Passes and to savings in the charges of the Waziristan Militia, counterbalanced by higher expenditure on Khassadar Establishment and the special expenditure on account of the Royal Bonus.	The decrease was chiefly under the Charges on the North-West Frontier (74) and under Political Agents (51). The former was due to the non-payment of certain allowances for guarding Hill Passes in Hazara, Peshawar and Dera Ismail Khan Districts in 1911-12 and to savings in the charges of the Khyber Rifles, the Chitral Scouts under salaries and the Waziristan Militia under Force, counterbalanced to some extent by expenditure on account of the Royal Bonus, and the latter chiefly to the abolition of the Wana Agency and to the appointment of one of the Assistant Political Officers at Chitral having remained vacant, and to the Political Officer on duty drawing a lower rate of salary than was provided for. The decrease under the head Miscellaneous due to smaller expenditure on Khassadar Establishment was to some extent counterbalanced by higher expenditure under Entertainment of Envoys by the Chief Commissioner.
Madras . . .	1,13	1,14	1,16	......	Excess over Budget due to enhancement of Municipal assessment and additional expenditure incurred by the Resident in Travancore and Cochin for his journey to attend the Delhi Coronation Durbar.
Bombay . . .	9,53	9,12	8,76	The accounts of 1910-11 included special charges for the purchase of a bungalow at Shaik Othman (22) and on the establishment of a telephone system at Aden (16). The charges for salaries of Political Officers at Aden and payments to officers of other Provinces were higher.	The Imperial Section of this Major Head was slightly exceeded owing to heavy charges incurred by the Resident at Aden in entertaining guests. These charges vary according to the number and position of guests entertained by that officer at his discretion. The excess was however, met by re-appropriation. Savings accrued in the Provincial Section chiefly in the salaries of officers owing to changes in personnel and in payments to officers of other Provinces, which were partially utilized for Royal Bonus and Grain Compensation. The recoveries of contributions towards Establishments in Foreign Service of the third kind were less owing to the unfavourable season in certain parts of the Presidency.

135. The expenditure was less than that of 1910-11 by 19,81 due mainly to the fact that the previous years accounts included a large special adjustment (20,00) in connection with the subsidy of His Majesty the Amir of Afghanistan. In the current year there was an increase in Eastern Bengal and Assam (4,16) due to the Mishmi and Miri Missions

136 As compared with the Budget, there was an increase of 7,29 occurring chiefly in India (5,16) due to the reorganisation of the Political Department and the abolition or non-payment during the year of certain contributions recoverable from Native States for Residency charges and in Eastern Bengal and Assam (1,22) due to the Mishmi and Miri Missions

137. An Imperial excess of 1,18 in India and a Provincial excess of 93 in Eastern Bengal and Assam require the sanction of the Government of India The excesses were apparent too late to enable a provision being obtained before the year closed but the failure to provide in the budget for the probable cost of the scheme for the reorganisation of the Political Department is noteworthy A Provincial excess of 12 in Burma has been sanctioned by the Local Government

India . . .	55,74	70,68	53,85	Smaller charges in the Survey Department accounted for the decrease.	After elimination of 12,55 intended for and transferred to the Provincial Budgets on account of Census charges, the savings of about 4,00 in the actuals were due to transfer to the Provincial Books of some portion of the charges of the Survey Department in connection with the North Burma, Miri, Mishmi and Abor Missions, temporary vacancies in several departments, and to savings under Census, and in the Geological Survey Department on account of absence of boring operations on a large scale.
Central Provinces .	4,91	5,18	7,04	The average growth of expenditure based on four normal years was 1[illegible], while the increase in 1911-12 was 2,13 The excess was due to the following causes.— (a) Increased expenditure on census operations, (b) opening of new farms and dairies in the Agricultural Department, (c) the deputation to this Province for training of two officers of the Civil Veterinary Department and large expenditure incurred in purchasing anti-rinderpest serum from the Muktesar Laboratory; and (d) a whole-time Registrar of Co-operative Credit Societies having been on duty throughout the year 1911-12.	The increase over the Budget was chiefly due to— (1) Census expenditure. (2) Additional expenditure under Agriculture owing to the opening of new experimental farms and dairies (3) Pay and allowances drawn by two officers deputed for training and the purchase of anti-rinderpest serum.
Burma . . .	4,69	4,95	5,80	The increase was mainly due to larger expenditure on Census operations, to the appointment of a Veterinary Inspector, to larger outlay on fluctuating charges under Veterinary and Stallion charges, to the appointment of an additional Deputy Director of Agriculture and to larger outlay under Registrar of Co-operative Credit Societies owing to the appointment of an officer on special duty. The above increase was partly counterbalanced by savings under Salaries and Travelling Allowances of the Agricultural Botanist.	Omitting 91 for Census, the actuals of 1911-12 were 4,9[illegible] against the budget of 4,9[illegible] The increase caused by the payment of contribution to the Planters' Association of Lower Burma, by the entertainment of an Additional Deputy Director and by the working of the farm at Hmawbi was counterbalanced by the non-utilization of the provision made for the salary and travelling allowance of the Botanist, by the savings under fluctuating charges under Archæological Department and by the savings under salaries of Veterinary Superintendents. Part of the excess over the budget was covered by additional grants and re-appropriations before the expenditure was incurred and part before the end of the year.
Eastern Bengal and Assam.	5,05	5,06	6,09	Charges under Census rose from 44 in 1910-11 to 155 in 1911-12. Omitting this unusual item, expenditure decreased by 7 Smaller outlay on buildings connected with the Dacca Farm reduced charges under Agriculture by 19 but the appointment of a Special officer for Cattle Survey and charges in connection with the opening of a new registration office at Chaktai in Chittagong raised expenditure by 6 under Veterinary and Stallion Charges and by 5 under Statistics.	The excess was mainly due to expenditure of 155 on Census to cover which the Government of India sanctioned an additional grant of 162. Under all other heads savings occurred, the principal ones being savings of 9 under Agricultural Demonstrations and Experiments, of 19 under Veterinary and Stallion charges, no use having been made of the provision of 10 for purchase of land and charges in connection with bull-breeding operations having fallen, and of 8 in connection with the Gazetteer.

Punjab .	7 77	8 44	8 83	Increase over 1910 11 was chiefly due to a higher expenditure of 13 on account of Census in 1911 12 to the payment of 48 for the Badshahi Mela at Delhi to the revision of the subordinate veterinary establishment and to the development of the Agricultural Department	The increase was due chiefly to an expenditure of 56 on account of Census and of 48 for the Badshahi Mela at Delhi in connection with the Coronation Durbar, counterbalanced by a decrease under Subordinate Staff and Agricultural Experiments and specially in the provision for the purchase and repair of well boring apparatus
North West Frontier Province	89	90	80	The decrease was due to the fact that 1910 11 included 24 under Public Exhibitions and Fairs and a smaller expenditure under Agriculture	The decrease was chiefly due to partial utilization of the provision (29) made in the Budget for construction of Veterinary Dispensaries, purchase of bazar medicines and purchase of stallions counterbalanced by an increase (14) under Census for which no provision in the Budget existed but an extra grant was sanctioned by the Government of India.

Madras	14,46	13,94	15,29	Increase was due mainly to larger Census charges (1,33).	The excess as compared with the grant was really nominal as the Provincial Budget contained no provision for Census operations for which an allotment of 1,84 was subsequently made to Provincial. There were, however, considerable savings in the Budget under Chinchona Plantations Examinations and Agriculture partly counter balanced by an excess over the Budget under Registrar, Co-operative Credit Societies and Miscellaneous.
Bombay	9,40	10,88	12,80	The excess over the actuals of 1910-11 was chiefly due to the purchase of land for the Northcote Cattle Farm (1,99) larger expenditure on account of Census, Agriculture, owing to the gradual expansion of the operations of the department, and additional staff under Registrar, Co-operative Credit Societies.	The actuals included 1,52 on account of Census expenditure. Separate grants were allotted to this Presidency from the provision made in the India Estimates for this purpose. Excluding this special expenditure, the excess over the Budget amounted to 40, which was entirely due to the payment of 1,99 for land acquired for the Northcote Cattle Farm, Charodi, against the provision of 1.07 and payment of Royal Bonus and Grain Compensation Allowance, partially covered by savings under Agriculture. The Local Government having issued orders to curtail expenditure to meet unforeseen demands in consequence of the prevailing scarcity, some of the schemes were postponed. The provision for Salary and Allowances of the Certifying Surgeons was also not required owing to the delay in sanctioning the scheme. Under Registrar, Co-operative Credit Societies, there was, however, an excess owing to the deputation of an officer of the Indian Civil Service and to the appointment of three special officers under the Registrar.

138. Expenditure increased by 12,43 as compared with the previous year This was mainly due to the provision in the India accounts of 14,38 for the Census operations. From this provision allotments aggregating 12,55 were subsequently transferred to other Government accounts where the local charges were recorded. This accounted for the greater part of the Provincial variations as compared both with the previous actuals and the Budget In Bombay the cost of the land acquired for the Northcote Cattle Farm (1,99) was a special item, which was insufficiently provided for in the Budget, causing an increase of 92. In the United Provinces there was increased expenditure on experimental farms and the provision for a park at Agra (1,35) was utilized to a very small extent. In Bengal the delay in the introduction of the scheme for the transfer of Veterinary Assistants from District Boards and the transfer of funds for improvement of buildings to the Public Works head resulted in small lapses As compared with the Budget the actuals showed a saving of 7,99.

139 Imperial excesses of 19 in Bombay and 15 in the Central Provinces in connection with Census require the sanction of the Government of India In Bombay, the excess was due partly to late charges and partly to expected recoveries having been delayed In the Central Provinces the necessity for providing additional grants in view of a revised estimate of charges was overlooked A Provincial excess of 13 in the Central Provinces has been sanctioned by the Local Administration.

India . . .	9,47	9,88	10,09	Increase was due to normal growth in the pension list	Budget was exceeded owing to a larger number of lump payments in commutation of pensions and to the payment of certain gratuities from the compassionate funds.
Central Provinces .	6,77	7,00	7,24	The continued growth of the pension list accounted for the increase.	Increase due to additions to the pension list sanctioned during the year being heavy, while the lapses were low. The excess was duly provided for by reappropriation before the close of the year.
Burma . . .	7,76	7,94	8,04	The increase was mainly due to an increase in pensions under Police on account of a large number of Military Policemen having retired in 1911-12, partly counterbalanced by a decrease under Gratuities owing to smaller payment of gratuities to Itinerant teachers.	The increase over the budget was mainly due to the payment of special gratuities sanctioned by the Government of India and to larger expenditure on account of pensions of Military Policemen.
Eastern Bengal and Assam.	8,00	8,50	8 63	Expenditure under this head is constantly growing and the increase in 1911-12, viz. 63 was less by 1 only than that in 1910-11.	......

The Provincial charges amounted to 29,17 in 1911-12 against 27,87 in 1910-11 .	The growth of expenditure under Provincial charges was 1,30 which was in excess of the average growth of 80 (based on past increases) allowed in Budget. The audit was not conducted against grant and the excess over Budget occurred in the closing months of the year and the actuals appeared too late to permit of extra grant being obtained within the year
United Provinces of Agra and Oudh	29,74	30,37	30,62	The expenditure under Superannuation and Retired Allowances increased from 25,27 to 28,99 in the five years from 1905-6 to 1910-11 giving an average of about 75. But the expenditure in 1911-12 was in excess of that of the previous year by 90. The abnormal increase of 15 was mainly due to fresh sanction of pensions for the employes of the Police and Opium departments.	The expenditure on account of Superannuation and Retired Allowances was slightly underestimated. The excess, which was covered by reappropriation sanctioned by the Local Government within the year, was caused by the large number of employés of the Police and Opium departments who retired on pension.
Punjab . . .	17,68	18,34	18,77	The usual growth of pension charges accounted for the increase over 1910-11.	The increase occurred chiefly under Superannuation and Retired Allowance owing to the fact that the Budget did not sufficiently provide for the progressive growth.

Province.	Accounts, 1910-11.	Budget, 1911-12	Accounts, 1911-12	LOCAL ACCOUNT OFFICER'S REVIEW OF ACTUALS AGAINST Actuals, 1910-11.	LOCAL ACCOUNT OFFICER'S REVIEW OF ACTUALS AGAINST Budget, 1911-12.
India . . .	−2,43	16	−1,77	The decrease of gross charges as compared with the actuals of the preceding year was chiefly the result of curtailment of expenditure in Government Presses, reduction in the consumption of stationery in Government offices and larger supplies of stationery to Provincial Governments.	The betterness was chiefly due to smaller purchase of stationery.
Central Provinces .	4,50	3,50	3,38	The actuals of 1910-11 included large expenditure incurred on the Purchase of plant and furniture for Government Presses and also charges for certain articles of stationery supplied from the Central Stores indented for in the years 1907, 1908 and 1909, but not charged till 1910-11.	Savings were mainly due to provision made for the Purchase of plant and furniture for the Government Press not having been utilized.
Burma . . .	8,13	8,30	7,86	The decrease was mainly due to smaller outlay on Temporary and Day Extra establishments, Purchase of plant and furniture and postage and packing charges partly counterbalanced by an increase under Stationery purchased in the country and Purchase of raw materials.	The decrease was mainly due to the savings under Temporary and Day extra establishments and overtime and to less outlay on Purchase of plant and furniture and Postage and packing charges, partly counterbalanced by an increase under Purchase of raw materials and Stationery supplied from Central Stores.
Eastern Bengal and Assam	7,79	7,24	7,37	The decrease occurred on account of purchase of Plant and Contingencies under Government Presses, the expenditure in 1910-11 having been very high owing to the move of part of the Secretariat Press from Shillong to Dacca	The estimate of stationery supplied from Central Stores which was based on the actuals for 1908-09, was exceeded by 73, the expenditure being equal to that of 1910-11. A saving of 21 occurred under Stationery purchased in the country, mainly owing to provision of 15 having been made under this head for the purchase of typewriters, while the expenditure was taken against the various departmental budgets. Under Government Presses there was a saving of 38, no expenditure on account of the move of the Secretariat Press from Shillong being incurred during the year.
Bengal . .	12,31	13,39	11,13	The reduction in expenditure (1,18) as compared with 1910-11 was effected by the introduction of the book-credit system from 1911-12 under which a book-credit was given to each office and the supply limited to the amount of credit	Budget under Government Presses was overestimated by about 1,00. Savings of about 1,00 were also effected by the introduction of the book-credit system. Budget was therefore under-spent by about 2,00. The excess under Imperial for stationery supplied to Imperial Departments could not be foreseen as the actuals appeared for the first time. The charge is not audited against grant and the debit is passed on at the end of the year.
United Provinces of Agra and Oudh.	8,66	8,48	8,25	As compared with 1910-11 charges on account of Stationery supplied from Central Stores were lower by 16 as a result of the new arrangement of obtaining typewriters on cash payment and consequent debit of such charges to the respective major heads. This coupled with a decrease of 27 under Government Press, chiefly due to smaller outlay on purchase of raw materials and on freight on stationery, explained the variation between the actuals of the two years	Setting apart the lump provision of 17 in the Budget for purchase and repair of typewriters which had almost entirely been distributed over the respective major heads according to requirements, the actuals showed a decrease of 6 only, which was practically the net result of savings of 38 under Government Press and an increase of 32 in charges for Stationery supplied from Central Stores which were under-estimated. The decrease under Government Press was chiefly due to the absence of the permanent Superintendent on long leave, to smaller expenditure on overtime allowance, outside printing, raw materials and freight on stationery, partly counterbalanced by larger outlay on plant and furniture

Punjab	7,55	7,31	7,32	The decrease was chiefly due to the introduction of the allotment system.	Total actuals closely follow the Budget with variations under Minor Heads. The increase under Purchase of Stationery, due to an under-estimate in the Budget, was counterbalanced by a decrease under Other Charges, owing to the transfer of the Book and Job work from the Civil and Military Gazette to the Secretariat Press.
North West Frontier Province.	83	1,00	8[illegible]		The decrease occurred partly under Printing at Private Presses and was the result of small variations, the chief being in the printing charges of the Revenue Commissioner, due to the revision of Revenue Circulars having been taken up in the latter portion of the year 1911-12, in consequence of which the Circulars could not be printed in the course of that year and partly under Stationery supplied from Central Stores
Madras	22,57	21,32	21,30	The actuals of 1910-11 included 2,00 but those of 1911-12 only 7 on account of extra purchase of articles of stationery to bring stock to the level of current requirements and to keep a reserve for six months which was resolved upon in 1909-10	Excess expenditure on the supply of stationery from Central Stores (68) was counterbalanced by savings under Government Presses (47) and under Purchase of Stationery (25). The excess was due to normal expansion of requirements and the savings under the latter heads to more extensive purchase of paper from England and decrease under establishment and other charges in the Secretariat Press
Bombay	18,86	20,86	19,05	The excess was mainly due to larger issues of typewriters and rubber stamps and payments of Royal Bonus and Grain compensation, partially counterbalanced by smaller issues of paper to the Yervada Jail Press and decreased forwarding charges at the Stationery Office, Bombay	The saving in the Budget was chiefly due to a reduction in the Press demand for paper and adjustment of the value of Mathematical Instruments supplied to the Public Works Department by deduction from charges. The Government Central Press was also less busy, thus causing a saving in the provisions for overtime and plague allowances, raw materials, etc. On the other hand, some excess was caused by the supply to Provincial Departments of typewriters and rubber stamps, which was, however, met from savings

144. The expenditure was less than that of 1910-11 by 4,05 and than the Budget by 6,93. The actuals under Printing were practically unchanged and the variations occurred under the Stationery heads. The decrease under Purchase of Stationery was 4,43 and occurred chiefly in India (2,57) due to progressive economy and in Madras (1,84) due to smaller requirements of reserve stock There was a less supply to Local Governments and administrations of stationery supplied from Central Stores by 2,04 due to a reduction in Bengal (1,05) caused by the introduction of the system under which a book credit was given to spending officers and the supply limited to the amount of credit and in the Central Provinces (66) owing to the fact that the previous year's figures included arrear adjustments Supplies to the Postal Department decreased by 45

145. As compared with the Budget the decrease of 6,93 occurred chiefly in Bengal (2,26) due to an over-estimate under Government Presses and the book credit system already referred to, in India (1,93) due to smaller Press charges and purchase of stationery and in Bombay (1,81) due to delay in the execution of certain printing work which resulted in a less demand for stationery, to a reduction in purchases for Bengal and to adjustments of the value of Mathematical Instruments supplied to the Public Works Department by deduction from charges.

146 Imperial excesses of 13 in Bengal and 3 in the Punjab require the sanction of Government. A Provincial excess in Madras of 16 has been sanctioned by the Local Government.

India . . .	6,68	8,22	5,68	The actuals of 1910-11 included a special charge of 2,32 in connection with the visit of the Crown Prince of Germany. On the other hand irrecoverable loans written off in 1911-12 were more than those in the preceding year by 1,35.	Budget included in the aggregate a reserve provision of 5,20 for unforeseen expenditure under other heads of expenditure. This being excluded the increase of nearly 2,50 as compared with the Budget was due chiefly to the remission to the Bhumia Chiefs in accordance with the announcement at the Coronation Durbar of the entire balance of loans outstanding against them (1,71) to writing off of 47 representing irrecoverable tacavi advances in Baluchistan and to arrear charges in connection, with the visit of the Crown Prince of Germany (24).
Central Provinces .	1,01	1,37	1,37	The increase was due to large expenditure on remittance charges on unusually heavy remittances of surplus funds to Bombay and Calcutta, on compensation for land taken up for Nazul and other purposes, and on payments to Municipalities for general purposes and to Nagpur Municipality for Nazul surplus premia
Burma . . .	5,24	4,61	5,99	The excess over the actuals of 1910-11 was mainly due to the grant of a larger number of language rewards and to larger payment of rewards for destruction of snakes in the Tharrawaddy and Hanthawaddy Districts	The excess over the Budget was due to special contributions made to the Rangoon Municipality (70) on account of the curtailment of the Cantonment area and of the compensation paid to the owners of hackney carriages for the destruction of their ponies under the Glanders and Farcy Act, and to larger contributions paid to the Telegraph Department on account of opening of wireless telegraphic communication between Mergui and Victoria Point, to larger payments of rewards for the destruction of snakes in the Hanthawaddy and Tharrawaddy District, (47) and to larger expenditure under Charges for remittance of treasure (21) necessitated by the heavy issues of supply bills in the last three months of the year to meet trade demands The excess would have been more but for the savings under Rents, Rates and Taxes (43) consequent on the Government of India fixing the rate of assessment on Government buildings at 7½ per cent of the actual annual demand on private properties
Eastern Bengal and Assam.	6,56	6,86	6,10	Grants to District and Local Boards for general purposes decreased by 1,05 while those to Municipalities increased by 38, the net result being a decrease of 67 Expenditure further went down by 11 owing to a reduction in subsidies to tonga contractors. There was also no expenditure on special commissions as against 31 in 1910 11. Against this, Charges for remittance of treasure rose by 17 owing to large remittances being sent to Calcutta and Dacca Under Petty Establishments expenditure rose by 14 and under Rents Rates and Taxes by 7, both increases being largly due to the	Reduced grants to District and Local Boards caused a saving of 1,05, partly balanced by an excess of 50 under grants to Municipalities Transfer of grants at the disposal of His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor to other major heads caused a further saving of 20 and the reduction of subsidies to tonga contractors a saving of 5. Provision for Miscellaneous and unforeseen expenditure also proved too high by 9. Large remittances of treasure to Calcutta and Dacca however caused an excess on that account of 15. The net result was a saving of 76.

				occupation of the Secretariat building in Dacca for which a care-taking establishment was entertained. These and other minor variations resulted in a net decrease of 46.
Bengal . . .	3,69	6,22	4,25	Actuals for 1911-12 exceeded those for 1910-11 by 56. This was due to payment of subsidy to a vernacular paper for 3 quarters against 1 quarter in 1910-11 which accounted for 32 and to increased payment of donations to Charitable Institutions.	The decrease of 2,00 as compared with Budget, was nominal and was due to record under the proper account heads of expenditure from the reserve provision of 1,07 and from the petty grant of His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor (1,00). The excess under Imperial occurred in March 1912 and the actuals appeared too late to permit of further extra grant being obtained within the year.
United Provinces of Agra and Oudh.	7,52	2,31	3,36	Excluding from the actuals for 1910-11, 4,75 on account of the writing off of the loan to the United Provinces Exhibition Committee, there was an increase of 59 in the year under report which was chiefly due to larger remissions of tacavi loans consequent on unfavourable agricultural conditions.	Budget was taken at a moderate figure. But heavy remissions of tacavi loans resulting from unfavourable season and larger miscellaneous and unforeseen charges sanctioned by the Local Government, coupled with the special payment of 5 to Bibi Gendhu as compensation for loss sustained and additional contributions to the District Board, Gonda (7) mainly accounted for the increase, which was, however, counterbalanced to a small extent by petty savings. The payment to Bibi Gendhu was in the first instance passed on to the Comptroller of India Treasuries for adjustment but was subsequently recorded under Extraordinary Items in accordance with Government of India, Finance Department, letter No A.-2460, dated the 12th April 1912, and hence a reappropriation could not be obtained in time. It was, however, met by other savings under the Provincial section. The excess under the other minor heads were covered by reappropriations sanctioned within the year.
Punjab . . .	3,51	3,49	3,77	The increase over 1910-11 was chiefly due to large remittances having been made to Calcutta and Bombay.	The increase was due to large remittances having been made to Calcutta and Bombay for which the Budget did not provide, as also to an over-estimate of the deduction made for probable savings, counterbalanced by the nominal savings in the provision of 26 made for grants-in-aid to villagers in the Chenab Colony for sanitary improvements, the expenditure on which account was actually debited to 24—Medical, the more appropriate head. The excess under Imperial was sanctioned by the Government of India during the year.
North-West Frontier Province.	52	36	30	The decrease was due to the payment in 1910-11 of a grant of 10 made to the Peshawar Municipality, and to the expenditure of 10 in connection with the entertainment of His Imperial Highness the German Crown Prince and of 6 in connection with floods in Dera Ismail Khan.	The decrease was chiefly under the head Petty Establishment due to the provision of 10 for furnishing Rest Houses not having been utilized, as no new Rest Houses were constructed during the year.

147. Expenditure increased by 9,90 as compared with the previous actuals and by 8,06 as compared with the Budget. This was chiefly the result of the announcements made at the Coronation Durbar by which the debts of certain states in Kathiawar and Gujarat (11,08) and of the Bhumia Chiefs (1,71) were remitted. The expenditure of the previous year included the write off of a loan to the United Provinces Exhibition (4,75) and special expenditure on the Crown Prince of Germany's visit (2,32). The absence of these charges from the United Provinces and India accounts resulted in a decrease, while increased payments on Rents, Rates and Taxes (2,01) enhanced the expenditure in Bombay.

148. As compared with the Budget, there were decreases in India (2,64) and Bengal (1,97) which were nominal and were due to expenditure against the reserve of 5,20 and 2,07 respectively provided in those accounts for unforeseen charges having been recorded under the heads of expenditure to which they properly related. Larger contributions and rewards for the destruction of snakes in Burma, and of remissions of tacavi loans in the United Provinces accounted for increases in those Provinces

The Budget was unduly high as in no case was the amount provided for the more important works fully spent. The largest saving occurred under the Tandula Canal and was ascribed to difficulty in procuring labour.

Bengal	7,89	10,11	6,38	...	In addition to the amount available from the Famine Insurance grant for Protective Irrigation Works a supplementary provision of a little over 2,00 was made from the general resources of Government to foster the rapid development of this important class of works. Owing, however, to scarcity of labour and other causes the progress of work was very slow in the Tribeni Canal; consequently the extra grant was not required and even the usual provision could not be fully utilized. A surrender of 3,38 was therefore made to the Government of India.
United Provinces	10,90	13,00	9,74	Owing to the construction of the Dhassan, Pahuj and Garhmau canals having been closed in March 1911, the outlay on this account was smaller as compared with the previous year.	Extensive use of stores and restriction of expenditure on the Gangau Dam and the Dhassan canal owing to the scarcity of labour in Bundelkhand and lower expenditure on the preparation of Famine Relief Projects coupled with the fact that the estimates for the Majhgawan tank, Barwar lake and Chench, Gursarai and Moth canals were not sanctioned in time to allow of the expenditure being incurred accounted for the decrease which was partly set off by higher outlay on the Ghori Nadi scheme. Reduction in establishment owing to surveys not having been undertaken to the extent originally anticipated also explained the decrease in Rajputana.

There was no necessity to transfer any expenditure this year. Excluding this deduct entry the Budget was 77,61. The actuals were less than this by 20,78 The decrease was largely due to the difficulty of procuring sufficient labour and occurred chiefly in the Central Provinces (10,44), on the Tandula Canal, in Bengal (3,73), on the Tribeni Canal, in the United Provinces (3,26) on Gangao Dam and Dhassan Canal, and where the want of sanctioned estimates for certain other works and the extensive use of stores, were additional causes and in Bombay (1,90) owing to the presence of plague.

161. These figures show that the net result of the working of all Railways was a gain of 5,68,15 or £3,787,7, after meeting all charges for interest, annuities, etc, which compared with the net result of the previous year showed an improvement of 2,65,53 or £1,770,2 Compared with the net gain provided for in the Budget the improvement was 2,90,69 or £1,937,9.

162. The gross receipts of the year were 3,21,83 in advance of the Budget and exceeded the actuals of the previous year by 4,42,40, showing that the upward tendency of traffic in the previous year was steadily maintained. The increased earnings were secured on the whole at an expense which was only 17,46 over the sum provided for in the Budget and at an increased cost of only 1,40,91 compared with the working expenses of the previous year.

In the following table a comparison is given of the net receipts of the principal Railways showing how far the variations were accounted for on the receipt and the expenditure sides, respectively :—

	Actuals, 1910-11	Budget, 1911-12
Bengal-Nagpur Railway	+29,77	+19,84	The improvement in actuals was due to an increase in receipts of 33,76. Compared with the Budget the increase in receipts was 16,75.
Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway.	+27,26	+41,83	Gross receipts were 54,45 higher than in 1910-11 and 43,80 more than Budget, while Working Expenses were 27,19 more than in 1910-11 and exceeded the Budget by 1,97.
Burma Railways	+7,35	+1,00	Slight increase in Gross Receipts and Working Expenses.
Eastern Bengal Railway	+15,08	+16,25	The improvement in actuals was made up of Gross Receipts +32,27 and Working Expenses +17,19. The increase over Budget was due to Gross Receipts +19,59 and Working Expenses +3,34.
East Indian Railway	+13,53	+49,41	The increase in actuals was due to Gross Receipts +45,19 and Working Expenses +31,66. As compared with the Budget the improvement was due to Gross Receipts +49,97 and Working Expenses +56.
Great Indian Peninsula Railway.	+65,17	+67,63	The improvement in actuals was due to a large increase in Gross Receipts of 77,79 diminished by an increase in Working Expenses of 12,62. The increase as compared with the Budget was due to a large increase in Gross Receipts of 77,58 and a small increase in Working Expenses of 9,95.
Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway	+27,30	+17,40	The increase in actuals was due to an improvement in Gross Receipts of 30,63. Compared with the Budget the improvement was due to an increase of 15,03 in Gross Receipts and a reduction of 2,37 in Working Expenses.
North-Western Railway	+60,99	+30,52	The improvement in actuals was due to a large increase of 87,12 in Gross Receipts reduced by an increase of 26,13 in Working Expenses. The increase on Budget was due to Gross Receipts 38,60 and Working Expenses 8,08.
Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway.	+18,92	+23,54	The variations were in both Gross Receipts and Working Expenses—Gross Receipts +23,03 and Working Expenses +4,11 as compared with actuals and +21,76 and—1,78, respectively, as compared with Budget.
South Indian Railway	+16,89	+18,37	Gross Receipts were 24,82 higher than in 1910-11 and 16,82 more than Budget, while Working Expenses were 7,93 more than in 1910-11 and 1,55 less than Budget.
Tirhoot State Railway	+9,49	+7,85	While Gross Receipts improved by 7,58 and 4,52 as compared with previous actuals and Budget, Working Expenses resulted in a reduction of 1,91 and 3,33, respectively.

Central Provinces—Imperial	39	40	35
Burma—Imperial	2,61	3,25	3,03	The increase was due to the changes in classification of the charges of the Mon Canal Division from 49 Irrigation Major Works to this head, and to larger outlay under Establishment and under Suspense in the Shwebo Canal and smaller outlay on Mandalay Canal.	The increase was due to larger outlay under Shwebo Canal—Suspense, to insufficient provision made for the Mon Canal, and to larger outlay on allowances for collection of revenue in the Shwebo Canal, partly counterbalanced by a decrease under Mandalay Canal due to smaller outlay under Main Canal and branches and distributaries.
Bengal—Imperial	...	7,25	7,01	Under the new Provincial Settlement the charges were divided between Imperial and Provincial. Actuals, 1910-11, included 22 on account of Accounts Establishment since transferred to 18.—General Administration and actuals, 1911-12, included 9 on account of Royal Bonus and 38 on account of Tribeni Canal which was brought under Revenue account for the first time. Excluding these the actuals of 1911-12 were less than those of 1910-11 by 78, owing to savings in Establishment in the Sone Canals, partly counterbalanced by increased charges under Tools and Plant in the same canals.	There was a saving of 48. The establishment charges for the Sone Canals were over-estimated by about 90, but this was obscured by increased expenditure under other items in the same canal, viz., 24 on silt clearences and 25 on Tools and Plant under the system of allocation approved by the Comptroller-General
United Provinces—Imperial	2,50	3,17	3,73	Setting aside the expenditure of 1,05 on account of the Dassan, and Pahuj and Garhmau canals which were open for working in the year under report, the actuals showed an excess of 18 over those of 1910-11, which was due to higher establishment charges (Betwa canal).	Larger outlay on establishment charges coupled with heavy repairs to the main canal and branches (Dhassan canal) counterbalanced by savings under Pahuj and Garhmau canals explained the increase over Budget.
Provincial	32,06	31,94	31,11	Lower outlay on the Lower Ganges, Eastern Jumna and Dun canals, partly set off by higher expenditure on the Ganges canal, was mainly responsible for the decrease.	The decrease was due to shorter outlay on repairs done to the Lower Ganges canal, non-utilisation of the provision for replacement of works in the Dun canals and to the transfer of the work Groynes at Baldi to the head 49—Irrigation not charged to revenue. This was partly set off by the special payment of the Royal Bonus and heavy repairs done to the head works of the Eastern Jumna canal.
Punjab—Imperial	46,35	34,88	39,68	Under the new settlement the charges were shared equally between Imperial and Provincial. The cause described under Budget accounted for the increase.	The increase was due to the execution of special works in the Upper Bari Doab Canal and on the Head works and Sirwan training works on the Sirhind Canal. The other contributing causes were the higher expenditure on silting tanks and tools and plant and the establishment of two extra sub-divisions in the Lower Chenab Canal as also the construction of silting reaches and improvement of channels in the Western Jumna Canals, construction of spurs in the Lower Jhelum Canal and the construction of a new head-reach in the Upper Sutlej Canal owing to river erosion. There was a decrease under Indus Inundation Canal.

North-West Frontier—Imperial	3,16	2,80	3,21	...	The increase was due chiefly to the construction of new drainages in the Lower Swat River Canal (46) and of superpassages in the Kabul River Canal (16), as also to higher expenditure on silt clearance and other Canals (14), and on repairs necessitated by rains (11).
Madras—Imperial	11,78	11,65	11,12	Decrease was due to want of working estimates, less repairs and a write back from Revenue to Capital counterbalanced by some larger outlay under other systems.	Decrease was due to heavy rains outbreak of cholera, write-back of expenditure from Revenue to Capital and want of sanction to working estimates, partly counterbalanced by increased expenditure under Periyar system.
Bombay—Imperial	6,77	6,56	7,06	The excess was due to the write-back during 1910-11 of the capital cost of the Head Regulator on the Begari Canal owing to the construction of a new one it its place.	The increase was due to the opening of the Godavari Canal and to larger debits to this head under Establishment owing to smaller expenditure on works under the Major head 49—Outlay on Irrigation Works.

163. The increase as compared with the previous year was 5,33 and occurred chiefly under Punjab (5,20) and was due to the execution of special works in the Upper Bari Doab and on the Sirhind Canals, and higher expenditure on silting tanks and reaches and construction on the Lower Jhelum and Upper Sutlej Canals. There was however a decrease under the Indus Inundation Canal where the actuals for 1910-11 included special items. The Punjab (9,60) was also mainly responsible for the above reasons for the increase as compared with the Budget (695).

Provincial excesses of 32 and an Imperial (Special) excess of 11 have been sanctioned by the Local Governments and Administration.

Imperial	2,31	3,00	2,86	The increase was due to the proportionate increase of the capital outlay.
Burma—
Imperial	5,88	5,80	6,07	The increase was due to the increase in the Capital outlay as well as to the increased rate of interest.	As the adjustment was made on receipt of information regarding the rate of interest from the Comptroller-General after the close of the year, the excess was not covered by any additional grant.
Bengal—
Imperial	2,23	12,75	13,00	Under the new Provincial settlement the charges were shared between Imperial and Provincial.	Annual adjustments were made on actual outlay on Irrigation works and were not audited against Grant.
Provincial	20,88	10,39	10,51
United Provinces of Agra and Oudh—
Imperial	5,12	5,73	5,49		Decrease was chiefly due to calculations having been made in accordance with the instruction contained in the Comptroller-General's letter No. A.C.—66-33—II dated the 23rd January 1912 and also to reduction in capital outlay under 35—Protective Irrigation Works.
Provincial	29,80	29,97	30,36		The excess was attributable to actual charge having been made at 3·401 per cent, instead of 3·358 per cent. orginally taken and to an increase in capital outlay under 49—Irrigation Works.
Punjab—
Imperial	32,38	28,15	28,53	Increase in capital outlay was responsible for the increase.
Provincial	19,43	28,14	28,53	Under the new Provincial settlement the Provincial share was raised.
North-West Frontier Province—
Imperial	3,49	4,18	4,39	The increase was due to increase in the amount of the Capital outlay.
Madras—
Imperial	14,02	14,10	14,23	The increase was due to increase in Capital outlay and in the rate of interest.	The increase was due mainly to the increase in the actual rate of interest (3·401) over that estimated at the time of framing the Budget (3·358). This increase would have been greater but for a fall in the actual capital outlay (8,26,62) below that provided in the Budget (8,39,52).

Provincial	4,53	6,00	5,35	The increase was due to the arrangement made for the completion of certain Minor Irrigation works during, 1911-12.	The saving was chiefly the result of non-utilization of the full provision under Works for which only Revenue Accounts are kept.
Burma—
Provincial	13,02	14,50	14,27	The increase was due to expenditure on restoring bunds and to special repairs to tanks and escape channel in the Nyaungyan-Minhla tank, to the construction of a link line, over the Shwetachaung Canal, with the Mandalay Canal, to larger expenditure on special repairs to certain weirs in the Mandalay District and to the construction of a steam cargo barge at the Kidderpore Dockyard for the Public Works Department. The increase was partly counterbalanced by smaller outlay on the canals in the Kyaukse District and on the Irrawaddy and Sittang embankments.	The decrease was chiefly due to the incomplete utilization of the provision made for the maintenance of the dredger "Sir Frederic Fryer," to smaller outlay on the Irrawaddy and Sittang Embankments and on the canals in the Kyaukse, Meiktila, Minbu and Thaton Districts, partly counterbalanced by larger outlay in the Yamethin, Mandalay, Shwebo, Pegu and Toungoo Districts.

Provincial	20,73	10,84	9,47	Actuals 1910-11 included 37 on account of the Accounts Establishment since transferred to 18.—General Administration and 1,01 on account of Kristopur Canal which was completed in that year and opened to traffic in 1911-12. Excluding these items and 8 on account of Royal Bonus included in the actuals of 1911-12, the decrease in actuals was 46. This was mainly due to heavy expenditure in the Calcutta and Eastern Canals incurred in 1910-11 in silt-clearing the Bhangore Khal and on repairs to locks.	Excluding the payment on account of Royal Bonus and the reserve of 50 which was not required, the savings in Budget were 2,31 and were chiefly owing to smaller expenditure under the following heads.- (i) "Works." Orissa Canals (36) and Utterbag lock (40), (ii) "Repairs" Ganges river (14), (iii) "Agriculture" works (31), (iv) Establishment (chiefly Revenue) (30), (v) Tools and Plant (83), of which 48 was on account of smaller outlay (mainly in the Calcutta and Eastern Canals) and 35 was due to transfer to other heads under the system of allocation approved by the Comptroller General.

Provincial . .	5,36	4,06	4,23	There was lower outlay on the Hardoi Drainage, Fyzabad and Sarda Ganges surveys and on tanks in the Jhansi District, but higher expenditure on the Sukhra Nadi.
Punjab—
Imperial . .	10,48	10,83	10,09	The actuals for 1910-11 included certain items of an extraordinary character which accounted for the decrease.	The decrease was due partly to certain works in the Chenab and Muzaffargarh Cana's not having been commenced or sufficiently advanced to admit of detailed estimates being sanctioned and partly to the closing of the Sutlej Survey project and to savings in payments for silt clearance, counterbalanced to some extent by higher expenditure in the Lower Sutlej Inundation Canal consequent on the river changing its course and to larger expenditure on silt clearance in the Shahpur Canal and on repairs to bunds in the Muzaffargarh Canal.
Provincial . .	81	1,30	1,07	The increase was due to smaller expenditure on Gurgaon Bunds and no expenditure on Hoshiarpur Malicho during 1910-11.
North-West Frontier— Imperial . .	90	70	39	The decrease was due to smaller expenditure under Contingencies and Petty Construction and Repairs and lower expenditure on Kirani Nalla aqueduct.	Decrease was due to the provision of 46 made in the Budget for Minor Works under Rs. 2,500 being utilized to the extent of 8 only on account of the drought
Madras— Imperial (Coorg) .	17	40	10		The difference was due to the abandonment of the Palur and other Irrigation projects on account of their unremunerative character.
Provincial . .	37,41	1,37	35,70	Decrease due to want of sanctioned estimates difficulty as regards labour and cartage and the presence of water in tanks counterbalanced by repairs on locks.	Decrease was due principally to heavy rains, water in tanks scarcity of labour, savings in estima'e, want of sanction to working estimates and difficulty in carting materials to workshops on account of floods.
Bombay— Imperial . .	16,78	16,48	15,87	The decrease was due to larger expenditure having been incurred in 1910-11 on the Ghar Canal for the clearance and cutting of a new feeder to Dhond Dharo leading to Fardwah, to less expenditure on maintenance and repair-works in the Begari and Fuleli Canal Districts on loops and bunds and also to the closing of the Survey and Construction District in Sind.	The savings were in establishment charges due to surrenders of grants sanctioned for the Hathmathi, Mutha and Dharma Canals and to works for Fuleli Canals not having been carried out owing to the late sanction of allotments and to difficulty in getting materials. In February 1912, 1,82 were re-appropriated from the sanctioned grant to meet anticipated excess under I.—Refunds and Drawbacks. It was not expected at the time that the expenditure on maintenance and repairs works on the Shikarpur and Begari Canals under Works for which neither Capital nor Revenue Accounts are kept would be so heavy in the closing months. The excess under provincial has been sanctioned by the Local Government.

167. There was a decrease as compared both with previous actuals (5,81) and with the Budget (16,30). As compared with the previous actuals the decrease occurred in Bombay (1,82) due to larger expenditure having been incurred in the previous year on the Ghar canal and to less expenditure on maintenance and repairs, and the closing of the Survey and Construction District in Sind, in Bengal (1,79) due also to higher outlay in the previous year on the Kristopur canal which was opened to traffic in 1911-12 and the nominal decrease in consequence of the transfer of Accounts charges to General Administration and in Madras (1,78) due to want of and late receipt of sanctioned estimates, scarcity of labour and the presence of water in tanks.

As compared with the Budget the decrease occurred in Madras (5,97) due to the causes already described, in India (3,82) due mainly to additional expenditure on Nar Nulla project and Sheboo canal in Baluchistan and in Bengal (2,75) due to the lapse of the reserve and smaller expenditure under works, repairs, agriculture establishment and tools and plant

India (General)— Imperial	2,25	1,95	2,14		The excess which occurred in March 1912 was due to larger expenditure on buildings in Seistan, Gyantse, and Baluchistan and was covered by additional grants and reappropriations.
Central Provinces— Provincial	1,84	1,98	1 91		The decrease was due to a saving of 11 in the grants provided for payment to Municipalities. It was partially counterbalanced by the increase caused by the transfer to this head of charges in connection with the roadside arboriculture of the Nagpur Civil Station from 45.- Civil Works in charge of Public Works Officers The transfer of the control of the work from the Public Works Department to the Agricultural Department was decided upon after the Budget was framed
Burma— Provincial	17,71	23,21	21,17	The increase resulted from larger payment of contribution to the Rangoon Port Trust towards the River Training Scheme (i e 20,00 against 15,00 in 1910-11), partly counterbalanced by smaller outlay on Sanitary works	The decrease was mainly due to the transfer of Sanitary grants to the Public Works Department.

Provincial	15,80	34,69	32 59	The excess expenditure of 16,79 over 1910-11 was caused by the payment of 11,50 to the Calcutta Improvement Trust and by increased expenditure out of the lump provision of 5,00 for non-recurring outlay on sanitation Both these charges were met from Imperial assignments	The savings over Budget amounted to 2,10 and were due to the transfer to the Public Works heads of the provision of 50 for the Fringe Area Drainage of the Calcutta Municipality, and to record under the proper account heads of charges amounting to 1,76 out of the combined grant of 9,50 for sanitary improvements, viz, 4,50 recurring and 5,00 non-recurring
United Provinces— Provincial	9,20	10,93	12,43	Larger grants to District Boards and Municipalities accounted for the increase.	The cause described in the column for Actuals accounted for the increase.
Punjab— Provincial	10,77	19,91	10,83		The decrease was due to the non-utilization of the provision of 10,00 made for the Simla Improvement scheme under this head, and 1,00 for the Dehra Ghazi Khan District counterbalanced by payment of 1,00 each to the Municipal Committee, Amritsar for acquiring Dhabs and to the District Board for expenditure on feeder roads.

The decrease below the Budget was partly due to savings in the provisions for Petty Construction and Repairs and for Contribution to District Boards in aid of their resources, and partly to non-utilization of the provision of 5 made in the Budget for Revision of Establishment as the scheme for "Civil Buildings and Communications" did not mature during 1911-12.
Madras—
Provincial	36,36	43,33	49,69	Increase was due to special grants (4,75) to local bodies under communications and to special grants (9,36) for sanitary and medical purposes for educational buildings and to the Port Trust.	Increase was chiefly due to additional contribution amounting to 6,40 sanctioned during the course of the year towards the construction of roads and bridges, of educational buildings and of a Women and Childrens' dispensary.
Bombay—
Provincial	8,30	58,37	59,08	The increase over the actuals of 1910-11 was due to a lump grant of 50,00 from the Government of India to the City of Bombay Improvement Trust and of 30 to the Jalgaon Municipality by the Bombay Government. The expenditure on the improvements of village water supply was also larger in consequence of scarcity in some districts.	A special grant-in-aid of 30 to the Jalgaon Municipality towards the cost of constructing water works and the expenditure incurred on the improvement of village water-supply in consequence of scarcity in the several districts of the Presidency were mainly responsible for the excess.

169. There was a very large increase of 88,79 as compared with the previous year's expenditure due chiefly to larger grants to local bodies in connection with Improvement Schemes and for Medical, Sanitary and Educational purposes. The increase was most marked in Bombay (50,78), the result of special grants of 50,00 to the City of Bombay Improvement Trust and of 30 to the Jalgaon Municipality; in Bengal (16,79) due to a grant of 11,50 to the Calcutta Improvement Trust and to grants to District Boards and Municipalities for sanitary improvements; in Madras (13,33) due to special grants, to local bodies for communications and for sanitary and medical purposes (4,75) and educational buildings (9,36); and in Burma (3,46) due to an increase (5,00) in the grant to the Rangoon Port Trust for the River Training Scheme.

170. The increased expenditure was generally anticipated and provided for in the Budget and the actuals showed a decrease of 3,55 as compared with the Budget which was chiefly due to the non-utilization in the Punjab of the provision of 10,00 made for the Simla Improvement Scheme and the increase in Madras (6,36) due to additional contributions for communications and educational and medical purposes.

Imperial (C. P.)	65	92	54		The saving occurred because the provision made for the buildings for the Director of Telegraphs and the General Post Office, Nagpur, was not utilized, owing to the amalgamation of the Postal and Telegraph Departments and to delay in the preparation of the estimates and plans.
Central India	7,04	7,85	7,43	Increase was due to the inception of new works.
Hyderabad	57	1,39	1,18	The increase was due to the outlay on the construction of Jail and Police buildings at Secunderabad.	The saving was due to the non-utilization of the full amount provided for the new Jail at Secunderabad.
Provincial	57,62	55,52	51,45	The decrease was due partly to the charges of Public Works Account Office being excluded from the Provincial Accounts with effect from 1st April 1911, and partly to expenditure amounting to 53 incurred in excess of the contribution on behalf of the Nagpur Municipality for the Gorewara Water Works, which was charged to "suspense" in the accounts for 1910-11, and on recovery adjusted in the accounts for 1911-12; also to less outlay on working the Ballarpur Colliery owing to small output of coal in 1911-12.	Large savings occurred under the provision made for repairs under the several service heads, particularly under "Communications." This was partly counterbalanced by the expenditure incurred on educational buildings, for which funds were duly transferred from the Education Budget.
Burma—
Imperial	2,55	2,27	1,82	The actuals for 1910-11 included the cost of construction of the Currency buildings at Rangoon.	The decrease was mainly due to savings under reserve at the disposal of the Local Government for unforeseen works, to the savings in the grant for the new Post Office buildings at Rangoon and consequent decrease under Establishment charges. The decrease was partly counterbalanced by an increase under repairs owing to special repairs to the wireless telegraph building at Table Island.

Provincial . .	67,69	82,18	80 45	The increase was mainly due to the following causes:- (1) Larger outlay on the Lieutenant-Governor's residences. (2) Construction of schools and hostels met from the special grant of 8 lakhs for Education (3) Purchase of the Burma Engineering and Trading Company's property at Dawbong (4) Construction of courts in the new district of Syriam and Insein. (5) Larger expenditure on account of Sanitary Works (6) Construction of new roads and bridges in certain divisions. (7) Extensive repairs in the Hanthawaddy and Shwebo Divisions (8) Payment of contribution of 1,50 from Provincial Funds to District Funds in Upper Burma.	The decrease was due to the incomplete utilisation of the reserve under Original Works, to savings in several divisions amounting to a large amount under Repairs, to the transfer of the provision made for House Rent Allowance from 45.—Civil Works, to other heads of expenditure, to the transfer of the cost of the Public Works Sections of the Account Office to 18.—General Administration and to small savings under Tools and Plant and to Suspense. These savings were partly counterbalanced by the transfer of the provision made for Sanitary and Education Grants from 45—Civil Works—In charge of Civil Officers and 22.—Education, respectively to 45 Civil Works-In charge of Public Works Officers and by a decrease in the percentage debitable to Irrigation and other heads in consequence of smaller expenditure under those heads.
Eastern Bengal and Assam— Imperial . .	2,57	2,55	2,08	Expenditure on Salt Golas in Chittagong fell by 76. There was however additional expenditure of 21 and 10 on residences for the Deputy Accountant-General and Chaplain, respectively, at Dacca.	Against a grant of 50 for construction of an office for the Postmaster-General, Eastern Bengal and Assam, there was an entry of—26 owing to the transfer of materials already collected to other building, as in view of administrative changes the building was not proceeded with. Expenditure in excess of provision was however incurred to the extent of 26 on Salt Golas at Chittagong and 6 on a residence for the Deputy Accountant-General at Dacca.
Provincial . .	52,29	52,91	53,92	Though the increase compared with accounts, of 1910-11, was only 1,63 there was larger outlay of 2,59 on Original Works—Communications due to construction of new roads particularly in the Assam Divisions, 109 on repairs to communications, 55 on repairs to buildings in consequence of maintenance of larger number of residential and other Government buildings chiefly at Dacca, and 18 on Miscellaneous public improvements on water-supply and paving streets. Under Tools and Plant there was also an increase of 38. In 1910-11 the expenditure under this head was less as the supply obtained in 1909-10 proved sufficient for part of that year. The only head under which there was less expenditure is Civil Buildings Original Works, the expenditure having gone down by 3,03 due principally to completion of the Secretariat and Press buildings, the expenditure in 1911-12 being only of 67 and 64 against 6,02 and 2,77, respectively, in the previous years. There were, however, larger expenditure of 1,67, 87, and 21 on Police and Educational buildings on Government houses at Dacca and Chittagong, and Medical buildings, respectively. 54 was also spent on quarters for European and Eurasian clerks transferred from Shillong to Dacca with the transfer of head quarters of Government to the	The increase compared with Budget was only 1,01 though the estimate was exceeded by 1,3[illegible] under Original Works Communications due to construction of new roads in Lakhimpore and other divisions in Assam, 1,60 on repairs to communications particularly in Assam, 1,13 for miscellaneous public improvements, payment of a grant of 8 to the Shillong Municipality for improvements of water supply to an increase of 30 under establishment chiefly due to creation of a new Circle in Jalpaigur[illegible] to an expenditure of 3[illegible] on paving street in the new civil station at Dacca and the large expenditure on travelling allowance (19) and contingencies (5) under Construction. The head Civil Buildings Original Works and Suspense only showed savings of 2,07 and 84. The former was due to stoppage of works on account of administrative changes and of late sanction of estimates, while the saving under the latter was owing to utilisation of more stock in hand than was anticipated in the Budget.

Bengal— Imperial	13,20	17,38	19, 1	The increase was due to considerable improvements made in the Indian Museum (2,43), to construction of the new Stamp and Stationery Office, Calcutta (1,60), to larger expenditure on the construction of the Dhurumtollah Press (98), to the construction of the new Telegraph buildings at Dhullundah (71) and improvements in the Central Telegraph Office, Calcutta (26). Owing to increased expenditure on works, Establishment and Tools and Plant charges were also higher by 45 and 8, respectively.	The excess was due to additional expenditure on the Indian museum (2,13) and on the new Stamps and Stationery Office (1,03) partly counterbalanced by savings under repairs (47) and establishment (42). The Revised grant stood at 19,48. A lump deduction of 1,15 from this Revised grant of 19,48 was sanctioned by the Government of India in their order of 20th March 1912, on consideration of the progress of 10 months' expenditure; but the anticipated reduction did not take place owing to heavy expenditure on works in February and March 1912, which exceeded those of same period in previous year by 1¼ lakhs, and the reduced grant was exceeded by 1,38.
Viceregal Estates	2,98	3,51	4,60	Increase was due to improvements to Government House, Calcutta, in view of the Royal Visit.	The increase was due to an expenditure of 1,05 on the construction of a new kitchen in connection with the Royal Visit for which an extra grant of 1,07 was sanctioned by the Government of India.
Port Blair	1,13	1,16	1,04		Savings were due to credit of Saw mill earnings which were not taken into account in Budget. The entire savings are somewhat obscured by increased expenditure on repairs.
Provincial	40,79	50,93	55,63	Excluding Suspense charges which represented items pending adjustment to final heads, the expenditure of 1911-12 exceeded that of 1910-11 by 5,02. This increase is distributed as follows Civil Buildings, Original Works (3,71), Communication. Repairs (52), Miscellaneous Public Improvements, Original Works (66). The increase under the last head was chiefly due to improvement of the lighting of the Calcutta Maidan and that under the second head to advance collection of metal on certain roads as well as to expenditure on flood damage. The real increase under Civil Buildings, Works was about 8,00 and was due to an expenditure of 1,88 on the construction of the Monghyr Central Jail, to an expenditure of about 1,50 on the erection of buildings at Ranchi, the temporary headquarters of the new Bihar Government, and to an expenditure amounting to 4,69 on the following objects	Excluding Suspense charges the actuals 1911-12 exceeded the original Budget by 4,80. This was due to the expenditure on buildings at Ranchi and on Educational buildings partly counterbalanced by surrender of grants for a few works which were not taken up and by savings under Establishment. The excess was covered by re-appropriations amounting to 7,19 sanctioned by the Local Government chiefly from the lump provision of 12,00 under 22.—Education. From the Revised grant of 57,12 a lump deduction of 4,10 was sanctioned by the Local Government in their order dated 11th March 1912 on a consideration of 9 months' actuals. Owing, however, to heavy expenditure on Works in March 1912, which amounted to 10 lakhs against 6 lakhs in March 1911, the savings fell to 1,64. The reduced grant was thus exceeded by 2,46.

This large increase of 8,00 was partly obscured by the inclusion of the charges on several new buildings amounting to about 5 lakhs in the accounts of 1910-11.
United Provinces—
Imperial (U. P.)	4,78	4,09	3,23	There was larger outlay on original works in 1910-11.	The decrease was principally due to withdrawal of grants for the works in connection with the Imperial Forest Institute at Surajbagh, Dehra Dun, and the reconstruction of the Post Office building at Agra.
" (Rajputana)	3,61	3,25	3,53		The increase was chiefly attributable to additions and alterations to the Residency at Mount Abu and construction of certain roads partly counterbalanced by savings under Construction Establishment.
Provincial	61,45	57,78	58,78	The actuals of the year under report showed a decrease of 2,67, which was chiefly attributed to the extensive use of stores in the Roorkee workshop, Allahabad, Lucknow and Tarai and Bhabar divisions.	The increase of 1,00 was due to higher outlay on establishment (1,52) on civil buildings (1,12) and on communications (1,46) counterbalanced by lower expenditure on Miscellaneous Public Improvements (38) and Tools and Plant (27) and by the extensive use of stores in certain divisions.
Punjab—
Imperial	4,42	3,24	7,33	See remarks under Budget.	The increase was ascribed to certain new works having been necessitated during the course of the year for which extra grants were sanctioned, and to the debit of 1,69 raised by the Comptroller India Treasuries, on account of rectangular survey on the Lower Bari Doab canal.
Provincial	40,51	57,98	51,92	The increase was due to more works having been executed during the year.	The decrease was chiefly due to the curtailment of expenditure in consequence of the failure of the monsoon and to some extent to the expenditure of 1,00 for feeder roads having been debited under 45.—Civil Works in charge of Civil Officers and also to savings in establishment charges counterbalanced to some extent by expenditure on the Simla Improvement scheme
Imperial	20,66	20,00	22,55	See remarks in column for Budget.	The increase was mainly due to the adjustment of the expenditure amounting to 1,42 incurred by the North-Western Railway in connection with the earthwork on the Laki Pezu Railway for which no provision was made in the Budget. An allotment of 40 only was, however, made during the year. The excess expenditure of 1,02 over the allotment has been passed under the orders of the Secretary to the Hon'ble the Agent to the Governor-General, but it has been specially reported to the Comptroller and Auditor-General. The balance of the excess was due to the expenditure sanctioned and incurred during the year on metalling and improving certain roads in the Peshawar and Nowshera districts, on boat-bridges in the former district and on other Minor Works connected with Communications and with the Post and Telegraph Offices throughout the North-West Frontier Province.

Madras— Imperial . .	1,49	1,82	1,97		Increase was due to the acquisition of quarters for the Chaplain of Coimbatore for which provision was not made in the Budget estimates.
Coorg . . .	2,56	2,3[illegible]	2,24		The decrease was mainly due to the progress of work having been retarded owing to scarcity of labour on account of plague, etc.
Provincial .	59,01	67,54	60,44	Larger outlay on works accounted for the increase.	Increased provision was made in the Budget for the construction of new buildings required under the district reconstitution scheme, but was not fully utilized under the following heads for the reasons given against each :— (1) Original works (Civil buildings).—There was a saving of 9,81 under the head owing to want of detailed plans and estimates, delay in execution, stoppage of the construction of the Madura Collector's office and scarcity of labour. (2) Original works (Communications) —There was a saving of 1,27 under this head due to slow progress of work owing to scarcity of labour. (3) Tools and Plant.—The large savings under this head were due mainly to cancellation of indents for Europe stores and to larger credits to this head than were anticipated in the Budget. Against the savings should be set off an excess of 1,95, under Original works—Miscellaneous Public Improvements owing to an outlay of 2,91, against a provision of 60 for the Vizianagram Water-supply Works and of 2,80 under Establishment due to less adjustment of percentage charges debitable to other heads and to the debit to this head of the pay of divisional accountants for which provision was made under the head 18.—General Administration in the Budget.

172. Imperial.—The expenditure was greater than that of the previous year by 17,50 and than the Budget by 9,10. Excluding from the Budget the reserve of 7,73 the expenditure was greater than that provided for under the various provinces by 16,83. The increase occurred chiefly in India due to the expenditure of 8,61 incurred on the Temporary Works at Delhi; in Bengal due to considerable improvements made in the Indian Museum (2,43) and to expenditure on the Stamps and Stationery Buildings and in the Punjab due to a larger programme of works and a special adjustment on account of Rectangular Survey charges on the Lower Bari Doab Canal (1,69).

173. Provincial.—The expenditure exceeded that of the previous year by 30,55 but was less than the Budget by 13,36 The Budget provided for an increase of 43,91 over the actuals of the previous year which was distributed amongst all the Provinces except the Central Provinces and the United Provinces where there were small decreases. The record under this head of expenditure met from the special assignments for Educational, Medical and Sanitary purposes accounted to a considerable extent for the variations. The provision was originally made under other heads but was transferred during the course of the year to this head. As compared with the previous actuals the increases occurred chiefly in Burma (12,76), Punjab (11,42) and Bengal (5,84) and was due chiefly to larger construction and repair outlay and to a special contribution to District Funds (1,50) in Upper Burma As compared with the Budget there were large lapses in Madras (7,10), in the Punjab (6,06) and in Bombay (4,11). In Madras the decrease was due chiefly to delay in the construction of buildings under the district reconstitution scheme for want of detailed plans and estimates and to the construction of certain other works being held in abeyance (9,31). In the Punjab the lapse was due to restriction of expenditure in the new Civil Secretariat, the Veterinary College and the King Edward Memorial Fund amounting to 7,44 on account of the failure of the monsoon rains. The transfer of 3,00 provided for the Royal Visit charges to 18—General Administration and large surrender of grants for various Civil Buildings owing to the inability of the Public Works Department to utilize them during the year accounted for the saving in Bombay In Bengal there was an increase of 4,70 due to the construction of buildings at Ranchi, the temporary head-quarters of the Government of Bihar and Orissa and to Educational buildings for which grants were transferred from other heads.

174 There was an excess of 7,97 over the total Imperial grant and a Provincial excess of 3,00 in Eastern Bengal and Assam incurred in the closing months of the year which require the sanction of the Government of India Provincial and Imperial (Special) excesses aggregating 4,67 have been sanctioned by the Local Governments and Administration. These are mainly due to reappropriations made in March from the grants in respect of savings anticipated on a review of the previous month's actuals but which were not realized.

Charges on account of the Military Attaché at Meshed (42) were not provided for in Budget. There was also more expenditure on maps counterbalanced by savings under other heads.

177. The increase (2,41) over the actuals of 1910-11 was due chiefly to fewer officers of the Divisional and Brigade Commands and Staff having been absent on leave; and to the creation of the appointments of Divisional Artillery Commanders and an Inspector of Royal Horse and Field Artillery

178. The increase (78) in this grant was due chiefly to probable savings deducted in the Budget under head Divisional and Brigade Commands and Staff not having been fully realised (1,16); to charges on account of the continuance of the appointment of the Military Attaché at Meshed for which no provision was made in the Budget (42); and to reorganisation of the Army Head-Quarters office (15): partly counterbalanced by a lapse (65) in the provision for Divisional Artillery Commanders owing to the scheme having been sanctioned from a later date than anticipated in the Budget; and by a reduction (12) in the tour grants of the General Officers Commanding the Northern and Southern Armies.

Grant 8.—Regimental Pay, Allowances and Charges (including Volunteers).
European Army—
Cavalry	46,05	45,65	46,38		There were more charges for pay of officers, due chiefly to the expected savings not being realized (51), for service or proficiency pay to British soldiers, owing to variations in rates (24) and for messing allowance due chiefly to fewer men having been sick in hospital.
Artillery	1,42,03	1,41,18	1,42,10		Increase was due to more charge for pay of officers due chiefly to over deduction for probable savings, to excess strength of warrant and non-commissioned officers and rank and file, to the grant of arrears of Sind local allowance to Indian ranks and followers and messing allowance and service and proficiency pay due to excess strength and a larger number of men in receipt of the allowance (1,14) partly covered by less charges on account of pay of Indian Non-commissioned Officers and men and of Indian artificers and followers and on contract allowances
Infantry	3,07,45	3,06,80	3,02,8[illegible]	Decrease was due chiefly to less charges (3,30) for service or proficiency pay to British soldiers; to a larger number of officers having been absent on leave out of India (42), and to the actual strength of British troops having been less than in 1910-11 (67).	Decrease was due to underestimate of probable savings, less charges for pay of Warrant and Non-commissioned Officers, rank and file (37) smaller expenditure for horse allowance and to less expenditure of service or proficiency pay to British soldiers (3,41), partly counterbalanced by more charges for messing allowance, (47) due to fewer men having been in hospital.
Engineers, Officers of the Indian Army and men of the British Army Reserve.	5,64	5,40	4,97		Smaller number of unemployed officers drew pay in India and fewer Unattached List Officers were appointed to the Indian Army.
Hill Sanitaria and Depôts.	2,44	2,13	2,15
Kit and Clothing allowances (European Ranks).	56,01	55,50	57,40	Same remarks as against Budget.	Due chiefly to payment at once of certain kit allowance (including arrears) to all British soldiers serving in India, to avoid complicated adjustments when each soldier leaves the country (2,26); partly counter balanced by less charges for quarterly clothing allowance owing to short strength.
Family allowances	4,89	4,87	5,04		Due chiefly to an increase in the number of soldiers' families in receipt of this allowance.
Other charges	14,11	14,26	14,77	Same remarks as against Budget.	The increase was chiefly under head 'Compensation in lieu of rations,' due to a larger number of units having elected to draw money allowance in lieu of part of grocery rations.

Nepal Escort	22	24	24
Cavalry	1,60,64	1,60,10	1,60,98		Increase was chiefly due to over-estimate of probable savings, to addition made for variations in army ranks of officers having proved insufficient and to more charges for good-service and good-conduct pay.
Artillery	11,20	12,29	12,25	Increase was due chiefly to the addition of four Lieutenant-Colonels for the command of Indian Artillery
Sappers and Miners and Indian Sub-Marine Mining Corps.	20,29	23,02	22,3[illegible]	Increase was chiefly due to the formation of Signal Companies	Decrease was due to a deficiency in the complement of officers in the newly formed Signal Companies, and to less working pay owing to the absence of the Railway Companies at Delhi in connection with the Durbar, partly counter-balanced by charges for good-service and good-conduct pay to Indians, entitled to higher rates.
Infantry	3,53,30	3,55 51	3,58,74	The increase was due chiefly to more charges for pay of officers (3,24), for exchange compensation allowance (22), and for command and staff allowances (73), owing to less number of officers having been on furlough out of India and to higher army rank of officers to more charges for good-service and good-conduct pay due to a larger number of men having drawn the allowance and at higher rates, and to savings realised in 1910-11 by the absence of troops in Somaliland (68), partly counterbalanced by savings owing to the despatch of troops to Hong Kong towards the end of 1911-12 (55)	Excess was mainly under pay of officers, Budget having overestimated probable savings and not sufficiently allowed for variations in army rank. Good-service and good-conduct pay at higher rates to a larger number of men also contributed to the excess.

Compensation in lieu of rations.	7,05	7,26	6,80		Decrease was due chiefly to lower rates, to the absence of the 26th Railway Company at Delhi in connection with the Durbar when charges for this allowance were not brought forward and to no charge for the 33rd Signal Company at Ahmednagar.

180. The increase (8,77) over the actuals of 1910-11 was mainly due to more charges for pay and allowances of regimental officers (3,69); to the formation of Signal Companies of Sappers and Miners (2,00); to more charges for reserve forces of the Indian Army, due to the gradual building up of the reserve towards the authorised 50,000 men (1,48); to the issue of kit allowance (overlap) to British soldiers serving in India (2,26); to more charges (1,02) for good-service and good-conduct pay to Indians, owing to a larger number of men having become entitled to the allowance by length of service; to the appointment of four additional Lieutenant-Colonels to the command of the Indian Artillery (1,01); and to savings realised in 1910-11 by the absence of troops in Somaliland (82): partly counterbalanced by less charges for service or proficiency pay to British soldiers (2,65); and by the despatch of troops to Hong Kong towards the end of 1911-12 (67)

181. The increase (3,66) in this Grant was due chiefly to more charges (2,96) for pay of regimental officers, owing mainly to the deduction made in the Budget for probable savings not having been fully realised and to the addition made for variations in army rank of officers having proved insufficient; to the issue of kit allowance (overlap), i. e, certain charges in connection with the kit allowance (including arrears) to all British soldier serving in India (2,26); to more charges for good-service and good-conduct pay to Indians owing to a larger number of men having become entitled to this allowance by length of service (1,56); to more charges for messing allowance to British soldiers, due partly to fewer men having been in hospital (85) and to larger expenditure on food supplies (93), partly counterbalanced by less charges for service or proficiency pay to British soldiers, owing mainly to the replacement of a number of men on the old rates of service pay by men coming under the new rules of proficiency pay (2,02); by less charges for reserve forces (95); by less charges for Signal Companies of Sappers and Miners, owing chiefly to their gradual formation (52); and by savings due to the absence of troops in Hong Kong on service under the Imperial Government (67)

Divisional Staff and Establishments.	80,43	81,28	79,82	Decrease due chiefly to less charges for pay of officers (41); to reduction in the complement of siege train bullocks, and to less payments of kit money and clothing allowances partly counterbalanced by charges incurred for the whole year on account of increased rates of pay to transport establishments instead of for a part of the year as in 1910-11.	Decrease due to less charges for pay, etc, of Commissioned officers, Commissioned officers with honorary rank, Subordinate Indian Establishments and Transport Indian Establishments and for kit money and clothing allowances partly counterbalanced by more charges for pay of clerical and menial establishment and temporary establishments owing to a large number of daily labourers having been employed in Supply Depôts.
Provisions for Europeans.	77,63	75,16	71,91	Due chiefly to advance purchases in 1910-11 to meet 1911-12 requirements and to cheaper rates of flour, meat and certain other articles.	Decrease mainly due to cheaper rates of flour and meat to smaller purchases for stock and to dieting fewer patients in hospitals.
Provisions for Natives	12,08	11,41	11,37	Decrease due chiefly to smaller purchase of foodstuff for stock and to less purchase of rum.
Supply and Maintenance of Fort and Mobilization Reserves.	4,05	1,16	1,43	Same remarks as under Budget	Decrease was due to the adjustment by deduction from expenditure under this head instead of crediting under Grant IV.—Receipts, of realisations by sale of condemned mobilisation stores and to less charges for fodder and tinned meat obtained from Australia
Feed of Animals	59,51	48,80	52,08	Due chiefly to advance purchases in 1910-11 in part of 1911-12 requirements; to more favourable rates of grain, to the abolition of mounted infantry schools at Ambala and Poona; to the reduction in the complement of siege train bullocks; and to reduced scale of grain ration.	Excess due to rise in rates of grain for feed of animals, to smaller supply of fodder from grass farms and to larger issues of grain rations.

Grant 4.—Supply and Transport (including farms)—contd.
Purchase of Animals	68	84	62
Supply and Maintenance of Peace stores.	15,93	14,85	15,64		Excess was due to purchases to a large extent of blankets and barrack-sheets and of gunny and bags for mobilisation purposes and also of other articles of dead stock partly counterbalanced by less charges for equipment, line-gear and clothing for troops.
Lighting Fuel and Petty supplies to Troops and Hospitals	9,73	10,01	8,35	Due chiefly to cheaper rates of firewood, and to charges on account of rail freight of coal having been compiled in Grant 17 in 1911-12	Decrease was due to substitution of coal for fire-wood at several stations and to transfer of charges for conveyance of coal by rail under Grant 17.
Hire of Transport and Miscellaneous.	4,92	4,53	4,76		More charges for hire of transport for conveyance of Supply and Transport Establishments, stores and provisions
General Management of Military Farms.	1,64	2,14	1,87		Decrease was due to less charges for salaries, travelling and out-station allowances
Dairy Farms	15,10	20,68	19,50	Due chiefly to more charges for purchase and feed of animals, temporary establishments and contingencies, in consequence of a large increase in herds, to the establishment of a Central Creamery at Ahmedabad; and to more Schedule expenditure for extension of dairies	Decrease was due to less charges for lands and buildings owing chiefly to the transfer of 60 to the Military works estimates from the special provision of 1,15 and for hire of cattle or purchase of dairy produce counterbalanced by more charges for purchase of live stock and new plants, etc., and for food of a larger number of animals.
Piggeries	1	..	..
Grass Farms	31,11	33,15	33,80	Increase was due chiefly to more charges for fodder to supplement farm produce and to larger purchases of plant and machinery	Excess was due to more purchases of live-stock, plant and machinery, fodder and to more charges for rent and improvements to lands and to larger purchase of cutting rights of standing crops and lease of certain lands partly counterbalanced by less charges for harvesting operations.
Deduct—Value of supplies to other Departments.	56	55	88		Increase was chiefly due to larger quantities of local stores supplied from stores to the settlement at Port Blair and to the supply of blankets to the Ordnance Officer, South China.
Special Services (Gilgit Agency).	1,37	1,60	1,21		Provisions for Indians and forage for Government animals having been purchased to a smaller extent The charges for hire of transport were also less.

182. The reduced charges for food supplies (14,88) more than accounted for the decrease (12,12) in the actuals of 1911-12 compared with those for 1910-11. Decreases also occurred under the following heads:—Pay of officers (41); hire of transport (35); fuel, owing mainly to charges for conveyance of coal by rail having been taken to Grant 17 (1,24); and transport Indian establishments, owing to reduction in the complement of siege train bullocks. On the other hand, increased expenditure was incurred in 1911-12 over 1910-11 under dairy farms (4,40) and grass farming operations (1,28); also under transport Indian establishments (1,18) for the grant to them of increased rates of pay which had effect from 1st October 1910.

46.—Army Charges—contd.

183. The decrease (6,55) in this Grant was chiefly due to smaller expenditure (1,18) for dairy farms owing to some extent to the transfer to the Military Works estimate of a portion (60) of the special provison (1,15) made in the Budget for establishment of new and extension of existing dairies; to the deduction made in the Budget for probable savings under Pay of officers having proved insufficient (59); to less charges for pay of transport Indian establishments (70), owing partly to reduction in the complement of siege train bullocks; to less charges for food supplies (1.23) owing mainly to smaller expenditure on tinned meat (53), and to the realisations from sale of condemned mobilisation stores having been adjusted by deduction from expenditure (1,89), counteracted partially by increased purchases of fodder to supplement the produce from grass farms (1,10); to smaller expenditure on fuel (1,68), owing to charges for conveyance of coal by rail having been taken to Grant 17, and to substitution of coal for firewood at several stations; to decreased expenditure on grass farming operations (15); and to less charges under Gilgit Agency (39): partly counterbalanced by more charges for supply and maintenance of peace stores (79).

Grant 5.—Veterinary Services.	4,83	4,78	4,94

184. The reorganisation of the Army Veterinary Service in India accounted for the increase over the actuals of 1910-11

185. The increase (16) in this Grant was chiefly due to the deduction made in the Budget for probable savings under Station Veterinary Hospitals not having been fully realised; also to the reorganisation which caused some increase in this Grant, which however was balanced by a decrease (about 7) in Grant 1—Quarter Master General's Branch.

Local supply of stores for Factories.	9,04	9,64	9,11		Decrease chiefly due to reduced demand for boots, shoes and other leather articles, to less purchase of embroidered articles, owing to utilisation of regimental and factory stocks counterbalanced by larger purchases of khaki drill.

Remount Depôts—Staff and Establishment.	5,08	5,'3	5,33		Savings on Budget due to larger savings than anticipated and to smaller number of cattle attendants having been entertained.
Horse, Mule and Donkey Breeding Operations.	5,91	5,87	5,73
Purchase of Animals	32,46	23,21	21,06	Decrease was due to heavy charges for purchase of remounts and mules in 1910-11, e.g., 300 horses were purchased in that year for replacing aged horses of British Cavalry regiments (2,02), and 1,000 mules were purchased from China to meet in part 1911-12 requirements (3,25).	Decrease due to less charge for purchase of remounts, owing chiefly to the lapse of special provision for replacement of aged horses, to less purchase of young stock and of ponies and to no purchases for the infantry school at Poona partly counterbalanced by more charges for advance purchase of 204 transport mules and 96 maxim gun mules originally proposed to be purchased in 1912-13.
Feed of Animals	7,55	7,92	7,35
Miscellaneous	7,56	7,95	7,67
Total	58,56	50,58	47,14

187. The heavy purchases of mules and horses in 1910-11 accounted for the large decrease (11,42) in the actuals of 1911-12 compared with those for 1910-11.

188. The decrease (3,44) in this Grant was chiefly due to less charges for purchase of animals (2,15), owing mainly to the lapse of the special provision (2,70) for replacement of aged horses of British Cavalry regiments, and to smaller purchases of young stock (remounts) (46), counterbalanced to some extent by the advance purchases of transport mules and maxim gun mules to meet 1912-13 requirements (97) ; to less feed charges (77) ; and to less cultivation expenses (50) : partly counterbalanced by the installation of a pumping plant at the Hapur Depôt.

189. The decrease (1,48) in the actuals of 1911-12 compared with those for 1910-11 was mainly due to less charges for salaries of Executive Medical officers (1,00) ; also to reduction in the strength of the Army Hospital Corps (28).

190. The decrease (1,69) in this Grant was chiefly due to the deduction made in the Budget for probable savings under head 2 on account of absence of officers on leave, variation in rank, etc, having proved insufficient (88) ; to reduction in the strength of the Army Hospital Corps (46) ; to saving in the provision for the formation of an Army Bearer Corps reserve (18) ; and to less charges under "Miscellaneous" (21)

193. The decrease (2,02) as compared with the actuals of 1910-11 was due chiefly to less charges for extra labour owing to reduced outturn in factories; to smaller purchase of camp equipage (1,75) and of stores for factories (95); and to larger recoveries on account of stores issued to other Departments (1,81): partly counterbalanced by increased requirements of arsenal stores (2,13) and by the transfer from Grant 3 to this Grant of charges on account of the Inspectors of Ordnance Machinery on the reorganisation of the Department in January 1911.

194. The decrease (1,39) in this Grant was chiefly due to less charges for extra labour in factories (2,76), owing to smaller outturn of ordinary work, also to less Schedule Expenditure (38), to larger savings under salaries than anticipated in the Budget; and to increased recoveries on account of stores supplied to other Departments (1,09); partly counterbalanced by larger purchases of local stores for factories (1,74), especially the Ammunition Factory, Dum Dum, in consequence of the advance purchase of lead pig, (55); by advance purchases (57) of camp equipage to meet part requirements of 1912-13; and by the grant of charge allowance to Warrant Officers of the Ordnance Department (38).

The increase was due to charges for ordinary training of troops (1,21) which were not provided in the Budget; to extra expenditure in connection with His Majesty's escorts at Bombay, Calcutta and Rajputana; to the Royal Bonus (21,98); counterbalanced by less charges under Delhi Coronation Durbar due to abandonment of manœuvres (21,32).
Special Services	15,50	21,56	29,58	Due chiefly to charges incurred in 1911-12 on account of the Abor Expeditionary Force (17,07) and the despatch of troops to Persia (3,54); partly counterbalanced by less charges (5,74) for Arms Traffic Operations owing mainly to recoveries of the value of coal issued from the Arms Traffic stock for ordinary requirements of the Marine Department, and on account of Tibet Mission (94) owing to expenditure incurred in 1910-11 for Gyantse reinforcements.	Abor Expedition (17,07) and despatch of troops to Persia (3,54) for which no provision was made in the Budget counterbalanced by Arms Traffic Operations (12,47) accounted for the increase over the Budget.

196. The increase (11,91) in this Grant was chiefly due to charges on account of the ordinary training of troops, for which no provision was made in the Budget (1,21); to more expenditure on account of the Indian contingent despatched to England on the occasion of His Majesty's Coronation at Home (28); to larger expenditure on account of the Royal Visit (1,85), including the Delhi Coronation Durbar and the grant of the Coronation bonus of half a month's pay; to extra charges on account of the Abor Expeditionary Force and Mishmi Mission (17,22) and on account of troops sent to Persia (3,54) and to the write-off of the net amount deficient in the military treasure chest at Deesa (62); partly counterbalanced by less charges for Tibet Mission (27); and by less charges on account of the Arms Traffic Operations (12,47).

Effective Services—
Payments to War Office in respect of British Forces serving in India.	985,1	934,0	014,0		The War Office claim for 1911-12 was 3,7 less than the Budget Estimate, which was based on the War Office Estimate for 1910-11. The Account also took into consideration a refund of 16,8 by the War Office in respect of the year 1910-11.
Furlough allowances and pay during voyage of British forces serving in India	185,1	150,0	136,0		Mainly due to the decrease in the payments for Furlough Allowances in respect of which the Budget Estimate was too high.
Consolidated clothing allowances of British Soldiers.	17,2	26,0	48,5		The increase was due mainly to larger advances to the War Office than was estimated, and to a payment which it was expected would have fallen in 1912-13.
Furlough allowances of officers of the Indian Service	372,8	370,0	363,2		Fewer officers were on leave during the year than was expected when the Budget Estimate was framed.
Indian Troop Service .	236,0	305,9	274,0		Due to a decrease in the number of voyages, and to a saving in the expenditure on fittings owing to the re-engagement of the same transports as in 1910-11.
Passage of officers and others not charged to Indian Troop Service.	6,1	7,0	5,2		The passages otherwise than in transports were fewer than were provided for in the Budget Estimate.
Purchase of horses .	3,6	2,8	2,5
Operations in the Persian Gulf.	...	..	19,8		No expenditure in England was anticipated on this account when the Budget Estimate was prepared
Miscellaneous .	123,1	37,5	34,3		There was a decrease of 3,1 in the payments on account of the Indian Medical Service, and there were variations under other sub-heads.
Stores for India	472,7	570,5	605,1		Mainly due to operations in the Persian Gulf for which no forecast was received from India.
Stores taken to India with Troops .	33,6	48,0	36,8		Decrease due to the claims for the Trooping Season of 1911-12 being in arrear, and to the value of some equipment being less than anticipated.

46.—Army Charges—concld

197. The actual expenditure in India in 1911-12 exceeded the actuals of the previous year by 42,27 Excluding the unadjusted expenditure of 8,08 added by the Comptroller General in the accounts of 1910-11, and of 1,53 deducted from the accounts of 1911-12, the actuals of 1911-12 showed an increase of 51,88 over those of 1910-11. This was principally due to 49,27 more incurred in 1911-12 on account of the Royal Visit (including the Delhi Durbar and the bonus of half a month's pay), and to 2,73 on account of the Indian Contingent despatched to England for the King's Coronation. But for these Coronation charges, the accounts of the two years would have been practically identical. There were, however, important variations under other heads which are noticed below.

198. The Abor Expeditionary Force and Mishmi Mission involved a fresh outlay of [illegible]. Expenditure on military dairies rose by 4,40 owing to increased activities and to the [illegible]ment of a central creamery at Ahmedabad; but this increase, it may be mentioned, was partly covered by enhanced receipts (1,10) from the sale of dairy produce. The gradual formation of Signal Companies of Sappers and Miners caused an excess of 2,06. A further increase of [illegible],26 resulted from the payment at once of certain charges in connection with the kit allowance (including arrears) to British soldiers in India Additional expenditure was also incurred in consequence of the creation of the appointments of four Lieutenant-Colonels of Royal Garrison Artillery to command the Indian Artillery, of an Inspector of Royal Horse and Field Artillery, and of Divisional Artillery Commanders (1,25) The rail charges were high in 1911-12, the increase over the previous year being 5,59 occasioned by arrear charges and more extensive relief movements On the other hand, food charges exhibited a decrease (13,85); so also did the purchase of horses and mules, owing to a larger outlay (11,40) in the previous year The abolition of the mounted infantry schools at Ambala and Poona resulted in a saving (84). Charges on account of the ordinary training of troops fell by 1,92 in consequence of concentration of troops at Delhi in connection with the Delhi Coronation Durbar

199. The increase in India of 17,35 in the actuals, as compared with the Budget, was due mainly to the fresh and unforeseen outlay of 17,22 in connection with the Abor Expeditionary Force (including the Mishmi Mission) which was undertaken after the commencement of the year Excluding this special item, the actuals approximate very closely to the Budget There were, however, a number of other important variations which are noted below

200 The grant of a bonus, aggregating 23,48, of half a month's pay in connection with the Delhi Coronation Durbar was almost entirely covered by Budget savings (including 1,50 provided under "unallotted Reserve") to the extent of 22,82 by the curtailment of the Durbar programme and the abandonment of the intended manœuvres The despatch of the 39th Central India Horse to Persia cost India 3,51 The food charges exceeded the Budget provision by 8,12 in consequence mainly of a rise in prices An excess of 2,26 resulted from the decision to meet at once certain charges for kit allowance (including arrears) to British soldiers in India, to avoid complicated adjustments as each man eventually leaves the country The abandonment of the intended manœuvres at the Delhi Durbar also made it necessary to make a special allotment for the ordinary training of troops, for which no provision had been made in the Budget, and additional grants were also made for hutting for urgent sanitary works in cantonments, and for further purchases of mules On the other hand, the Indian Budget included the whole provision (20,00) required both at Home and in India, for the Arms Traffic Operations, as the Secretary of State had not provided for this service in his own estimates this resulted in 12,17 lapsing on the Indian side as a set-off to the expenditure at Home which amounted to 10,56.

201. The Budget provided 14,50 roundly for special (Schedule) expenditure and the actuals amounted to about 9,00 The decrease of 5,50 was mainly due to the lapse of the provision (2,90) for replacement of aged horses in British Cavalry regiments, the proposal having [illegible]

203. The excess under Army Clothing Department, etc., was due chiefly to funds transferred to other Grants by reappropriation having proved too large; that under Medical Stores, to less recoveries from Civil institutions in consequence of reduced demands, that under Compensation for dearness of food and forage, to an unexpected further rise in prices at the end of the year; and that under Conveyance by Rail to increased consignments of Supply and Transport stores by rail. The excesses under other heads are trifling and do not call for any special remarks.

204. In the net, additional grants to the extent of 23,01 were sanctioned under the head "46—Army" by reappropriation from other Military heads. The net Army grant therefore amounted to 21,94,56 against an actual expenditure of 21,88,90. The excesses indicated above were thus covered by savings under other heads.

Marine Survey Department.	79	82	92	The increase was due chiefly to a smaller number of officers having proceeded on leave in 1911-12.	The increase was due chiefly to probable savings anticipated in the Budget on account of absence of officers on leave not having been fully realised.
Dockyards	7,84	8,13	9,81	The increase occurred mainly under Wages of Artificers and Labourers (2,09) and was due to heavy repairs and alterations to vessels and the construction of a launch for His Excellency the Viceroy.	The increase occurred mainly under Wages of Artificers and Labourers (1,61) and was due to heavy repairs to Royal Indian Marine vessels and larger expenditure on Schedule Measures due to the construction of a launch for His Excellency the Viceroy.
Salaries and Allowances and Victualling of officers and men afloat.	11,52	11,98	11,37		Decrease was chiefly due to absence of officers on leave out of India, to the employment of artificers in place of Assistant Engineers, less outfit allowance and to the adjustment for issues of water being made at actual rates instead of book rates.
Marine Stores and Coal for building and repairs of ships.	10,93	11,39	9,03	Decrease was due generally to the causes enumerated under Budget.	The decrease of 2,36 was due chiefly to utilization of stock (2,29), less expenditure on conversion work orders (31), payments for water having been made at lower rates (23), condemnation of Elphinstone during the year (20) and less Schedule Expenditure on account of dummy hoppers at Bombay (15), counterbalanced by larger expenditure on repairs to Royal Indian Marine vessels (57) and on the construction of a launch for His Excellency the Viceroy (25).
Other charges	2,37	2,26	4,25	The increase was chiefly due to the change of adjustment of value of imported coal whereby it is credited to Arms Traffic Operations instead of being deducted from this head as formerly.	Increase was nominal and was due to the cause shown under Actuals.

The account included 16 for Schedule Measure expenditure.

205. The increase both as regards the actualsof 1910-11, (1,98) and Budget (54), was the result of the value of imported coal issued to Royal Navy subsidised vessels having been adjusted to the credit of Arms Traffic Operations instead of by deduction from Miscellaneous charges under this head As compared with the actuals of 1910-11, an increase under Dockyards (1,97), due to heavy repairs to vessels and the construction of a launch for the Viceroy, was met by a decrease under Marine Stores and Coal (1,90) due chiefly to the utilization of stock which was not replenished. The decrease under Miscellaneous included under Other Charges (1,73) was due to the adjustment already referred to.

206. Similar reasons accounted for the decrease as compared with the Budget under Marine Stores and Coal (2,36) and the increase under Other Charges (2,00) and Dockyard, (1,38). There was also a decrease under Salaries and Allowances (61) due chiefly to the absence of officers on leave and the adjustment of water-supplies at actual rates instead of book rates.

India (General)—
Ordinary demands	89,35	87,93	87,13	The decrease was due to completion in 1910-11 of buildings for mule cadres at Cawnpore, Amballa and Lucknow. The expenditure on Renewals, Minor Works and Special Repairs was also especially heavy in 1910-11 as works held over from previous years were executed in 1910-11. The increase in 1911-12 in the credit for Establishments and Tools and Plant, and the extraordinary expenditure on purchase of Steam Road Rollers for several stations in 1910-11 also account to a certain extent for the decrease.	Compared with the Budget the decrease was due to transfers from the Indian to the English grant and consequent short outlay in India. The gross expenditure (in India and in England) exceeded the Budget Estimate by 21 only which was trifling and called for no remarks.
Special demands	30,32	21,05	33,77	Increase was due to cause shown in column for Budget	The increase over Budget was chiefly due to the additional expenditure during the year incurred on Reconstruction of Indian Infantry Lines damaged by heavy rains at Nowshera and Rawalpindi, on electric installation in Delhi Fort, and to heavy expenditure incurred in providing accommodation for a Gurkha Battalion at Darjeeling (Takdah). Expenditure on improvements of lines for Indian Troops and outlay on Volunteer and Dairy Farm buildings also partly accounted for this excess.

207. An excess of 9,46 over the net grant requires the sanction of the Government of India. A reappropriation of 8,45 from this head was sanctioned towards the close of the year by the Government of India, Finance Department (Military Finance). The expectation of savings on which this reappropriation must have been based has proved to be incorrect. It is possible however that the explanation tendered by the Finance Department (Military Finance) which is referred to under 47A.—Special Defences applies to this head also in which case the excess would 1,01 only. The matter requires investigation. The want of a grant for part of the remainder of the excess, viz, 38 on account of the electric installation at Delhi Fort was brought to the notice of the Director General in January 1912 who stated that an additional allotment had been applied for but no additional funds were provided by the Government of India.

209. 210. Under Head 48.—State Railways, there was a net lapse of 1,68,26 or £1,121,8 as compared with the Budget which was made up of decreases aggregating 2,56,07 and increases of 87,81. The principal lapses occurred on the Allahabad-Rae Bareli-Cawnpore Railway (10,85), Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway (79,64), East Indian Railway (47,19), Great Indian Peninsula Railway (10,07), Itarsi-Nagpur Railway (16,76), North-Western Railway (35,37), Singhjani-Fulchari Railway (5,25), and South Indian Railway (14,84), while the more important increases were Cawnpore-Banda Railway (5,49), Eastern Bengal Railway (8,84), Jullander-Hoshiarpur Railway (7,64), Lower Ganges Bridge (34,59) and Stores (7,38). Details of the expenditure and the causes of the variations are given below:—

Allahabad-Rao Bareli-Cawnpore Ry.	58,30	44,75	33,[illegible]0	The lapse on the Budget was due chiefly to the following causes:— Rs Non-receipt of English materials . 5,40 Difference between estimated and contract rates for S G Engines purchased in England 80 Non-supply of fencing stone posts by Contractors 2,17 Short expenditure on stations and buildings 2,22
Akbarpur-Tanda Railway.	37	4,17	2,85	Certain buildings at Tanda were commenced later in the year than was originally contemplated, resulting in failure to work up to the Budget provision by 23 A further saving of 98 was caused by Permanent-way materials having been diverted for use on the Delhi Durbar Railway
Bavana-Agra . .	70	14,00	17,73	As funds became available additional grants were sanctioned by the Railway Board to push on Construction, which covered the increased expenditure As compared with the Budget less expenditure was incurred on Bridge-work (1,54) and Permanent Way (2,20) due to materials not having been received in time for issue to works which was also the cause of an increase of 7,95 in the outstandings under Suspense
Broach-Jambusar .	.	5,00	2,91	The lapse was due to stores not having been received in time from England
Cawnpore-Banda with Branch from Sumerpur to Re'a'al	49	14,00	19,19	The Railway Board in the course of the year allotted an additional grant of 10,00 to meet the cost of permanent way materials to be obtained from Home for the purpose of laying rails as far as the Jumna Bridge, to enable work thereon to be proceeded with expeditiously The late receipt of these materials resulted in a lapse of 3,00 and the failure of the Civil Department to raise debits (1,10) for land acquired during the year contributed further to the lapse on the enhanced grant of 21,00.
Dhakia-Sambhal Railway.	32	4,00	5,34	Owing to the unavoidable carrying forward of certain works from 1910-11, due to scarcity of labour, the allotment was raised subsequently by the Railway Board to 5,92 The saving on this figure was due chiefly to estimated payments for land (24) not having been made and short expenditure on Bridge (11) and station building works (16)
Itarsi-Nagpur and Branch to Pench Valley Coal Fields	48,52	60,00	13,21	The Budget contemplated work on both the sections Nagpur to Pandhurna and Jamai to Parassia. But sanction to the construction of the former was not accorded till late and a start could not be made until very late in the year owing to delay in obtaining possession of land, while in the case of the latter, sanction was not accorded till 1912-13 This resulted in the lapse on the Budget.
Jakhal Hissar . .	95	14,00	17,5[illegible]	The increase of 3,5[illegible] over the Budget was the net result of the following variations, and was covered by an additional allotment during the year:— On the provision for outlay on works there was a lapse of 6,98, which occurred chiefly under Ballast and Permanent Way (1,68) and stations and buildings (1,82) due to materials not having been received in time to be used on works. No provision was made in the Budget for fluctuations under Suspense, which resulted in an increase of 10,54 owing to the late receipt of stores for issue to works.

Khagaria-Roserah	...	10,00	5,17	Commencement of work was delayed as, owing to staff not being available, it was not found possible to open a division for the construction of the Extension as early as was originally intended, hence the lapse
Lower Ganges Bridge	70,71	55,00	89,59	The strike in England towards the end of the year was responsible for a lapse of 5,10 on stores ordered from England The Budget was, however, inadequate to meet the requirements of the Bridge, and as funds became available during the course of the year, the Railway Board raised the allotment to 89,22, over which the actual expenditure has resulted in a comparatively small excess. The extra grant was required for work on the approaches, sinking, land, and the purchase of Plant
Rajabhatkhawa-Dalsingpara	...	...	3,08	The construction of this line was not contemplated when the Budget was prepared But an allotment of Rs 3,00 was made in October and work commenced in November 1911 The excess over the allotment was trifling
Rangyia-Tangla	5,16	8,00	3,12	Owing to late rains, there was delay in laying the service line, and consequently materials for bridge work (2,87) could not be trained in time. There was also difficulty in obtaining labour in the early part of the year and the progress in earthwork (57) Ballast and Permanent Way (35) and Stations and Buildings (62) was slow For these reasons the Budget could not be worked up to
Samastipur-Roserah Extension	91	3,57	5,63	It was not anticipated when the Budget was framed that the whole of the Permanent Way materials would have been supplied during the year, which accounts for the increased expenditure. An additional grant was sanctioned by the Railway Board in the course of the year covering the increased expenditure
Seraikala-Havelian	78	15,00	13,19	The principal variations as compared with the Budget were as under - There was a lapse of 5,02 under Ballast and Permanent Way due to second hand materials released from the North-Western Railway not having been supplied as quickly as anticipated. Against this lapse there was an increase of 3,11 under Suspense, owing to short issues of stores to Works
Singhjani-Fulchari	88	10,00	4,75	The acquisition of land was rather slow, and this delay was responsible for a lapse not only under the head Land (1,00) but also under Formation (89), as earthwork could not be started until land was handed over by the Civil Authorities The failure of the open line to supply 62 lbs. rails and sleepers in time resulted in a further lapse of 3,32.
Southern Shan States	24,48	25,00	27,64	During the year the Railway Board authorised the commencement of work on the second Division, and to meet the increased outlay principally under earthwork raised the allotment to 27,97. An excess of 7,91, however, occurred over the provision made in the Budget for outlay in India, but this was counterbalanced by savings (5,27) under England due to indents sent forward not having been complied with during the year.

Assam Bengal, Part II.	24,76	31,54	26,78	The lapse of 4,76 on the Budget was the net result of the following variations.— (1) On Open line works . . . —9,47 (2) On Extensions . . . +4,71 Net . —4,76 The lapse on the former was caused chiefly by the non-receipt of English materials, which resulted in a lapse of 5,29 on Rolling Stock works, and by the issue of permanent way materials amounting to 3,14 to Bhairab-Tangi Branch not provided for in the Budget, as when framing the estimate it was anticipated that those issues would be taken to account in 1910-11. The excess on the Extensions occurred on (1) the Kalawra-Kooseara Section (1,23) due to works having been pushed on with a view to the earlier opening of the section for traffic and (2) the Bhairab Bazar-Tangi Branch (3,48), on which also work was pushed on vigorously, additional grant being sanctioned by the Railway Board.
Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway	67,74	1,33,30	53,66	The following were the principal causes of the lapse :— (a) It was subsequently decided not to proceed with the construction of the following works for the time being :— (1) Fencing over bridges at Ahmedabad and Rohtak Road, Delhi, and the line between Ajanti and Nimarkheri and providing gate lodges and gates, 2,84. (2) Staff quarters, etc, at Baroda, Bandra, Bulsar, and Surat, Extension of high level platforms at 24 stations, water-supply at Surat and Amroli, additions and alterations at Kosamba and Dohad 8,31 (b) The provision for the following was over-estimated :— (1) Land for additional works at Bandra and Ahmedabad 2,55.

Burma Railway Extensions	1,77	2,86	1,41	Owing to necessary materials not having arrived from England in time, lapses occurred in the provision for Locomotive Engines (83) and Fencing (33) The failure of a firm of ballast contractors to provide ballast added another 26 to the lapse on the Budget.
Coonor Ootacamund	53	2,00	1,34	Against the provision of 1,30 for Engineering works, outlay to the extent of 9 only was incurred, owing to certain works at Coonoor not having been executed, as the estimates for the same were not sanctioned, and to the expenditure on certain works being less than was anticipated The lapse of 1,21 was, however, utilised to the extent of 60 on Rolling Stock.
Eastern Bengal Railway.	80,41	84,66	93,50	Progress in the construction of Rolling Stock works was retarded for want of accommodation in the shops, and the late arrival or non-arrival, in some instances, of English stores during the year These causes resulted in a lapse of 16,31 On the other hand Engineering works were pushed on for which additional grants were sanctioned by the Railway Board in the course of the year. These works contributed 15,11 towards the excess over the Budget and an increase under Suspense added another 10,05.
East Indian Railway	82,20	1,56,57	1,09,38	The lapses that occurred on the Main line and Extensions were as under :— Main line . . . . . . 35,70 Extensions 11,49

E. I. Railway—contd.	...	...	...	As regards the main line, a reduction of 10,16 was effected under Suspense due to the result of special efforts in connection with the reduction of stores balances ; and the balance of the lapse was due to the failure of contractors at Home to supply materials to the full extent indented for, and to the cost of Rolling Stock materials purchased and Rolling Stock constructed on Capital account having been transferred to Revenue in order to give renewals preference to additions, sufficient Rolling Stock for both not being available. The savings on extensions occurred chiefly on the Barharwa Azimganj-Katwa Extension (13,01) as at the time of the Budget Estimate it was anticipated that the full equipment of permanent-way would be supplied which was not practicable. Against these savings an excess of 3,14 occurred on the Hooghly-Katwa Extension due to the provision in the Budget having been under-estimated
Gairon'a-Chandpur Railway.	5,89	38	1,20	An additional grant of 87, was allotted by the Railway Board during the course of the year as soon as funds became available to push on construction, raising the total grant to 1,25, on which the lapse was small and called for no special remarks.
Great Indian Peninsula, including Agra Delhi Chord, Bhopal and Baran-Kotah Railways.	5,44,23	1,38,92	1,32,73	Owing to English materials not having arrived till after the 31st March 1912, the provision for the following works could not be spent :— Addition and Renewals of Rolling Stock 10,50 Additional Machinery for Extension to Locomotive Shops, Jhansi . . 4,81 Power Plant and Machinery for new Matunga Carriage Shops . . 4,35 Savings (3,49) also occurred on the Bombay Harbour Branch Extension, due chiefly to the decision to complete and open only the Main line from Kurla to Tank Bunder for traffic, and to work on the Tank Bunder interchange yard having been held in abeyance pending the settlement of certain questions with the Bombay Port Trust, as well as to the construction of the Duncan Causeway Overbridge having been deferred pending consideration of an alternative proposal. Against these savings an excess of 3 59 occurred on the Agra Delhi Chord Railway, due chiefly to works undertaken to meet increased traffic demands on account of the Coronation Durbar, not contemplated at the time of the Budget, while on the Main line excesses occurred on the following works, which were pushed forward to meet urgent demands for increased facilities :— Remodelling the yard at Kalyan . . 6,35 Doubling the line between Shegaon and Nagpur . . . . 4,11 New Carriage and Wagon Shops, Matunga 3,91

North-Western Railway.	1,99,07	2,56,86	2,21,49	The lapse of 35,37 occurred on Rolling Stock (47,78) and other works (20,68) owing chiefly to a large number of works entered in the Budget for which plans and estimates were not ready, to over-estimating and to English materials indented for not having been received during the year owing to the labour strikes in England. These lapses were counterbalanced to a certain extent by an increase of 19,56 under Suspense against a reduction of 13,50 estimated for. The defects indicated are receiving the attention of the Railway Board.
Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway.	48,44	25,35	27,90	The accounts for 1910-11 included outlay on the Balamau-Sitapur (5,98) and Rosa-Sitapur (13,15). Extensions, which have since been opened and merged into the Main line. The expenditure on the Main line in the previous year amounted to 29,31). English materials to the extent of 4,05 for Rolling Stock works were not received during the year involving a further saving in Indian outlay. This lapse on the Budget, however, was counterbalanced by additional Engineering works amounting to 2,27, having been undertaken as soon as funds became available, and to an increase of 5,65 under Suspense, due to stores not having been issued to the extent anticipated.
Shorkot Road Chichoki	26,98	7,57	5,12	The lapse was chiefly due to less expenditure of 6,40 on ballast and permanent way which was due to difficulty in obtaining ballast trucks from the Traffic Department. This decrease was counterbalanced to a certain extent by the reduction made under Suspense being 4,15 less than anticipated.
South Indian Railway	28,11	48,00	33,16	The non-arrival of English stores and the provision for country stores not having been fully utilised resulted in a lapse of 12,83 on the Budget. Further lapses occurred owing to the issues and sales of stores being greater by 1,11 than provided for in the Budget and by the postponement of certain works (89) entered in the Budget.
Tirhoot Railway and Extensions.	3,16	10,60	6,58	The principal causes which contributed to the lapse on the Budget, besides savings on numerous small works, were the abandonment owing to floods of the construction of the Partabganj-Bhimnagar Extension (51), slower progress than was anticipated of work on the new bridge No. 5B, Sagauli-Raxaul Branch (41), non-receipt of sanction to certain works (63) excessive provision in the case of others (1,23) and a reduction under Suspense (98).
Total of Open lines	11,13,34	9,03,16	7,16,25
Other Railways	—5,42	82	—66	The lapse was due to (1) a credit of 13 afforded on account of certain lands relinquished by the Tinnevelly-Quilon Railway (British Section), (2) credit of 21 on account of write-back of discount on debentures charged to Capital account of Tinnevelly-Quilon Railway (Native State Section) in 1910-11, and (3) credit to Government of the sale-proceeds of the South Indian Railway share of the obsolete and unserviceable stores of the old Madras Railway, rejected by the South Indian Railway.

211. As explained in former reports, these are all net sums representing the excess of deposits with Government on account of capital raised by the Companies over withdrawals, or vice versa. The Indian figures represent the difference between the advances taken by the Companies and the credits received chiefly on account of stores used on Revenue account The English figures represent the difference between the Capital deposited by Companies with the Secretary of State and the withdrawals for expenditure on stores, establishment charges, etc These figures are necessarily liable to great fluctuations but the following general explanations are furnished :—

212 In England under Assisted Companies the actual capital receipts from and payments on Capital Account to Railway Companies amounted to Capital of Indian Railway Companies—concld.

£2,0 and £713,9, respectively, against the Budget provisions of £1,672,0 and £2,593,3 the differences being due chiefly to debentures aggregating £1,670,0 not having been discharged and replaced by fresh Capital as anticipated. Rohilkund and Kumaon Railway debentures amounting to £40,0 were discharged but were not replaced. Short outlay also occurred in establishment charges and stores etc, chiefly on account of failure of contractors to supply stores in consequence of labour strikes.

213 The variations in Indian figures compared with the Budget estimate are explained below :—

Assam-Bengal Railway.—The short credit of £34,9 was due to less expenditure in England on account of stores, establishment charges, etc.

Bengal-Nagpur Railway.—Under Open lines there was a lapse of £13,8 while on lines under construction the lapse amounted to £191,0 The former was due to the non-receipt of English materials in time, old underframes of Passenger stock not being available for the erection of 10 Horse Boxes and to credit received for 75 wagons sold to the Sara Bridge works. The latter was made up to of lapses on the following lines :—

Gondia-Chanda.—£221,9 due to orginal requirements having been overestimated and delay in settling Terminus at Chanda.

Parvatipur-Singapur—£57,3—Owing to wants of funds, the Railway Board ordered the stoppage of work.

Nagpur-Chindwara (£44,6) and Bobbili-Salur (27,6) —Owing to realignments, construction work was delayed.

Mahuda Jamoonia (Ramgarh Bokharo) £32,9—construction work was sanctioned on first 12 miles only. The lapse was also due to delay in land acquisition operations.

Burma Railways—The excess of £8,9 was due £5,7 to engines for the Burma Railway Extensions not having been received in time to permit of charges being raised against the Extensions during the year, £1,4 to the purchase of large amount of timber for stock, advantage being taken of low prices, £9,5 to issues and sales of stores not having been made to the extent anticipated. Against these excesses there was a lapse of £16,6 on Rolling Stock due to the non-receipt of materials from England. Minor savings and excesses account for the difference (£8,9) between the Accounts and Budget

Lucknow-Bareilly Railway.—The short credit of £6,2 was due to underestimation of the anticipated expenditure on the Dudwa Branch Conversion

Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway.—The increased credit of £60,1 was due to a reduction of £119,2 under Suspense against an increase of £17,3 provided for in the Budget This reduction was counterbalanced to a certain extent by increased expenditure on works due to certain works not having been done in the previous year owing to late receipt of materials These had consequently to be carried out during 1911-12

214 The Branch Lines Companies deposit Capital in Government Teasuries and draw against these deposits for expenditure on construction according to requirements. During the year £57,5 were deposited and £53,5 withdrawn as against £36,6 and £37,2 provided in the Budget Estimate, the differences being due chiefly to deposits and withdrawals amounting to £21,6 in respect of the Murtajapur-Ellichpur Railway, the construction of which was sanctioned during the year.

Central Provinces	1,39	2,00	3,40	The increase was due to the commencement of the construction of the Waingange Canal and of the survey of the Mahanuddy Canal.	The increase was due to the causes enumerated under actuals. Provision was not made for these projects in the Budget, an additional allotment being sanctioned by the Government of India after the commencement of the year.
Burma	12,03	12,38	20,01	The increase over the actuals of 1910-11 was due to the expenditure on the Twante Canal dredger partly counterbalanced by smaller outlay in other Canals owing to the difficulty in obtaining labour.	Apart from the special expenditure of 12,97 on the Twante Canal which was not provided for, the decrease below the budget was due to smaller outlay on distributaries in the Shwebo, Yeu and Mon canals, and on earthwork in the Yeu and Mon canals, to smaller outlay under establishment in the Shwebo and Mon canals and to the incomplete utilization of the provision made for the acquisition of land in the Yeu canal.
United Provinces	10,02	8,91	10,05		The increase was attributed to expenditure for a bund at Belwala Head works and to higher outlay on the Hathras branch, Agra and Dun-canals.
Punjab	1,18,76	1,25,04	1,47,45	The increase was due partly to a cheap labour market, partly to new works having been sanctioned during year in the Lower Chenab and Upper Jhelum Canals and partly to the work on the Head works of the Lower Bari Doab Canal having been in full swing, counterbalanced by decreases due (1) to abandonment of certain projects in the Upper Chenab Canal for want of sanction to estimates, (2) to stoppage of work in the Lower Chenab Canal, and 3) in the Upper Chenab canal the figures for which for year 1910-11 included expenditure on important works.	The increase was due partly to new works having been sanctioned during the year in the Lower Chenab and Upper Jhelum Canals and partly to the works on the Head-works of the Lower Bari Doab Canal having been in full swing, counterbalanced partly by a decrease due to abandonment of certain projects in the Upper Chenab Canal for want of sanction of estimates and partly to stoppage of work in the Lower Jhelum Canal.
North-West Frontier	20,71	26,00	30,24	Same remarks as under Budget.	The increase was due to progress of works on the Upper Swat River Canal having been accelerated and to heavy expenditure on Tools and Plant and a large balance under Suspense.
Madras	7,01	6,00	4,03	The decrease was due chiefly to want by sanctions to Estimates and Revised Estimates and to transfers and writes-back	Decrease below Budget was due mainly to want of sanctioned estimates, late receipt of sanction to revised estimates, heavy rains, large credits on account of refund of land compensation charges in the Kistna Delta System and transfer of certain portable engines and plant in the Divi Pumping Project and writes-back of outlay on certain works from Capital to Revenue in the Periyar System.
Bombay	1,45	3,00	2,15	The write-back in the accounts of 1910-11 of the Capital cost of the old Head Regulator from the Capital to the Revenue Account of the Begari Canal owing to the construction of a new one in its place was chiefly responsible for the increase during the year 1911-12.	The decrease was due to surrenders of grants for the Jamrao and Nasrat Canals owing to recoveries from the colonists and on the Begari and Mahiwah due chiefly to non-payment of land compensation owing to delay in settling the claims.

215 The Budget provided provincial allotments for Indian expenditure amounting to 1,89,88 and anticipated a saving of 10,00 on this figure. In the result the net Budget was exceeded by 78,05 The savings actually realized in the provinces were in India (6,50) where the provision was not utilized, in Madras (1,97) due to want or late receipt of sanctions to estimates, heavy rains and to transfers and writes-back and in Bombay (85). Increases occurred in the Punjab (22,41) due to new works having been sanctioned during the year on the Lower Chenab and Upper Jhelum Canals counterbalanced by decreases in the Upper Chenab Canal due to the abandonment of certain works for want of sanctioned estimates and in the Lower Jhelum Canal on account of stoppage of work in the Shahpur Branch ; in Burma (7,63) due to expenditure on the Twinte Canal (12,97) not provided for in the Budget counterbalanced by savings due chiefly to difficulty in procuring labour for the Yeu, Mon and Shwebo Canals and to smaller charges on earth work and establishments and in the North West Frontier Province (4,24) due to progress of work on the Upper Swat River Canal having been accelerated, to heavy expenditure in tools and plant and a large Suspense Balance

216 The increase as compared with the previous actuals was 45,90 and occurred chiefly in the Punjab (28,69), the North West Frontier Province (9,53) and Burma (7,98) and was due to the causes already described

DEBT HEADS.

218. Permanent Debt.—The net result of the transactions under this head was + £1,828,2 as compared with an estimate of + £2,088,9. The difference was due to the payments in full during 1910-11 in respect of the Balance of Loan of £3,500,0 issued by the India Office in March 1911, having been more than the Estimate and the balance due in the year under report being consequently less, partly counterbalanced by less conversion of 3 per cent rupee loan into 3½ per cent loan in India. SECTION O.

219. Temporary Debt.—The net estimate of — £500,0 was realized in the Accounts

220 Unfunded Debt.—The net result was + £1,815,2 against an estimate of + £1 123,3, the variation being due to the growth of the Savings Bank transactions which form the bulk of the transactions under this head SECTION P

221 Deposits and Advances.—The net result of the transactions under this head was + £2,209,5 against an estimate of — £1,339,5 The difference occurred chiefly in India under the Provincial balances which are merely per contra entries against provisions in the revenue account. The receipts under Deposits of District Funds, Departmental and Judicial Deposits, Advances, and Suspense Accounts were also under-estimated in the Budget In England, on the other land, the advance of £50,0 made to the Imperial Bank of Persia for purposes of the Persian Government was not foreseen in the Budget and there were more investments in British and Colonial Government securities for Gold Standard Reserve SECTION Q.

The lump provision of 40,00 was only partially utilized for further advances under this head and recoveries include adjustments made on account of remission of loans granted as a Darbar concession to certain Native States in Kathiawar and Gujarat and on account of provincialization of the recoverable balances of principal of the debts due by the States for which no provision was made in the Estimate in Bombay

FINANCE DEPARTMENT

Speech of the Honourable Finance Member

INTRODUCING THE BUDGET FOR 1913-14.

I have to lay before the Council the Budget for 1913-14 in its final form. The Financial Statement which I presented on the 1st of March has since then been subjected to criticism and discussion, and as the result I think I am entitled to claim that our financial arrangements have the approval of the great majority of Hon'ble Members. We have made a further examination of the figures in the light of the latest information available and the final form which they take is shown in the statements which are in the hands of Hon'ble Members, and in the explanatory memorandum which also has been revised and brought up to date.

2. The changes in the figures which I have to describe on a comparison with those entered in the Financial Statement are few and of no great importance, and I need engage but little of the time of the Council in describing them.

3. In the year which is about to close our Imperial surplus is now likely to be £31,800 higher. In the March sale we have obtained a very high price for uncertified opium and the estimate of opium receipts is increased accordingly by £51,800. Land revenue has increased by £32,000 in consequence of very high collections in Burma, and Customs also advance. On the other hand, there has been a distinct falling off in recent weeks in railway earnings chiefly on the North-Western Railway and we have had to reduce our estimate under this head by £100,000. The provincial account shows a betterment of £54,600, nearly the whole of which has accrued under land revenue with less important alterations which practically cancel each other under other heads.

4. As regards the Budget of next year I have only to notice that the Imperial surplus has been increased by a matter of £15,100, chiefly in consequence of certain corrections proposed in the budget estimates of heads of revenue, such as excise, which are divided with Local Governments. The provincial account on the other hand is £73,400 worse than in the Financial Statement; the Local Governments of Bombay and Burma having increased their provision for expenditure on Civil Works by 11 lakhs

5 In the matter of Ways and Means, the most important feature I have to notice is the drop which has recently taken place in Council Bills, the amount offered for sale having fallen from 80 lakhs on the 5th of March to 60 lakhs on the 12th of March and again to 50 lakhs on the 19th. The Secretary of State has in consequence reduced his estimate of drawings to £25,600,000 which is £1,400,000 less than the estimate given in the Financial Statement. In view of this decline in the drawings and of the large proportion which is likely to be drawn in telegraphic transfers instead of bills, we have reduced the estimate of probable outstandings at the end of the year by £502,000 These outstandings represent bills which have been drawn and for which we have received the money in London, and which have not been cashed by us in India. It will be obvious, therefore, that a reduction in outstandings means a deterioration of the same extent in our total balance On the other hand, there is the improvement I have already described in our revenue account which contributes an additional £86,000 to our balances; there are lapses in capital expenditure of £251,000, and an improvement under Deposits and remittances of £122,000 On the whole therefore our closing balance for the current year is likely to be only £43,000 less than the figure which I gave in the Financial Statement I may mention that for next year the Secretary of State has increased his estimate of drawings by £450,000, and there will be in addition a remittance Home of the same amount in light weight sovereigns. These transactions do not affect our balance as a whole; but as I have just said the opening balance will be £43,000 less, there is a deterioration in the revenue account of £58,000 and the estimate of net credits from remittances has been reduced by £131,000, so that the final figures show a closing balance for 1913-14, £232,000 less than in the Financial Statement There are no other points which it is necessary for me to bring to notice of Hon'ble Members, and I need only add before sitting down that while there will be no discussion on the Budget to-day, it will be open to them next Monday to offer any observations on it which they think proper, without moving Resolutions or dividing the Council.

MEMORANDUM EXPLAINING THE DETAILS OF THE ESTIMATES.

Introductory.

1. In this memorandum the variations between the Budget and the Revised estimates of the current year, and between the latter and the Budget estimates of next year, are explained in detail for the major heads of account. Under most of the heads details by provinces have been given, and it may be explained that the figures shown against "India General" represent the transactions of the Central Government, including all expenditure directly controlled by it, of the minor administrations of Ajmer-Merwara and Coorg, and of the convict settlement in the Andamans The Budget estimates of Provincial and "Divided" expenditure in 1913-14 generally represent the allotments proposed by the several Governments and Administrations with whom regular provincial settlements have been concluded and in the case of provinces having local Legislative Councils more detailed information regarding the figures will be found in the Financial Statements presented by the Local Governments to their respective Councils.

2. The figures for the newly created province of Delhi have been entered separately and explained under each major head of account. It may be stated however at the outset that while the Revised estimates for 1912-13 under each head represent the probable receipts and outlay in six months of the current year, the Budget makes full provision for the revenue and the charges of a whole year; and that where the difference between the two sets of figures arises solely from this cause, no explanation of the variation has been given in this memorandum Treatment of cost of Imperial Delhi.

3. It is also necessary to explain at this stage that the figures entered against Delhi in this memorandum represent only the revenue and expenditure of the Delhi administration and do not by themselves indicate the cost of change of the Imperial Capital. In order to ensure that, although brought into account under varying heads, expenditure connected with Delhi shall not be lost sight of, instructions have already been issued for the record of all such outlay under special descriptive sub-heads which have been opened in our accounts Thus, the whole of the expenditure on the Delhi Project proper chargeable to capital will be shown under the new capital head "51' opened for this purpose. Charges connected with the construction of Temporary Delhi will be shown under a special descriptive sub-head under the major head "45—Civil Works—Imperial." Similarly, expenditure on the new cantonment will be shown under a specific descriptive head in the Military section of the accounts. Lastly, charges connected with the administration of the Delhi province will be brought together in a special Appendix to the Civil Estimates under the appropriate service heads, and in this will also be included expenditure from special sanitary or other grants for such objects as water supply, town improvements, preservation of antiquities, medical relief, etc

In order to present in one view not only the gross expenditure arising from the change of Capital, but also the very substantial sums which will from time to time come to be taken by way of set-off, it has been decided to maintain a special pro forma statement with effect from 1912-13. The general form of the statement will be somewhat as shown in the appendix to this memorandum; but modifications in the detailed heads may have to be made as advised from time to time by the Comptroller General. It will not, however, be possible to present these figures until the accounts of 1912-13 are made up, and for the present it has been thought sufficient to compile a statement of the gross expenditure only arising out of the change of Capital which is included in the accounts of 1911-12, the Revised estimate of 1912-13 and the Budget estimate of 1913-14. The figures are given below in lakhs of rupees:—

	1911-12, Accounts.	1912-13, Revised.	1913-14, Budget.
I.—Capital expenditure:—
Initial outlay on Permanent Delhi (vide paragraphs 235 and 236) . . .	·75	16·78	200·00
II.—Revenue expenditure:—
(a) Administration of Delhi Province (as recorded under the various heads of account in this memorandum) . .	...	17·74	20·47
(b) Construction and maintenance of temporary works at Delhi for the accommodation of the Government of India (vide paragraphs 191 and 192)	8·61	47·00	8·25
(c) Cost of new Cantonment (vide paragraphs 214 and 224)	...	·11	16·00
(d) Expenditure on provision of postal and telegraphic facilities including cost of new buildings	...	3·91	·85
(e) Maintenance of Viceregal residence at Delhi	...	...	1·59
(f) Cost of permanently moving Imperial offices (viz, a section of the Government Press and the Office of the Comptroller General) from Calcutta or elsewhere to Delhi	...	1·15	·49
(g) Other indirect expenditure incurred mostly in the Secretariats owing to employment of special staff in connection with work arising from the change of Capital, grant of special concessions to camp offices brought to Delhi, etc.	...	1·02	·37
	8·61	70·93	48·02

The whole of the capital outlay undoubtedly represents additional expenditure which would have been avoided but for the change of Capital. Of the charges recorded in the revenue account, the whole of item (b) must for the present fall under this class, though there will be small counterbalancing receipts in the shape of rents of the residential buildings, and a substantial portion of the outlay will in all probability be recouped when the temporary buildings are no longer required. Item (c) also represents mostly extra expenditure. But the same can hardly be said of the other items given above. The expenditure shown against items (f) and (g) will probably be more than counterbalanced by the savings accruing from the shorter move of the Government of India to Delhi. The whole of the outlay shown against items (d) and (e) is being met from ordinary Imperial grants; and all that has happened is that money is being now spent at Delhi which would have been spent elsewhere for the same purpose if the change of Capital had not been made, or else that being the Imperial Capital, Delhi is now receiving a larger share of the money than it used to get. Lastly, a good portion of the expenditure shown against item (a) represents the cost of the ordinary civil administration of the territory which used to be met by the Government of the Punjab before Delhi became the Imperial Capital; and the only effect of the change has been to transfer all such ordinary expenditure from the Provincial to the Imperial section of the accounts. But the revenue of the tract has also been so transferred, resulting in a gain to the Imperial Government of about R3½ lakhs in 1912-13, and R7 lakhs in 1913-14; and it may also be necessary to make a reduction in the present assignment of Imperial land revenue received by the Punjab if a detailed examination of the accounts indicates that the Provincial expenditure in the tract prior to its transfer to Imperial control exceeded the Provincial revenue derived from it, though pending such examination no such reduction has been entered in the estimates. A small portion of the expenditure, about Rupees one lakh a year, also represents the cost of certain wholly Imperial Services, e.g., Ecclesiastical, which has been merely transferred from the books of the Punjab to those of the new province; while a further portion of it representing special outlay on sanitation, etc., is being actually met, or, but for the change, would have been met from special Imperial grants.

Accounts, 1911-12.

5. The accounts of 1911-12 are not discussed in this memorandum, but according to our usual practice in the past a brief explanation is given below of the principal divergences between the Revised estimates of revenue and expenditure as submitted to the Council twelve months ago, and the actual accounts of the year as closed, audited and compiled by the Comptroller and Auditor

£70,100 mainly in consequence of a smaller expenditure on the purchase of stores in England and in connection with the Royal Visit in India, and there were savings of £58,900 and £53,200 respectively in the miscellaneous charges of Railways and in the expenditure of Civil Departments. Smaller lapses also occurred under a number of other heads, but they were nearly counterbalanced by an increase of £82,000 under Civil Works. Of the latter sum £57,400 (R8·61 lakhs) represents expenditure on Temporary Delhi and was incurred mainly in taking over the electric installations, etc., erected, and certain articles of furniture purchased, in connection with the Coronation Durbar.

Authors of Memorandum.

7. Paragraphs 203 to 227 of this Memorandum have been communicated by the Hon'ble Mr W. H. Michael, Secretary to the Government of India in the Military Finance Branch: and the rest of the Memorandum has been drafted by Mr. Bhupendra Nath Mitra, M.A., Assistant Secretary in the Finance Department.

8. The Imperial expenditure shown against "Other Provinces" in the table at page 23 represents the cost of survey and record-of-right operations on a large scale in Bengal and in Bihar and Orissa, undertaken more for administrative than for fiscal purposes. The expenditure is of a temporary and varying character and was accordingly not considered suitable for inclusion in the financial settlements with the two provinces Three-fourths of the charges are eventually recovered from landlords and tenants for the protection of whose rights the operations are primarily undertaken; and the recoveries are shown in the table as Imperial revenue against "Other Provinces"

REVENUE

Revised, 1912-13. Budget, 1913-14.

9. Excluding the Delhi figures, the Revised estimate for 1912-13 is less than the Budget by R1 40 lakhs while the Budget for 1913-14 is R4 03 lakhs more than the Revised estimate for 1912-13 Both these variations are caused mainly by a postponement of the recovery in the current year of certain survey and settlement charges in Bengal and Bihar and Orissa, and by provision for the recovery of these arrears in 1913-14.

(b) Divided and Wholly Provincial.

10. The total collections in 1912-13 are likely to exceed the Budget estimate by R25·03 lakhs A large improvement of R36 50 lakhs is anticipated in the Punjab in spite of the loss of the Delhi revenue, owing to higher receipts from the sale of proprietary rights in the canal colonies and the revision of assessments in the Chenab colony Important increases will also take place in Burma (R14 78 lakhs) where the outturn of the year's crops is much above the average; in Bengal (R4 78 lakhs) where, owing to the territorial re-arrangement, the Budget was based on data which were more or less uncertain, while the Revised includes certain special receipts; and in Madras (R4 76 lakhs) mainly in consequence of the postponement of certain collections which were expected to be realised in 1911-12 at the time when the Budget for the current year was framed. In Assam also there will be an improvement of R1 07 lakhs owing to a larger recovery of arrears; but in the other provinces the collections will fall short of the Budget estimate There will be a considerable deficiency of R26 06 lakhs in Bombay due to the unfavourable agricultural conditions prevailing in certain parts of the Presidency; and important shortages of R6 75 lakhs and R2·68 lakhs are also expected in the Central and the United Provinces respectively, owing to larger suspensions and postponement of collections in certain districts necessitated by an indifferent monsoon

Budget, 1913-14.

11 The total Budget for 1913-14 is R4·91 lakhs more than the Revised estimate for the current year An increase of R44 97 lakhs is expected in Bombay where provision has been made for the collection of a portion of the suspended revenue of the current year in addition to the normal demand for 1913-14. Important increases over the Revised estimate of the current year are also assumed in Madras (R8 01 lakhs) and in the Central Provinces (R7 65 lakhs) owing to normal growth in the revenue demand and to the recovery of arrears in the latter province Provision for normal growth of the revenue demand has been made generally in the other provinces also But the total collections in 1913-14 are expected to fall short of those in the current year in the Punjab (R30 70 lakhs) in consequence of smaller receipts from the sale of proprietary rights in the canal colonies; in Burma (R11 62 lakhs) where the estimates have been based on a normal outturn of next year's crops, while allowance has been made for a decrease in the petroleum revenue consequent on an expected falling-off in production in the Yenang-yaung oil-field; in the United Provinces (R4·99 lakhs) due to smaller recovery of revenue suspended in previous years, the outstanding amount of which will be considerably reduced by the end of the current year; and in Bengal (R2 00 lakhs) and in Assam (R1 lakh) owing to the absence of certain special receipts which have swelled the revenue in 1912-13.

(c) Adjustments between Imperial and Provincial.

12. The table at page 24 shows the amount of Imperial Land Revenue assigned for Provincial expenditure in the two years. The variations between the Budget and Revised estimates of the current year and between the latter and the Budget estimate for 1913-14 are explained below.

(1) Recurring assignments.

Revised, 1912-13.

13. The bulk of the increase of R10,90,000 in the Revised estimate over the Budget of the current year is contributed by the following three items, the balance consisting of petty corrections and re-adjustments :—

	Lakhs of rupees.
(1) Additional grants for educational reforms out of the reserve provision made in the current year's Budget under the head "22.—Education"	10·96
(2) Grants for the improvement of sanitary services out of the lump provision made for the purpose in the current year's Budget under the head "24.—Medical"	1·89
(3) Saving in the compensatory grant given to Madras in connection with the remission of the Proprietary Estates village service cess	—2·63
	10·22

Budget, 1913-14.

14. The increase of R1,71·10 lakhs in the Budget provision for next year over the Revised estimate of 1912-13 is made up as follows :—

		Lakhs of rupees.
(1) Compensatory assignments to the Governments of Bengal, Bihar and Orissa, United Provinces and the Punjab to enable them to forego the appropriations which are now made from the cess on land to meet expenditure which should be defrayed properly from Provincial revenues :—
Bengal	24·93
Bihar and Orissa	22·92
Punjab	2·08
TOTAL		79·46
(2) Additional recurring grants for the advancement of education		48·35
(3) Additional recurring grants for the development of sanitation		36·50
(4) Recurring grant to Assam for the proper administration of remote tracts on the north-east frontier		3·93
(5) Increase in compensatory assignment to Madras in connection with remission of village service cess in proprietary estates		2·43
(6) Additional recurring grants for the improvement of sanitary services		·76
		1,71·43
(7) Deduct—Petty adjustments of a recurring character		·33
TOTAL		1,71·10

15. The fourth of these grants is intended to compensate the Government of Assam for political and police expenditure which it will have to incur in connection with the outlying territories on the north-east frontier, but for which no provision was made in its provincial settlement. The fifth grant is a necessary concomitant of the progress of resumption of inam lands of village servants—see paragraph 12 of last year's explanatory memorandum.

The sixth grant is an addition to the similar grant of R1·89 lakhs made in the current year, the object of the aggregate grant of R2·65 lakhs being to assist Local Governments in employing additional Deputy Sanitary Commissioners and municipalities in organising an efficient staff of health officers and sanitary inspectors. All the major provinces participate in the grant with the exception of Assam and the Central Provinces from which no schemes on the subject have yet been received.

16. In connection with the grants falling within the first of the categories mentioned above, it may be explained that certain appropriations have hitherto been made in some of the provinces, in aid of expenditure which is properly chargeable to Provincial revenues, from the proceeds of the land cess which is wholly applied elsewhere to finance rural boards. Thus in Bengal and in Bihar and Orissa, a moiety of the land cess—known as the public works cess—forms an item of Provincial revenue; in Agra about one-third of the land cess is appropriated by the Provincial Government to meet the cost of the rural police; and in the Punjab the district boards have to make over to the Provincial Government about one-fifth of the land cess as a contribution for general services The arrangement has naturally resulted in a severe restriction of the activities of the rural boards in these provinces; and the Royal Commission on Decentralisation recommended in paragraph 773(i) of their report, that the resources of rural boards should be augmented by the surrender of these appropriations. It is proposed to accept the recommendation; and provision has accordingly been made in next year's Budget for the subventions required to compensate the four Provincial Governments for the loss of revenue entailed by the change. In calculating this loss due allowance has been made for the resumption of certain grants now made to the rural boards by the Provincial Governments. In the United Provinces a necessary corollary of the measure will be the abolition of the separate police rate in Oudh, the cost of the rural police becoming an item of Provincial expenditure, while advantage will be taken of the change to introduce another desirable reform, viz., the substitution of cash-paid chaukidars in Gorakhpur for village watchmen who are paid by grants of land and whose jagirs will be resumed; and an addition has been made to the compensatory assignment to cover the fresh burden thrown on Provincial revenues. The figures given below show how the assignments to the four provinces have been worked out on the basis of the average actuals for the last three years:—

	Bengal.	Bihar and Orissa.	United Provinces.	Punjab.
Net amount of appropriation surrendered . . .	29·42	24·52	22·19	3·82
Add—Cost of rural police in Oudh and chaukidars in Gorakhpur	...	...	11·02	...
	29·42	24·52	33·21	3·82
Deduct—Amount of contributions to rural boards to be resumed	4·49	1·60	3·54	1·74
Deduct—Provincial share of land revenue from resumed jagirs in Gorakhpur . . .	...	...	·14	...
Amount of assignment . .	24·93	22·92	29·53	2·08

In the North-West Frontier Province also, the system of levying contributions from district boards for general services will be discontinued, a reduction being made in the grants received by the boards from Provincial revenues. The net loss of revenue in this province will amount to ·22 lakh; and setting against this the Imperial share of the gain in land revenue in the United Provinces from the resumed jagirs the total cost of the measure will amount to R79·46 lakhs.

17. The following table gives the distribution among the different provinces of the recurring grants of R48 35 lakhs and R36 50 lakhs respectively for the promotion of education and the improvement of sanitation.

18. The subvention of R36 50 lakhs for sanitary expenditure represents the share assigned to the Governments of the nine major provinces, of the annual appropriation of R45 lakhs which it has been decided to make from Imperial revenues in aid of outlay on the improvement of sanitation R5 lakhs out of this appropriation has been reserved for research for which there is a vast field in India, and the balance of R40 lakhs is intended to provide for urgent sanitary needs in cities Out of the latter sum, R36 50 lakhs have been allotted to the major provinces, R1·50 lakhs to the minor administrations, and R2 lakhs kept in reserve for future distribution The allotments to provinces have been made with reference to figures of urban population modified where necessary in accordance with lists of schemes ready and waiting for funds in each province.

19 The recurring assignments for education will be in addition to the similar grants made for this purpose from Imperial revenues in 1912-13, and the total provision in next year's Budget for special Imperial subventions to Provincial Governments in aid of educational expenditure will stand at R104·31 lakhs as shown in column 4 of the table in paragraph 17 Adding to this sum R3 69 lakhs allotted to meet the educational needs of the minor administrations and R7 lakhs held in reserve for future distribution, the special appropriation from Imperial revenues for outlay on the advancement of education will amount to R115 lakhs in 1913-14, or R55 lakhs more than the similar appropriation made in the current year. The distribution of this additional sum among the provinces has been made generally with reference to population, the demand for education and the expressed needs of Local Governments

(2) Non-recurring assignments

(i) Grants for education, sanitation and other beneficial services.

Revised, 1912-13.

20 In the Budget estimate for the current year provision was made for a non-recurring appropriation of R65 lakhs from Imperial revenues for capital outlay on the promotion of education. Of this amount R62·50 lakhs have been allotted during the course of the year to the Provincial Governments to enable them to meet the requirements of universities and of certain special institutions, and the pressing demands for hostels; and the balance of R2·50 lakhs has been utilised for similar purposes in the minor administrations. A small sum of R·20 lakh out of the portion of the current year's recurring grant which was held in reserve, has also been applied to meet an item of necessary capital expenditure in Madras. Further, it has been decided (a) to devote R2½ crores out of the general surplus of the current year to meet capital requirements of Provincial Governments in connection with universities, colleges and schools; and (b) to distribute R69 lakhs, representing roughly about a third of the opium revenue realised in the current year in excess of R5,40 lakhs, among the Provincial Governments to be applied almost wholly to the erection of hostels,—a small sum of R2 lakhs being allotted to the Calcutta University to enable it to purchase land which it urgently requires for purposes of extension. The total non-recurring subventions to Provincial Governments in 1912-13 for the promotion of education will thus amount to R381·70 lakhs

21. It has also been decided to make further non-recurring grants to Provincial Governments aggregating R1⅛ crores out of the general surplus of the current year, the bulk of which will be devoted to meet pressing demands for the improvement of urban sanitation The distribution of the non-recurring educational and sanitary grants among the several provinces has been made generally on the same basis as has been followed in distributing the recurring grants, and is given in the table below:

22. In the next place, it has been decided to give from our general surplus in 1912-13 a non-recurring grant of R30 lakhs to Burma and one of R20 lakhs to Assam for communications and general development The Provincial resources of Burma are not yet quite sufficient to enable the Local Government to maintain a satisfactory rate of progress in the development of the country which its backward condition makes specially and urgently necessary. In Assam also the improvement of communications is a matter of vital importance and the Local Government has recently decided after careful consideration and with the help of a representative conference of leading Europeans and Indians of the province, to allot a sum of R15 lakhs for expenditure by local boards on new communication projects to be carried out in three years

23. Lastly, it has been decided to allot from our general surplus in 1912-13 a sum of R1 crore for discretionary grants to the Provincial Governments; these grants will not be earmarked for any particular purpose and it will be left to the Local Governments to determine the application of the sums placed at their disposal according to the special and pressing requirements of each. Assam and the Central Provinces will each receive R8 lakhs of the grants of this class, while a sum of R12 lakhs will be given to each of the seven other provinces.

Budget, 1913-14.

24. From the surplus Imperial revenues in 1913-14 it has been decided to make two appropriations of R10 lakhs each for (a) agriculture and allied purposes and (b) medical relief. The first of these grants will be applied mainly to the development of cotton cultivation and of the sugar industry, small sums being also allotted for bacteriological and other laboratories, the extension of cinchona plantations, the development of forests and other desirable improvements. The second grant will be devoted to the improvement of hospitals and medical education. R6·60 lakhs of the former grant and R8·75 lakhs of the latter will be assigned to the nine Provincial Governments; and the balance will be either utilised to meet necessary Imperial outlay in the minor administrations, etc., or else held in reserve for future allotment. The distribution of the assignments to the Provincial Governments is given below:—

EXPENDITURE.

(a) Wholly Imperial.

26. Excluding the Delhi figures, the saving of R2·05 lakhs in the Budget grant for 1912-13 is chiefly due to lapses in the provision for survey and settlement expenditure in Bengal and Bihar and Orissa; and the increase of R5·40 lakhs in the Budget estimate for 1913-14 over the Revised for the current year occurs mostly in the same item of expenditure. The variations in the figures shown against the North-West Frontier Province are due to ordinary lapses in grants in 1912-13 and to normal provision for the sanctioned scale of expenditure in 1913-14

Revised, 1912-13.

(b) Divided and Wholly Provincial.

27. The total expenditure in the current year will be R7·06 lakhs less than the Budget estimate. Savings of considerable magnitude are expected in the Punjab (2 92 lakhs) owing to the separation of Delhi, and the total or partial non-utilisation of the provisions for the reorganisation of the Indian Civil Service and the extension of settlement operations; and in Madras (R2 72 lakhs) in consequence of smaller payments to village servants and of delay in the introduction of the scheme for the revision of taluk establishments. The saving in the latter province would have been larger, but for the arrear payment of Royal bonus to certain establishments and an increase in the grain compensation charges Important savings in the Budget grants are also expected in the United Provinces (R 92 lakh), Bombay (R·83 lakh) and Bihar and Orissa (R·80 lakh) owing to ordinary lapses in grants, and the total or partial non-utilisation of the lump provisions for the revision of certain establishments. Burma is the only province in which there will be a material excess over the Budget grant Here the increase in the land revenue collections will necessitate a larger payment of commission on the collections, while the expenditure on town and other surveys will be higher than was anticipated

Revised, 1912-13.

28. The total Budget estimate for 1913-14 is R11 37 lakhs higher than the Revised for the current year. The increase is confined practically to two provinces—United Provinces (R7 90 lakhs) and Madras (R3 56 lakhs). Of the large increase anticipated in the former province, R6·25 lakhs represents the cost of a scheme for the revision of pay of clerical establishments in accordance with the recommendations of a committee which was appointed two years ago to enquire into the matter; while the balance is mostly made up of provisions for the extension of settlement operations and for an increase in the number of deputy collectors in pursuance of a scheme which has been recently sanctioned by the Secretary of State. The increase of R3 56 lakhs in Madras is chiefly due to provision for the revision of village establishments including those in proprietary estates, as well as for a full year's cost of the reorganised taluk establishments. Special provision has also been made in the Central Provinces for the revision of the patwari establishments and the extension of settlement operations; in Assam for a survey school; and in the Punjab for an increase in the number of extra assistant commissioners and for the regrading of tahsildars. In Bombay also, special provision has been made for the revision of the pay of subordinate revenue establishments, and of village servants in the Kaira district; but its effect is obscured by smaller allotments for grain compensation allowance and other indirect famine outlay, and by a change in the method of adjustment of certain charges which will result in the transfer of R1·43 lakhs of expenditure from the head "3—Land Revenue" to "19A—Courts of Law."

REVENUE.

[illegible]ised, 1912-13.

29. The Budget estimate for 1912-13 provided for the sale of 17,406 chests of Bengal opium; and it was assumed that 5,206 out of these would be specially certificated for China and would realise an average price of R2,450 a chest, while the remaining 12,200 chests would yield an average price of R1,500 each only. The total number of chests sold at Calcutta to end of March has amounted to 17,890 and they have brought in a revenue of R4,98·06, lakhs.

30. The Budget for 1913-14 provides only for the sale of 9,000 uncertificated chests of Bengal opium at an average price of R1,800 each, the total receipts on this account thus amounting to R1,62 lakhs. Budget, 1913-14.

(ii) Malwa opium

31. As regards Malwa opium, the Budget estimate for the current year provided for the sale of 14,615 certificated chests and the export of 1,000 chests without certificates; and after making due allowance for the effect of the arrangement which permits of the payment of the premium for the right of export within a specified period from the date of sale, on the deposit of proper security, the estimate of revenue was placed at R186·71 lakhs 9,428 chests of Malwa opium have been sold to end of December and R220 38 lakhs of revenue have been already credited to Government. No sales have been effected in the last three months of the year; and the Revised Estimate has accordingly been placed at R220·38 lakhs. Revised, 1912-13.

32. The Budget for 1913-14 provides only for the recovery of R4·77 lakhs of premium payable in respect of the December sale which is not likely to be received before April next. Budget, 1913-14.

(iii) Excise opium and other Revenue.

33. Under this head the Revised estimate for 1912-13 exceeds the Budget by R2·74 lakhs. About half the improvement occurs in Bombay where Bengal opium was substituted for Malwa opium for purposes of local consumption; while the remainder is distributed among a number of provinces. Revised, 1912-13.

34. The Budget estimate for 1913-14 provides for the normal annual growth of revenue. Budget, 1913-14.

EXPENDITURE.

35. There is a saving of R12·85 lakhs in the Budget provision for the current year mainly in consequence of reduced payments to cultivators resulting from a comparatively poor outturn of the crop of 1912. The Budget estimate of 1913-14 includes a special provision of R84 lakhs for the purchase of Malwa opium for excise purposes and allows for the reduced scale of cultivation of Bengal opium. Revised, 1912-13. Budget, 1913-14.

REVENUE

vised, 1912-13.

36 The total quantity of salt issued for consumption in 1912-13 is likely to be less than the Budget estimate by about 5 lakhs of maunds This decrease is wholly due to the abnormally high issues in Bengal in the months of December, January and February last year, in consequence of speculative clearances which have overstocked the market and reduced the demands in that province in the current year. With a duty of R1 per maund, the decrease in consumption would have led to an equal decrease in the Budget estimate of revenue But the actual shortage will be higher owing to a further development of the credit system of payment of duty in Bengal, and will amount to R13 66 lakhs dget, 1913-14.

37 In the Budget estimate for 1913-14 provision has been made for a moderate growth in the consumption of 6¾ lakhs of maunds The increase in revenue will, however, amount to R10·29 lakhs as the growth in the sales on credit in Bengal is not likely to be quite so large in 1913-14 as in the current year

ised, 1912-13.

38. The total Revised estimate for the current year does not differ materially from the Budget provision. An increase of R1·24 lakhs in Bombay, mainly in connection with land acquisition at Bhandup, has been more than counterbalanced by savings in other provinces The Budget estimate for 1913-14 provides for the normal scale of expenditure, for a necessary replenishment of the reserve stock in Northern India, and for a steam launch required in Bengal; but owing to the absence of the special land acquisition charges incurred in Bombay in the current year the total Budget will be only R 28 lakh higher than the Revised estimate for 1912-13.

REVENUE.

Revised, 1912-13.

39 Excluding the Delhi figures, the total Revised estimate for 1912-13 is R 52 lakh higher than the Budget forecast owing to small improvements in the North-West Frontier Province and in other minor administrations, while the total Budget for 1913-14 is the same as the Revised estimate for the current year.

Budget, 1913-14.

(b) Divided.

Revised, 1912-13.

40 The growth of revenue in 1912-13 is now expected to be R23 65 lakhs higher than the provision made in the Budget estimate. The greater part of this increase, viz, R17 93 lakhs, will be derived from non-judicial stamps and reflects the remarkable activity of trade during the year The revenue from court-fee stamps will also advance by R7 44 lakhs owing to the increase of litigation in a generally prosperous year. All the provinces share in the expansion of revenue with the exception of Burma, where the revenue will fall short of the Budget estimate by R1·36 lakhs in consequence of trade depression and financial stringency.

Budget, 1913-14.

41. The Budget for 1913-14 is taken at R19·30 lakhs more than the Revised estimate for 1912-13 Provision for normal growth has been made in every province.

EXPENDITURE.

42. The cost of all stamps and stamp paper supplied from England is charged under this head, and an adjustment is made in India transferring to Post Office and Telegraph the cost of stamps used for postal and telegraph purposes Similarly the cost of revenue stamps supplied to Local Governments and Administrations is debited to them in the Provincial section of the accounts by per contra credit in the Imperial section under this head. The credits on both these accounts are shown against item I (ii) under Expenditure in the table on page 35.

(a) Wholly Imperial (including outlay in England).

Revised, 1912-13.

43 The net credit in 1912-13 in the Imperial section of the accounts in India is now taken at R1 62 lakhs less than the Budget estimate. Some extra expenditure has been incurred in connection with the insurance of consignments of stamps ; and there will be a large decrease in the value of stamps supplied to the Postal Department owing to the lower prices which are charged under the new contract and which will result in a saving in the English outlay In fact, taking India and England together, the Revised estimate of stamp expenditure in 1912-13 is R2 95 lakhs less than the Budget estimate; while the Budget provision for 1913-14 is R2 73 lakhs higher than the Revised estimate for the current year.

Budget, 1913-14.

(b) Divided.

44. The increase in expenditure in the current year over the Budget estimate, and the further advance provided for in the Budget for 1913-14 are concomitants of the growth in revenue.

Revised, 1912-13.

46. The total Revised estimate for 1912-13 exceeds the Budget by R89 15 lakhs The prevalence of favourable economic conditions throughout the greater portion of the country, the gradual enhancement of rates of duty, the raising of the issue price of opium, the establishment of confidence in the contract supply system and stricter excise control have again combined to secure a very substantial improvement in revenue over the Budget estimate in almost every province Certain special factors have also contributed to the growth; and among these may be mentioned (1) a change in system in the Punjab whereby two months' license fees which are realised in advance at the annual auctions of the right of vend in March are now credited as revenue at the time of receipt instead of being held in deposit and credited as revenue in the ensuing year; and (2) the introduction of Bengal opium for excise purposes in Bombay and in the northern districts of Burma In Bengal alone is the revenue now expected to fall short of the Budget estimate The license fees at which country spirit shops were settled for 1912-13 were comparatively low owing apparently to the rise in the price of food grains at the beginning of the year which is said to have checked consumption; while a shortage of last year's ganja crop has forced up prices and has affected the revenue.

Budget, 1913-14.

47. The total Budget for 1913-14 is taken at R38·85 lakhs higher than the Revised estimate for 1912-13. The increase is distributed over all the provinces with the exception of the Punjab where the normal growth of revenue is expected to be wholly counterbalanced by the absence of the special receipts of the current year and the loss of the Delhi revenue for the first half of the year. In view of the high collections of the current year, and changes contemplated in the excise administration in some provinces, provision has generally been made only for a moderate growth of revenue in 1913-14.

Budget, 1913-14.

49. The Revised estimate for the current year does not differ materially from the Budget provision Budget for 1913-14 provides for normal charges of sanctioned establishments, as well as for the additional staff required in Bombay, the re-organisation of the Excise department in Bengal and the revision of certain establishments in the Central Provinces.

Revised 1912-13.

51. The improvement of R·99 lakh in 1912-13 over the Budget estimate occurs mainly in the yield of the public works cess in Bihar and Orissa. The large decrease of R79·25 lakhs in the Budget of next year as compared with the Revised estimate of 1912-13 is explained by the surrender to district boards of the public works cess in Bengal and in Bihar and Orissa, and the discontinuance of the appropriations hitherto made from the local rate in Agra to meet the cost of the rural police

Budget, 1913-14.

EXPENDITURE.

52. The Revised estimate for 1912-13 practically repeats the Budget. No provision for expenditure has been made in 1913-14 in view of the surrender of the public works cess in Bengal and Bihar and Orissa.

REVENUE.

Revised, 1912-13. 53. The Revised estimate for 1912-13 exceeds the Budget by no less than R91 44 lakhs Of this improvement, R20 lakhs are contributed by silver, the imports of the commodity being far in excess of the cautious estimate adopted last year; R23·66 lakhs by the export duty on rice owing to heavy demands from Ceylon and the Far East which stimulated exports not only from Burma but also from Bengal; R24 58 lakhs by the import and excise duty on cotton goods, and R8·65 lakhs by manufactured articles, the demand for these goods having expanded more rapidly than had been anticipated owing to the generally favourable economic conditions; and R11·15 lakhs by sugar, the imports of which were stimulated by good crops abroad and the consequent fall in prices Increases of smaller magnitude are also expected under some of the other tariff heads, but they are largely counterbalanced by shortages under petroleum, the imports of which have declined to a greater extent than had been allowed for on the cessation of last year's rate war, and certain other heads

Budget, 1913-14. 54. The Budget estimate for 1913-14 has been taken at R21 77 lakhs less than the Revised for the current year. A cautious estimate of R80 lakhs has again been adopted for the yield of the silver duty, while the revenue from the export duty on rice has been taken at a normal figure of R1,30·66 lakhs. Under the other tariff heads provision has been made generally for a moderate growth of revenue

EXPENDITURE.

REVENUE.

(a) Imperial.

56 Excluding the Delhi figures, there is no material variation between the Budget and Revised estimates for the current year or between the latter and the Budget estimate for 1913-14.

(b) Divided.

Revised, 1912-13.

57. The total revenue in 1912-13 is likely to exceed the Budget by R10 88 lakhs. Of this improvement R4·75 lakhs are expected in Bengal where a cautious estimate was adopted last year in view of possible troubles in the jute business which however did not arise, while the briskness of trade has led to a large growth in the revenue Important increases will also take place in Bihar and Orissa (R1 74 lakhs), Bombay (R2 48 lakhs) and Madras (R1·58 lakhs) owing generally to favourable trade conditions and improved arrangements for assessment The Budget for 1913-14 provides for normal growth of revenue in almost all the provinces In Bengal alone has no provision been made for an advance on the heavy collections in the current year.

REVENUE.

Revised, 1912-13. Budget, 1913-14.

59 The falling-off in revenue in the current year as compared with the Budget estimate occurs mainly in Port Blair and is due to a smaller demand for, and a fall in the price of, padauk timber. The Budget estimate of 1913-14 provides for a small growth in all the minor administrations.

(b) Provincial.

Revised, 1912-13.

60 The Revised estimate for 1912-13 exceeds the Budget by R17·40 lakhs. The improvement is shared by all the provinces with the exception of the Punjab and Assam, where the revenue will fall short of the Budget, and of Bihar where the Budget estimate will very nearly be realised. The more important increases occur in the Central Provinces (R7 lakhs) due to the introduction of new grazing rates in certain districts, an intensity of demand for grass, and the supply of grass to Bombay in connection with the famine fodder operations; in the United Provinces (R5·55 lakhs) owing to a larger demand for timber and the consequent improvement in prices, to more extensive resin operations and to other causes; and in Burma (R2·87 lakhs) where a special receipt of R6 lakhs on account of the second instalment of the sale-proceeds of the Mergui rubber plantations obscures a shortage of R3 13 lakhs in the Budget estimate caused by an unfavourable floating season in Upper Burma in the earlier part of the year and the postponement of the recovery of a portion of the sale-proceeds of the kheddah elephants. The variations in the other provinces are of smaller magnitude and are generally due to an increase or a reduction in the receipts from the sale of timber and other forest produce.

Budget, 1913-14.

61 The total revenue in 1913-14 is taken at R3·11 lakhs less than the Revised estimate of the current year The bulk of this decrease is expected to take place in Bombay (R4 50 lakhs) and the Central Provinces (R2 lakhs) owing to a cessation of the special supply of grass required in connection with the famine fodder operations in the former province A decline in revenue is also anticipated in Bengal and in Madras owing to the substitution of the contract system for departmental working; and in the United Provinces in view of the abnormally high sales of timber in the current year and the completion of the sale of trees killed by the drought of 1908. In Burma, Assam, Bihar and the Punjab provision has been made for a small normal growth of revenue.

EXPENDITURE.

Revised, 1912-13. Budget, 1913-14.

62. The expenditure in 1912-13 will fall short of the Budget provision by R·71 lakh in consequence of lapses in grants in Port Blair. Budget for 1913-14 is R3 42 lakhs higher than the Revised estimate for the current year mainly owing to provision for increased outlay in connection with working plans in Port Blair and Coorg, on the eradication of lantana in the latter province, for the erection of a semi-portable saw-mill in Port Blair (R1·50 lakhs) and for Imperial expenditure (R·50 lakh) out of the special grant of R10 lakhs for agriculture and allied objects.

(b) Provincial.

Revised, 1912-13.

63. The total Revised estimate for 1912-13 is less than the Budget by R1·8[illegible] lakh. There is a large excess of R1 66 lakhs in the Central Provinces in connection with the supply of grass to Bombay; and of R1·21 lakhs in the United Provinces owing to an expected larger payment of rent to the Raja of Tehri in consequence of an increase in the revenue from leased forests, and to the transfer of provision to this head from "26.—Scientific and other minor departments" to cover an allotment made for acquiring certain babul forests in the Hamirpur district out of the special Imperial grant of 1911-12 for agriculture and allied objects. But these and smaller excesses in three other provinces, will be more than counterbalanced by a large decrease of R3 50 lakhs in Madras owing to the curtailment of departmental operations and by lapses in grants in Burma, Bombay and Bengal.

Budget, 1913-14.

64. The total Budget for 1913-14 is R3·39 lakhs higher than the Revised for the current year. Increased provision has been made generally for establishment charges with reference to the sanctioned scales, as well as for special outlay on the development of forests in most of the provinces. But it is partly counterbalanced by a reduction of the expenditure in connection with famine grass operations in Bombay and the Central Provinces, and the absence of the outlay incurred from special Imperial grants in Bengal and Bihar in the current year. The Budget estimates for Burma and Assam include allotments of R 50 lakh and R 25 lakh respectively for expenditure from the special Imperial grants made in 1913-14 for agriculture and allied objects.

66. The favourable economic conditions which have prevailed generally during the current year have led to a more rapid expansion in the demand for registration than was allowed for in framing the Budget estimate, and the Revised estimate for 1912-13 has been taken at R5 52 lakhs higher, the improvement being shared by almost all the provinces In view of the high collections in the current year, no allowance for any important growth of revenue in 1913-14 has been made except in Bengal and Madras and the total Budget for next year is only R1 49 lakhs more than the Revised estimate for 1912-13.

68. The revenue recorded under this head represents tributes received from the protected States, in several cases as a result of exchanges of territory and settlement of claims, and contributions made chiefly in lieu of former obligation to supply or maintain troops. The figures do not ordinarily show any important fluctuations from year to year except for arrears and their recovery. The Revised estimate for the current year practically repeats the Budget. The Budget estimate for 1913-14 provides for normal receipts and for the recovery of arrear contributions from Baroda.

(a) Imperial

69. The wholly Imperial expenditure shown against "Other provinces" represents refunds and drawbacks in respect of wholly Imperial revenue (e.g., Opium, Salt, Customs and Tributes). The increase of R1.02 lakhs in the Revised estimate over the Budget for 1912-13 occurs mainly under refunds of customs duty and is due to a change in the method of accounting in Bombay by which duty paid in advance pending the final settlement of the amount, is now credited as revenue, instead of under a deposit head, any excess over the correct amount being charged as Refunds when it is returned to the party concerned. The Budget estimate for 1913-14 does not differ materially from the Revised for 1912-13

Revised, 1912-13.

Budget, 1913-14.

(b) Divided and Provincial

70. The expenditure fluctuates considerably from year to year and is difficult to estimate In 1912-13 the Budget will be exceeded by R2.61 lakhs owing chiefly to special refunds of Excise revenue in Bombay and to higher refunds of Land revenue in several provinces. For 1913-14 a normal expenditure has been assumed

72 The expenditure in 1912-13 will not differ materially from the Budget provision The increase of R1 72 lakhs provided in the Budget for 1913-14 over the Revised estimate for the current year occurs chiefly in connection with the resumption of certain abkari rights in Bombay and the Central Provinces.

(a) India-Imperial.

73. The total revenue in 1912-13 is now expected to be R3 13 lakhs more than the Budget estimate. The principal items contributing to this improvement are an increase of R1·78 lakhs in the interest receivable in respect of Imperial loans and advances, mainly owing to recovery of arrears from Native States in Bombay and the credit to Imperial of the interest due from the Delhi Municipality after 1st October 1912, on loans received by it from Government; and of R1 20 lakhs in the interest payable by railway companies on overdrafts of capital. The total Budget for 1913-14 exceeds the Revised estimate for the current year by R2 20 lakhs, a decrease of R1·25 lakhs in the interest recoverable from Native States due to the absence of the arrears mentioned above, being more than counterbalanced by an increase in the interest payable by railway companies in respect of overdrafts of capital.

Budget, 1913-14.

(b) India-Provincial.

Revised, 1912-13.

74. The Revised estimate for 1912-13 is R1 17 lakhs higher than the Budget An increase of R1·80 lakhs is expected in the United Provinces due to recovery of arrears and a larger issue of advances for wells and of loans in certain districts; but this will be partly counterbalanced by a small net decrease in the other provinces The Budget estimate for 1913-14 provides for a decrease of R2 lakhs in the United Provinces owing to the absence of the arrears realised in the current year. On the other hand in Bombay there is an increase of R2 81 lakhs owing to expected recovery of arrears from Native States and from cultivators; and the total Budget for 1913-14 is slightly higher than the Revised estimate for the current year.

Budget, 1913-14.

(c) England.

Revised, 1912-13.

75 The receipts in England in the current year are expected to show a considerable improvement of R31 20 lakhs (£208,000) over the Budget estimate. The whole of this increase occurs in the interest realised from the investment of the cash balances of the Home Treasury and is due to the amounts available for investment being much larger and the rate of interest higher than was estimated. The decrease of R29·'0 lakhs (£190,000) in the Budget estimate for 1913-14 as compared with the Revised for the current year also occurs wholly in this item of revenue. The cash balances of the Home Treasury next year are not expected to remain as high as in the current year

INTEREST ON ORDINARY DEBT.

Interest on total debt, 1912-13.

76. The expenditure in 1912-13 on account of interest payable on the public debt as a whole falls short of the Budget estimate by R5·64 lakhs (£37,600) There is an increase of R4·86 lakhs (£32,400) in England due to the average price of issue of the new sterling loan of the year being lower than was anticipated. But on the other hand, a decrease of R10 50 lakhs is expected in India, mainly in consequence of a large saving in the provision for discount on the new rupee loan of the year. In the Budget of 1913-14 necessary provision has been made for a full year's interest on the sterling loan of £3 million and the rupee loan of 3 crores raised in the current year; and for the service of the new rupee loan which it is contemplated to raise in 1913-14. But the total expenditure will fall short of that in 1912-13 by R28·71 lakhs (£191,400) owing to the absence of the heavy discount paid in the current year on the sterling loan issued in April 1912.

Transfers to Railway and Irrigation Accounts.

77. The amount of interest transferred to the Railway and Irrigation sections of the accounts depends, firstly, on the capital expenditure ; secondly on the actual payment of interest on that portion of the debt which has been incurred specifically on account of the construction or purchase of railways or irrigation works ; and thirdly, on the rate at which interest is charged on that portion of the debt which has not been specifically raised for the above purpose. Our practice is to adopt for this adjustment the average rate of interest actually paid in respect of the whole of the non-specific debt in the latest year for which practically complete accounts are available The result is that the rate adopted in calculating the Revised estimate for a year is generally different from that used for the Budget estimate ; and this leads to a difference between the two estimates apart from that caused by a variation in the capital expenditure itself. The large increase of R31·17 lakhs (£207,800) in the Revised estimate of total interest to be transferred in 1912-13, as compared with the Budget, is due partly to an increase in the rate, and partly to an increase in the amount of funds supplied by Government for capital expenditure on State Railways (vide paragraph 228). The increase in the amount of interest to be transferred in 1913-14 over the Revised estimate for 1912-13 is almost wholly due to the progress of capital expenditure.

Transfers to Provincial.

78. A portion of the interest on Ordinary Debt appears in the Provincial section of the accounts Provincial Governments are authorised to grant advances to cultivators (as well as to certain other people in special cases) under various Acts, to landholders and notabilities apart from the provisions of any law, and to municipalities and local bodies (other than Presidency Corporations), out of amounts annually placed at their disposal by the Government of India The interest actually levied on such advances is credited as Provincial revenue. But interest at 3½ per cent. a year is charged to the Local Governments on the mean between the outstanding balances of the Provincial Loan Accounts at the commencement of the year and at its close ; and this is done by transferring the amount so calculated from the Imperial to the Provincial section under Interest on Ordinary Debt The differences between the Budget and the Revised estimates of the amount to be so transferred in the current year, and between the latter and the Budget estimate of 1913-14, are explained by the variations in the outstanding balances of the Provincial Loan Account as shown in the table at page 51

INTEREST ON OTHER OBLIGATIONS.

Revised, 1912-13.

Budget, 1913-14.

79. The increase of R1·21 lakhs (£8,100) in the Revised estimate of the current year over the Budget provision occurs, almost wholly in the interest payable by the Post Office Savings Banks, the deposits in which have grown more largely than was anticipated (vide paragraph 262). In 1913-14 provision has been made for a further increase in the interest payable on the deposits in the Post Office Savings Banks and in the State Provident Funds, consequent on a growth in the deposits themselves.

Revised, 1912-13.

80. General prosperity and briskness of trade have led to a larger growth of revenue under this head in the current year than was allowed for in the Budget; and the Revised estimate shows an improvement of R6·08 lakhs. In the Budget of 1913-14 provision has been made for a further moderate advance of R15·20 lakhs.

Budget, 1913-14.

EXPENDITURE.

Revised, 1912-13.

81. The total expenditure in 1912-13 is expected to fall short of the Budget grant by R1·92 lakhs. An increase of R·47 lakh under establishment, mainly in consequence of the grant of grain compensation allowance, and of R·99 lakh under stationery and printing necessitated by the revision of a large number of postal forms, will be more than counterbalanced by a lapse in the grant for conveyance of mails and by savings in the cost of stamps owing to the reduced rates now charged on their supply. The total Budget estimate for 1913-14 exceeds the Revised for the current year by R3 12 lakhs only. Due provision has been made for the normal development of the operations of the Department; but it is obscured to some extent by a decrease in the stationery and printing charges arising from the absence of the special expenditure in the current year mentioned above, and by a further reduction in the cost of stamps.

Revised, 1912-13.

82 Here also the favourable economic conditions of the current year have led to a larger growth of revenue than was assumed in the Budget, and improvements of R6·61 lakhs and R4 92 lakhs respectively are expected in the receipts of the Indian and the Indo-European Departments. The Budget estimate for 1913-14

Budget, 1913-14.

provides for a further advance of R7 59 lakhs in the revenue of the Indian Department; but in view of the very considerable development which has taken place in the receipts of the Indo-European Department in 1912-13 it is not considered prudent to budget for a further growth here next year.

EXPENDITURE.

Revised, 1912-13.

83. The total expenditure in the current year is expected to exceed the Budget grant by R5·47 lakhs (£36,500). There is a saving of R2·04 lakhs (£13,600) in the revenue expenditure, due mainly to lapses in the grants for establishments and other general charges and to smaller outlay on line repairs. But this is more than counterbalanced by an increase of R7·51 lakhs (£50,100) in the capital expenditure chiefly in connection with the installation and equipment of radio offices.

Budget, 1913-14.

84. The Budget estimate for 1913-14 is taken at R13·08 lakhs (£87,200) more than the Revised for 1912-13. There is an increase of R6·40 lakhs (£42,700) in the Revenue expenditure owing chiefly to full provision for sanctioned establishments, higher working expenses resulting from the growth in traffic, and contemplated outlay on the remodelling of existing wireless stations in the Bay of Bengal. Capital expenditure will also go up by R6·68 lakhs (£44,500) to provide for the requirements of radio stations.

(b) Indo-European.

85. The total expenditure in the current year will fall short of the Budget by R1·49 lakhs (£9,900), the decrease being made up of lapses of R1·13 lakhs (£7,500) and R·36 lakh (£2,400) respectively in the capital and revenue grants. The saving in the capital account is caused by the postponement for yet another year of the reconstruction of the Arabistan telegraph line and work on certain buildings in Persia, and would have been higher but for the utilisation of a portion of the available funds in the building of radio offices in the Persian Gulf.

Budget, 1913-14.

86. The Budget estimate for 1913-14 is taken at R3·40 lakhs (£22,700) higher than the Revised for the current year. Provision has been made for capital outlay on most of the construction works postponed in the current year as well as on the radio offices, for repairs to the cable steamer, and for working expenses of the radio offices.

Revised, 1912-13.

87. The Revised estimate for 1912-13 exceeds the Budget by R48·94 lakhs. Of this increase R32 04 lakhs are contributed by the seigniorage on the coinage of rupees from purchased silver. An important increase of R15 lakhs is also expected in the profit on the circulation of subsidiary nickel and bronze coins the demand for which has been stimulated by the activity of trade. The resumption of the coinage of new rupees will also result in an increase in the operative gains included under "Other items" in the above table, but this will be counterbalanced by an increase in the debits on account of operative losses.

Budget, 1913-14.

88. The Budget estimate for 1913-14 is taken at R43·71 lakhs less than the Revised estimate for the current year, the decrease being due to the absence of the seigniorage and other special receipts of the current year and to a moderate provision for profit on the circulation of subsidiary nickel and bronze coins.

EXPENDITURE.

Revised, 1912-13.
Budget, 1913-14.

89. The excess of R6·13 lakhs in the expenditure in the current year over the Budget estimate is caused by the heavy coinage of rupees from purchased silver. The Budget for 1913-14 provides for normal operations only.

90. In the Budget estimate for the current year, a lump provision of R5 lakhs was made for the cost of administration of the Imperial Capital at Delhi. The expenditure incurred on this account is being recorded under the proper heads Only the pay and other charges of the Chief Commissioner and his secretariat staff will be recorded under this head; and these are expected to amount to R·19 lakh in 1912-13, while a provision of R1·10 lakhs has been made in next year's Budget to meet a full year's expenditure.

91 Omitting the Delhi figures, the total expenditure in 1912-13 will amount to R102 96 lakhs against a Budget grant of R103·16 lakhs, while the Budget for 1913-14 has been fixed at R102 97 lakhs. In the current year an excess of R1·51 lakhs under Secretariat charges, due to the employment of additional officers in connection with special work and to higher expenditure on the enquiry on prices, will be more than counterbalanced by a saving of R·59 lakh in the tour expenses of His Excellency the Viceroy, and by a net decrease of R1·02 lakhs in the cost of the Account and Currency Departments caused by the debit of a portion of the expenditure to the public works heads of account.

Budget, 1913-14.

In 1913-14 there will be a reduction of R1·23 lakhs in the Secretariat charges owing to the termination of the enquiry on prices and the absence of special expenditure incurred in the current year; but on the other hand normal provision has been made for the Viceregal tours and there will be an increase in the cost of the Account and Currency Departments in consequence of the contemplated separation of the functions of the Comptroller-General and the appointment of a Controller of Currency.

Revised, 1912-13.

92. The total Revised for 1912-13 exceeds the Budget estimate by R3·58 lakhs. The bulk of the increase occurs in Bengal (R2 50 lakhs) and is due to the retention of the Board of Revenue and to higher expenditure on the purchase of pictures and the supply of crockery for Government House, and on the movement of records. The balance of the excess, viz., R1 08 lakhs, is contributed by certain arrear charges in connection with the Royal visit in the Punjab and some other provinces and by other unimportant variations.

Budget, 1913-14.

93. The total Budget for 1913-14 does not differ materially from the Revised estimate for the current year Savings of R1·48 lakhs and R 82 lakh respectively are expected in Bengal and the Punjab owing to the absence of the non-recurring and special expenditure incurred in the current year. But these will be nearly counterbalanced by an increase of R1·10 lakhs in Bihar and Orissa where provision has been made for a full year's cost of the Executive Council and certain head-quarters establishments; and of R1 12 lakhs in the Central Provinces caused by lump allotments for the provincial Legislative Council, a separate Inspector-General of Registration, the revision of the office of the Excise Commissioner, and a new railway saloon for the Chief Commissioner.

(c) England.

94. The excess over the Budget grant in the current year and the further increase provided for in the Budget of 1913-14 are mainly due to higher demands for currency note forms.

Revised, 1912-13.

96 The total Revised estimate for 1912-13 exceeds the Budget by R2·69 lakhs. A large increase of R2 75 lakhs is expected in Madras owing mainly to larger expenditure on grain compensation allowance, the opening of an additional number of temporary subordinate courts and the deputation of a district judge to enquire into the adequacy of the judiciary outside Madras city. The variations in the other provinces are unimportant and do not call for any remark.

Budget, 1913-14.

97. The total Budget for 1913-14 is R3·93 lakhs higher than the Revised estimate for 1912-13. A portion of this increase, viz., R1·43 lakhs, is nominal and is caused by the transfer to this head of certain charges which used to be recorded under "3 —Land Revenue" (see paragraph 28); the balance is shared by all the provinces except Bengal and Madras. Provision for the full cost of sanctioned establishments and for normal growth has been made in all the provinces. Special allotments have also been made in the Central Provinces for the appointment of a third additional Judicial Commissioner; in the Punjab for the re-organisation of the superior judicial service; and in Bengal for the regrading of munsiffs The resultant increase in expenditure will, however, be more than counterbalanced in Bengal by a large saving in law charges owing to the absence of the special expenditure incurred in the current year in connection with political cases; and in Madras by a reduced provision for grain compensation allowance and the absence of certain items of special outlay incurred in 1912-13.

98. The figures do not show any important variation and call for no remark.

(b) Provincial.

Revised, 1912-13.

99 The total revenue in the current year is expected to exceed the Budget estimate by R3·47 lakhs, the improvement occurring mainly under copying fees realised in cash in Burma, and under magisterial fines in several provinces. The Budget for 1913-14 provides for normal receipts in all the provinces.

101. The total expenditure in 1912-13 will be R1·40 lakhs less than the Budget estimate. Savings in the allotments for the cost of dietary as well as in other grants are expected in all the provinces except Burma and the Punjab. In Burma and the Punjab, the Budget grants will be exceeded by R2·24 lakhs and R1 13 lakhs respectively, owing to a larger outlay on dietary in the former province caused by necessary replenishment of stock and a rise in the price of paddy, and in the latter to the conversion of the Lahore district jail into a central jail and an increase in the jail population

Budget, 1913-14.

102. The total Budget estimate for 1913-14 exceeds the Revised estimate for the current year by R1 99 lakhs. The grants are generally based on the sanctioned scale of establishments, the probable jail population, the cost of dietary and the requirements for raw materials. Special provision has been made in Bengal for the improvement and stimulation of industries in the jails in the eastern districts; while in the Punjab due allowance has been made for the conversion of the district jails at Rohtak and Jhang into subsidiary jails.

Budget, 1913-14.

104. Of the figures shown against Delhi about R·75 lakh in the current year and R1 lakh in 1913-14 represent additional expenditure required for the policing of the new Imperial Capital. Excluding the Delhi figures, the expenditure in 1912-13 is expected to fall short of the Budget estimate by R·95 lakh owing chiefly to lapses in the allotments for police reforms in Baluchistan and the North-West Frontier Province; while the increase of R4·33 lakhs in the Budget for 1913-14 over the Revised estimate for the current year is mainly due to full provision for the re-organisation of the police in Baluchistan and for the conversion of the border military police in the North-West Frontier Province into frontier constabulary, in accordance with schemes which have been recently sanctioned by the Secretary of State.

Revised, 1912-13.

105. The total expenditure in 1912-13 is expected to fall short of the Budget provision by R2 lakhs only. There is a saving of R4 45 lakhs in Bengal owing to the entire or partial lapse of the lump provisions for the strengthening of the Calcutta city police, the re-organisation of the river police in Eastern Bengal and other police reforms; of R2 48 lakhs in the United Provinces due to a partial utilisation of certain lump allotments for police reforms; and of R1 26 lakhs in Assam owing to the non-utilisation of lump provisions for the re-organisation of the river and other police In the Punjab also, there will be a small lapse, a saving of about a lakh caused by the transfer of Delhi being partly counterbalanced by increased expenditure on the maintenance of municipal police buildings On the other hand, there will be a large increase of R4 39 lakhs in Madras in connection with the payment of grain compensation allowance and more rapid progress with the recruitment of additional constables, and of R1·30 lakhs in Burma as the net result of higher cost of punitive police and smaller outlay on the purchase of supplies for the military police; while unimportant excesses over Budget grants are also expected in Bombay, Bihar and Orissa and the Central Provinces.

Budget, 1913-14.

106. The Budget estimate for 1913-14 is taken at R36 91 lakhs higher than the Revised for the current year. A considerable increase of R14 41 lakhs is expected in the United Provinces chiefly in consequence of lump provisions of R11·02 lakhs for the payment from Provincial revenues of village police in Oudh and Gorakhpur, of R3·43 lakhs for the conversion into regular constabulary of the village police in Act XX towns (which is partly counterbalanced by a saving of R1·65 lakhs in the police grants now made to the towns), and of R1·15 lakhs for expenditure in connection with the registration and better control of criminal tribes Provision for the full cost of the police reforms already introduced, as well as for the introduction of further reform measures has been made in all the provinces; but in Madras and Bombay the resultant growth in expenditure is obscured by smaller allowance for grain compensation and other indirect famine charges.

Revised, 1912-13.

Budget, 1913-14.

108 The increase of R4·20 lakhs over the Budget estimate in the current year is mainly due to higher recoveries on account of punitive police employed in certain tracts in Burma, Bengal, Bihar and the Punjab. These special receipts are expected to fall off in the ensuing year; and this accounts for the decrease of R1·88 lakhs in the Budget of 1913-14 as compared with the Revised estimate for the current year.

Revised, 1912-13.

109. The increase of R1·52 lakhs in the expenditure in 1912-13 over the Budget provision is expected mostly in Bengal and will result from higher charges of pilot establishments necessitated by the briskness of trade and from the postponement of certain recoveries in connection with the agency for Government consignments. The total Budget for 1913-14 is R1·98 lakhs higher than the Revised estimate for the current year, mainly in consequence of provision in Bombay for the construction of two additional lights off the Sind Coast.

111 Excluding the Delhi figures the Revised estimate for 1912 13 is R72 29 lakhs less than the Budget while the Budget for 1913 14 exceeds the Revised estimate for the current year by R1 13 lakhs The large decrease in the current year is nominal and is due to the assignment to the Governments of the major provinces of the bulk of the lump grants aggregating R80 lakhs for which provision was made in the Budget under this head The portion of the grants so assigned amounts to R73 66 lakhs, and only R6 34 lakhs have been allotted to the minor administrations viz, R3 84 lakhs from the residue of the recurring grant of R60 lakhs, and R2 50 from the non recurring grant of R65 lakhs The former sum will be devoted mostly to the promotion of primary and secondary education, while of the latter, R2 lakhs have been given to the Islamia College at Peshawar and the remainder will be spent mainly on hostels The Imperial expenditure in 1912 13 excluding Delhi will thus exceed by R1 87 lakhs the allotments available for the purpose either from specific provisions made in the Budget or from the special grants mentioned above The excess is mainly due to higher demands for primary schools in the North-West Frontier Province and Coorg and a special grant has been given recently to meet the expenditure Revised 1912 13

112 The increase of R4 13 lakhs in the Imperial expenditure in 1913 14 mentioned in the preceding paragraph is due to provision under this head of R6 65 lakhs out of the additional recurring grant of R55 lakhs from Imperial revenues for the promotion of education (vide paragraph 19) The sum has either been allotted to the minor administrations or else is being held in reserve for future distribution and it is partially obscured by the absence of the non-recurring Imperial outlay incurred in the current year Budget 1913 14

113 The total expenditure in 1912 13 is expected to exceed the Budget provision by R 34 lakh The figures under this head, however are not a complete index to the progress made by the various Local Governments with outlay on the promotion and reform of education out of the special Imperial grants—recurring and non recurring—given in recent years, for a considerable portion of the expenditure is incurred in the Public Works Department on buildings etc and is recorded in the accounts under 45—Civil Works The Budget estimate for the current year provided for an expenditure of R23 50 lakhs out of the recurring assignments amounting to R55 96 lakhs which have already been sanctioned and of R47 50 lakhs out of non recurring grants of previous years or in the aggregate R71 lakhs It is now expected that R40 82 lakhs of the recurring grant will be spent during the year and R67 22 lakhs against the non recurring The total expenditure in 1912 13 from special Imperial grants of both classes will then amount to R108 04 lakhs of which R75 23 lakhs will be recorded under '22—Education and the remaining R32 81 lakhs under other heads of account mostly Civil Works Thus there is an excess of R4 23 lakhs (R75 23—R71 00 lakhs) in expenditure from special grants, and as the aggregate expenditure under the head is R 34 lakh more than the Budget provision, there will apparently be a lapse of about R4 lakhs only in the ordinary grants distributed among the nine provinces Revised 1912 13

114 The Budget estimate of 1913 14 provides for a very considerable advance of R218 47 lakhs over the Revised estimate for 1912 13 Of this increase R186 48 lakhs will be financed from the special contributions made from Imperial revenues The outlay chargeable to Education from the grants already distributed among provincial Governments will be higher by R32 48 lakhs than the similar expenditure in the current year, while special allotments to the extent of R154 lakhs will be made from the additional grants which it is now proposed to give, the whole of the recurring grants and about one third of the non-recurring ones being made available for expenditure in 1913-14 Even so, there will remain a balance of R31 99 lakhs representing the contribution made from the growth of Provincial revenues to foster the progress of education Provision has been made in every province for increased expenditure on scholarships and stipends educational grants to local bodies, and the Budget 1913 14 strengthening and improvement of the inspecting and teaching staff. In the Central Provinces, lump allotments have been entered for the taking over by Government of the Morris College, Nagpur, and of certain anglo-vernacular schools and for the improvement of selected vernacular schools In the other provinces the following additions have been made to the provincial budgets with reference to the recommendations of the respective Finance Committees

	R
Assam	1 58 lakhs,	mainly for additional grants-in-aid and scholarships, the establishment of a Madrassa at Sylhet, and the improvement of the Cotton College
Bengal	73 lakh,	mainly for reform of the system of training in the eastern districts, taking over by Government of certain industrial schools and revision of pay of Sub-Inspectors of schools
Bihar and Orissa . .	42 „	mainly for additional grants in aid
United Provinces . .	1 67 lakhs,	mainly for increased educational grants to local bodies
Punjab . . .	2 77 „	mainly for the taking over by Government of the Lawrence School, Murree equipment and staff of the Mayo School of Art, revision of the subordinate educational service, additional subordinate inspecting staff, and a new school at Lyallpore
Madras .	3 98 ,	mainly for grants to aided secondary and other schools for equipment subsidies to local bodies for equipment of elementary schools, equipment of training schools for masters, opening of additional girls schools, and development of the College of Engineering
Bombay	2 31 ,	mainly for the opening of new primary schools and the improvement of primary education

115 The unspent balance of the various Imperial grants already made will stand at R68 59 lakhs at the end of the current year, viz, R15 14 lakhs of the recurring grant and R53 45 lakhs of the non-recurring one The Local Governments propose to spend in 1913-14 R40 98 lakhs of the latter sum, as well as R11 66 lakhs of the former, in addition to the recurring grant of R55 96 lakhs for next year The total outlay from the old grants will thus amount to R108·60 lakhs, of which the whole excepting a small sum of R 89 lakh has been provided under "22—Education" The unspent balance of the old grants at the close of next year will stand at R15 95 lakhs only

116 The following statement gives the distribution among the provinces of the provision of R107 71 lakhs under this head mentioned above and of the allotments aggregating 154 lakhs entered in next year's Budget for expenditure from the additional Imperial grants - non recurring and recurring—which it is now proposed to make

119. The figures shown against Delhi in the two years are made up as follows :—

	Revised, 1912-13.	Budget, 1913-14.
(1) Ordinary expenditure on services taken over from the Punjab . . .	·35	·55
(2) Additional grant for hospital and conservancy charges necessitated by the move of the offices of the Government of India to Delhi . . .	...	·80
(3) Special non-recurring contribution to the Municipality for the improvement of sanitation . . .	5·00	...
(4) Special recurring allotment in aid of sanitary expenditure, representing Delhi's share of the Imperial sanitation grant of R45 lakhs . .	...	·50
	5·35	1·85

(ii) Other Provinces.

Revised, 1912-13.

120. Excluding the Delhi figures, the Revised estimate for 1912-13 exceeds the Budget by R5·61 lakhs. The latter, however, included a reserve provision of R2 30 lakhs for contributions to Provincial Governments for the improvement of sanitary services. These contributions have been paid during the year where necessary, by assignments of Imperial land revenue; and the true increase in expenditure recorded under this head in 1912-13 over the Budget provision therefore amounts to R7·91 lakhs. This excess is more than accounted for by the following special grants not included in the Budget, which have been given to municipalities and other local bodies in minor administrations for non-recurring outlay on the improvement of sanitation.

Bangalore	4·00 lakhs.
Peshawar	2·00 „
Indore	2·00 „
Quetta	·50 „
Coorg	·25 „
	8·75 „

On the other hand there will be a lapse of R·84 lakh in the ordinary grants for plague and other expenditure.

Budget, 1913-14.

121. The Budget estimate for 1913-14 is R1·37 lakhs less than the Revised estimate for the current year. The latter, however, includes non-recurring expenditure amounting to R10·77 lakhs made up of R8·75 lakhs mentioned above and R2 02 lakhs in Ajmer, Coorg and Bangalore which were provided in the current year's Budget. The real increase in next year's grant over the Revised estimate for 1912-13 thus amounts to R9 40 lakhs. Nearly the whole of this excess is accounted for by the provision of R9·25 lakhs for the portions of the special Imperial appropriations for sanitation and medical relief (vide paragraphs 18 and 24) which will be utilised for research or allotted to minor administrations, or else held in reserve for future disposal. The distribution of this amount among the minor administrations, etc., is given below:

(1) Allotments out of the recurring Imperial grant of R45 lakhs for sanitation:—

	Lakhs of R
North-West Frontier Province	·50
Bangalore	·50
Research fund	5·00
Reserve	2·00

(2) Allotments out of the non-recurring Imperial grant of R10 lakhs for hospitals, etc.:—

North-West Frontier Province	·25
Reserve	1·00
		1·25

(b) Provincial.

Revised, 1912-13.

122. The Budget estimate for the current year included special allotments under this head aggregating about R75½ lakhs for outlay from the non-recurring Imperial grants made in 1910-11 and 1911-12 for sanitary and other medical expenditure Out of these allotments R66 lakhs are expected to be spent in 1912-13; but only about R26 lakhs of the outlay will be recorded under this head, the balance being shown under Civil Works. This explains the bulk of the decrease of R59·83 lakhs in the Revised estimate as compared with the Budget The balance is mainly due to lapses in the grants for ordinary and plague expenditure in several provinces, the non-utilisation of the provision of R2 lakhs made in Madras for contribution to the Edward VII Memorial Fund Committee in connection with the construction of a hospital and sanatorium for consumptives, the record under Civil Works of a portion of the expenditure in connection with special sanitation schemes in Bombay for which provision was made in the Budget under the Medical head, and the partial utilisation of the grant for the development of the Grant Medical College in the same province.

Budget, 1913-14.

123. The Budget estimate for 1913-14 exceeds the Revised for the current year by no less than R102 66 lakhs. The latter, however, includes about R26 lakhs of expenditure out of certain special Imperial grants given in 1910-11 and 1911-12 while only R13 lakhs on this account remain to be incurred under this head in 1913-14. The real increase in expenditure in 1913-14 over that in the current year will thus amount to R115¾ lakhs Of this excess about R4 lakhs are explained by the provision under this head in Bombay of the full amount of the recurring Imperial contribution of R4·5 lakhs made in 1908-09 for special sanitation schemes; and R95¼ lakhs represent allotments made out of (1) the non-recurring Imperial subvention of R150 lakhs for sanitation in 1912-13, (2) the recurring Imperial subvention of R36·50 lakhs in 1913-14 for the same purpose and (3) the non-recurring Imperial subvention in 1913-14 for hospitals and medical education (vide paragraphs 18, 21 and 24). The whole of the last two subventions, as well as one-third of the first subvention, have been made available for expenditure in 1913-14, the sums added under this head to the Budget estimates of the several provinces being as shown below.

124 The balance of the increase in the Budget estimate for 1913 14 over the Revised for the current year, amounting to R16¼ lakhs, represents the contribution from provincial resources proper for the development of the various beneficial services whose charges are recorded under this head Provision has generally been made for the full cost of sanctioned establishments, and for increased expenditure on medical colleges, hospitals and dispensaries as well as on measures for the prevention of plague and malaria The Madras Budget again provides for the payment of the contribution of R2 lakhs to the Edward VII Memorial Committee mentioned above, while in the Central Provinces a special allotment has been made for a medical school at Nagpur

125 The following table shows the progress made by the Provincial Governments in utilising the various non recurring grants made from Imperial revenues in 1910 11 and 1911 12 in aid of sanitary and medical expenditure

127 The increase of R2 38 lakhs over the Budget estimate is due to the receipt of special contributions aggregating R1 49 lakhs in Bengal Bombay and Madras from the Indian Research Fund for anti-malarial expenditure, and to a general improvement in hospital receipts and medical college fees In the Budget of 1913-14, the absence of the special contributions obscures the provision for normal growth in some of the provinces

128. The Imperial outlay shown against "Other Provinces" consists of the charges of the Political Residency at Aden and certain other expenditure—mainly in connection with political refugees and State prisoners—in several provinces.

(a) Imperial.—India and England.

Revised, 1912-13.

129. The excess of R3·45 lakhs over the Budget provision in 1912-13 is chiefly due to India's share of certain special expenditure in Muscat and Persia in connection with the suppression of the arms traffic and the buoying and lighting of the Persian Gulf, and to charges in connection with the State entry of His Excellency the Viceroy into Delhi. An increase of R1·28 lakhs in the cost of the political agencies in Native States owing mainly to higher payment of salaries in accordance with the scheme for the re-organisation of the Indian Political Department will be met by savings on this account as well as in the charges of frontier militia in the North-West Frontier Province. The Budget estimate for 1913-14 is R5·93 lakhs higher than the Revised estimate for the current year, in spite of the absence of the expenditure incurred in 1912-13 in connection with the State entry at Delhi, the excess being due to provision for increased expenditure in Muscat and Persia on the special services mentioned above, as well as for a full year's charges of the Kurram and Waziristan militia, and of the Zhob militia and certain district levies in Baluchistan, in accordance with schemes of re-organisation which have been recently sanctioned.

Budget, 1913-14.

(b) Provincial.

Revised, 1912-13.

130. The increase of R8·06 lakhs in the Revised over the Budget estimate for the current year is caused wholly by special expenditure in Burma and Assam on political missions and surveys in the north-east frontier and for arrangements made for the administration and proper control of the Assam frontier. The further growth of expenditure amounting to R5·47 lakhs which has been provided in the Budget of 1913-14, arises chiefly from similar causes. Next year's outlay in Burma on this account is expected to be over R2 lakhs less than in the current year; but on the other hand, necessary allotments have been made in Assam for a full year's cost of the frontier agencies as well as for a continuance of the survey and exploration operations As has been already mentioned in paragraphs 15 and 25, Imperial subventions have been given to both the Provinical Governments to compensate them for the special expenditure for which no provision has been made in their financial settlements. The increased provision of R1·02 lakhs in the Bombay Budget for 1913-14 is mainly due to provision for the re-organisation of the Bombay Political Department

EXPENDITURE.

131. The figures shown against "Other Provinces," in the table at page 78 represent expenditure incurred in the several provinces in connection with ethnographical surveys, census operations, and the pay and allowances of officers borne on the cadre of the Imperial Civil Veterinary Department, as well as the cost of the Archæological Department in Burma.

(a) Imperial—India and England.

132. The decrease of R4·57 lakhs in the Revised estimate for 1912-13 as compared with the Budget is caused by the employment of survey detachments on frontier explorations, the cost of which is debited under the Political head, as well as by ordinary lapses in grants of the Survey of India, the Imperial Veterinary and certain other Departments. The larger saving in the Budget grant shown against "India General" in the table on page 78 and the considerable excess over the grant for "Other provinces" are due firstly to the transfer from the "India" books to those of the Accountant General, Punjab, of the charges of the Hissar Cattle Farm and of the veterinary officer employed in investigating camel diseases consequent on the transfer of their control to the Punjab Government; and secondly to allotments having been made for expenditure in the various provinces from the lump provision for census charges in the "India" estimates. The transactions of the Hissar farm will continue to be treated as Imperial in the current year; but from 1913-14 the charges exclusive of the salaries of Imperial veterinary officers, as well as the receipts, will become Provincial.

Budget, 1913-14.

133. The total Budget estimate for 1913-14 is higher than the Revised for the current year by R5 38 lakhs; and if allowance is made for the saving of R1 93 lakhs in census charges and for the transfer to the Provincial account of R1 31 lakhs of the expenditure of the Hissar Cattle Farm the true increase amounts to R8·62 lakhs. Of this excess, R3·24 lakhs are expected in the charges of the Survey Department owing to the return of the survey detachments from frontier explorations and to full provision for the re-organisation of the Provincial Service which has been recently sanctioned by the Secretary of State; while R2 90 lakhs represent the portion of the special grant for agriculture and allied objects which will be devoted to Imperial outlay under this head. Otherwise, the grants of the various departments have been generally fixed with reference to normal operations and the sanctioned scale of establishments. R·40 lakh of the special grant has been allotted to the Meteorological Department and the balance of R2 50 lakhs will be spent on the Pusa Institute and on bacteriological laboratories.

(b) Provincial.

Revised, 1912-13.

134. The Budget estimate for the current year provided for an outlay of R14 lakhs out of the non-recurring Imperial grants of R20 lakhs for agriculture and allied objects and of 2 lakhs for the bacteriological institute in Burma made in 1911-12. The probable expenditure of Local Governments on this account in 1912-13 is likely to amount to R14·15 lakhs, as the higher outlay in Bengal and Madras on the purchase of quinine will more than cover the lapses in other provinces. Only R9·53 lakhs of the expenditure will however be recorded under this head, the balance being recorded under Forests (R2·34 lakhs), Medical (R·27 lakh) and Civil Works (R2·01 lakhs). This mainly explains the decrease of R5 32 lakhs in the Revised estimate as compared with the Budget, the remainder being due to ordinary lapses in grants.

Budget, 1913-14.

135. The total Budget for next year is R14 05 lakhs higher than the Revised estimate of 1912-13. An expenditure of R6 30 lakhs is expected to be incurred in 1913-14 out of the balance of the special Imperial grants mentioned above, of which R4·71 lakhs will be recorded under this head. Provision has also been made for an outlay of R5·85 lakhs out of the non-recurring Imperial grants for the improvement of agriculture which will be given in 1913-14; and R1·31 lakhs of the increase in the Punjab represent charges of the Hissar cattle farm which will be met from Imperial revenue surrendered to the Provincial Government. The total expenditure under this head met from special Imperial grants in next year's Budget thus amounts to R11·90 lakhs against a similar expenditure of R9·53 lakhs in the current year; and the increased outlay contemplated from Provincial resources proper amounts to no less than R11·68 lakhs Substantial additions to the grants for the development of the agricultural and veterinary departments have been provided in every province. Special allotments of R1 68 lakhs have been made in Bombay for the establishment of two new seed farms, and of R1·09 lakhs in the United Provinces for a seed and three cane-sugar farms

REVENUE.

(a) Imperial.

Revised, 1912-13.

136. The decline of R·45 lakh expected in the receipts in the current year is caused by the discontinuance of recoveries from the Military Department for serum supplied from the Muktesar laboratory. The larger decrease shown against India in the table on page 78 and the entry against the Punjab arise in connection with the transfer of the Hissar farm to the control of the Punjab Government. The further loss of R·63 lakh in the Imperial revenue in 1913-14 is due to the transfer to the Provincial account of the receipts in connection with this farm.

Budget, 1913-14.

(b) Provincial.

Revised, 1912-13.

137. The decrease of R1·11 lakhs in the revenue in 1912-13 as compared with the Budget estimate is due almost wholly to the indents for the supply of quinine from the Cinchona Department in Bengal being much less than had been anticipated. Budget for 1913-14 provides for normal growth in receipts in every province, as well as for the credit to the Provincial account of the receipts of the Hissar farm; but in Bengal a further decline has been allowed for in the receipts of the cinchona plantations.

140. The figures of Imperial revenue shown against "Other Provinces" represent the receipts of certain abolished funds, the assets and liabilities of which were taken over by the Government, as well as the subscriptions paid by members of the Indian Civil Service for securing certain pensionary benefits for their families. The charges on account of such pensions as well as of the pensions of the abolished funds are recorded in the accounts as Imperial expenditure.

EXPENDITURE.

Revised, 1912-13.

141. The growth in the pension charges in 1912-13, both in India and in England, has exceeded the provision made on this account in the Budget, a part of the increase being caused by a larger demand for commutation of pensions.

Budget, 1913-14.

The estimates for next year provide for the normal growth of the retired list and for the grant of pensions and gratuities to discharged officers and men of the disbanded Border Military Police in the North-West Frontier Province.

REVENUE.

142. The variations in the figures are unimportant and call for no remark.

EXPENDITURE.

Revised, 1912-13. 143 The total expenditure on stationery and printing—Imperial and Provincial—in 1912-13, exclusive of the charges of the commercial departments, shows a satisfactory decrease of R1 18 lakhs (£7,900) as compared with the Budget estimate, while a further decline of R·76 lakh (£5,100) is anticipated in 1913-14 The Imperial outlay in the current year, in both India and England, will fall short of the Budget provision by R3 36 lakhs in spite of an increase of R1 06 lakhs in the charges of the Government of India presses caused mainly by the transfer of a portion of the Calcutta Press to Delhi; and Budget, 1913-14. the Budget for 1913-14 provides for a further decrease of R 55 lakh

Revised, 1912-13. 144 The Provincial expenditure in 1912-13 will exceed the Budget grant by R2·18 lakhs, a large excess of R3 80 lakhs in Madras mainly in connection with the purchase of the Lawrence Asylum press being partly counterbalanced by savings in Bombay and some other provinces. The large increase over the Budget provision shown against Bengal in the table at page 85 and the decrease shown against Bihar and Orissa are nominal and are caused by the printing of forms for the latter province by the former, payment for which is made by a transfer adjustment through Land Revenue. The total provision Budget, 1913-14. for Provincial expenditure in 1913-14 is R 22 lakh less than the Revised estimate for 1912-13, the allowance for normal growth in most of the provinces being counterbalanced by the absence of the special expenditure which will be incurred in Madras during the current year.

REVENUE.

145 The figures show little variation and call for no remark. The Imperial revenue shown against "Other provinces" represents recovery of the value of stationery supplied to railways, municipalities and other local bodies.

146 The accounts of the Government of India are prepared on a sterling basis, the rupee transactions in India being converted into pounds at the rate of R15=£1 and then added to the sterling transactions in England; and the comparatively small sums which have to be brought to account owing to the fact that the remittances to defray the net expenditure in England are not effected at exactly sixteen pence to the rupee are shown under this head

147 In the current year the average rate to be obtained on the net remittance of funds from India to England is estimated at £1=R14 944, and there is accordingly a gain of R16 39 lakhs under this head

Budget, 1913-14.

In the Budget estimate for next year, credit has been taken for a moderate receipt of R5 lakhs.

148. Charges in connection with the remittance of Government treasure are Imperial in all provinces; so is the discount paid, or the premium levied, in connection with the sale of bills at treasuries and currency offices to facilitate trade remittances of funds. The only other important items of Imperial revenue realised or expenditure incurred in the various provinces under this head are those of an extraordinary character exceeding R10,000 in amount.

EXPENDITURE.

Revised, 1912-13.

149. The Revised estimate for 1912-13 is only R 19 lakh less than the Budget. The bulk of the reserve provision of R5 lakhs made in the latter under this head for unforeseen charges, has been appropriated to meet necessary and sanctioned outlay, mostly under other heads of account; but the resultant decrease under this head is almost wholly counterbalanced by an excess expenditure of R2·34 lakhs on the remittance of Government funds, caused by the heavy demand for rupees, and by the charges of the Public Service Commission which are expected to amount to R1·79 lakhs.

Budget, 1913-14.

150. The Budget estimate for 1913-14 provides for normal charges, for a full year's cost of the Public Service Commission (R3 30 lakhs), as well as for a reserve allotment of R10 lakhs for unforeseen expenditure. It exceeds the Revised estimate for the current year by R9·65 lakhs, the increase in the expenditure of the Public Service Commission being nearly counterbalanced by an anticipated reduction in the remittance charges.

(b) India—Provincial.

151. The total Revised estimate for 1912-13 does not differ materially from the Budget provision There is a large decrease of R2·56 lakhs in Bengal, in spite of a lump entry of R1·50 lakhs to meet the cost of grain compensation allowances to menial servants, caused by the record under other heads of account, of expenditure incurred from certain reserve and other provisions which were made in the Budget under this head. But on the other hand, there is an increase of R1 23 lakhs in Madras, mainly in connection with the charges of certain commissions of enquiry; of R1 01 lakhs in the Punjab owing to the write-off of the balance of a loan given to the late Dehra Ghazi Khan municipality; and of R·54 lakh in Bombay caused by the grant of special contributions to local funds in aid of famine relief expenditure The variations in the other provinces are of less importance and call for no remark

Budget, 1913-14.

152 The total Budget for 1913-14 is R3 87 lakhs higher than the Revised estimate for the current year. There is an increase of R3 96 lakhs in Bengal caused by a higher provision for grain compensation allowance and a reserve grant of R2 5 lakhs. Increases of smaller magnitude appear in the estimates of some of the other provinces. But on the other hand, there will be a decrease in expenditure in Madras, Bombay and the Punjab owing to the absence of the special items included in the Revised estimate of the current year. The decrease in the last named province would have been greater but for a reserve provision of R1 lakh for unforeseen expenditure.

(c) England.

Revised, 1912-13.

153 The increase of £5,900 in the current year over the Budget estimate occurs chiefly in the miscellaneous charges connected with the supply of stores to India The further increase of £11,100 in the Budget estimate for 1913-14 is mainly due to a provision of £10,500 for the charges of the Public Service Commission.

Budget, 1913-14.

(a) India—Imperial.

Revised, 1912-13.

154. The increase of R3·78 lakhs in the Revised estimate for 1912-13 over the Budget is due to higher receipts from premia on bills, the demand for which has been stimulated by the activity of trade, and to special receipts from

Budget, 1913-14. various sources. The Budget for 1913-14 is taken at R1·72 lakhs less than the Revised estimate for the current year Provision has been made for normal receipts only and allowance has been made for the discontinuance of the twenty per cent contributions on the land cess hitherto recovered from rural boards in the North-West Frontier Province.

(b) India—Provincial

Revised, 1912-13 155. The revenue in 1912-13 is expected to exceed the Budget by R3 76 lakhs. The bulk of the improvement will be caused by larger credits on account of unclaimed deposits mostly in Bengal, and by special receipts from sale of land in the Punjab as well as from certain other sources. The absence of Budget, 1913-14. these abnormal receipts and the discontinuance of the twenty per cent. contribution from rural boards in the Punjab account for the decrease of R7·15 lakhs in the Budget for next year as compared with the Revised estimate for 1912-13.

(c) England.

Revised, 1912-13 156 The Revised estimate for 1911-12 does not differ materially from the Budget The increase in 1913-14 is due to a special receipt in respect of Budget, 1913-14. marine insurance and to higher receipts on account of diplomatic and consular services in Persia

Revised, 1912-13.

157. The Revised estimate for the current year shows an outlay of R29·30 lakhs under the head "Famine Relief" against a Budget provision of R20 02 lakhs. The bulk of the expenditure occurs in Bombay (viz, R28 40 lakhs), where relief operations have continued throughout the year in the northern districts and a payment of about R4 lakhs has been made to railways in connection with concession rates charged on the carriage of fodder A small amount of expenditure will also be incurred in the United Provinces on account of relief operations in the Mirzapur district The amount available for famine insurance accordingly amounts to R120 70 lakhs, of which R68 52 lakhs will be spent on Protective works and R52 18 lakhs appropriated for the reduction or avoidance of debt

Budget, 1913-14.

158 In the Budget estimate for 1913-14 provision has been made as usual for a total grant of R150 lakhs under this group head A moiety of this sum will be allotted for the construction of Protective works Out of the other moiety R6 99 lakhs will be required for actual famine relief expenditure, in the Ahmednagar district of Bombay (R4 00 lakhs), the Mirzapur district of the United Provinces (R1 99 lakhs) and in Rajputana (R1 lakh); and the remainder, viz, R68 01 lakhs, will be utilised for the avoidance of debt Of the last-named sum, R37 50 lakhs appear in the Provincial section of the estimates as a result of the arrangements explained in the Financial Statement for 1907-08

CONSTRUCTION OF PROTECTIVE RAILWAYS

159. The Revised estimate for 1912-13 shows a petty excess over the Budget grant The whole of the grant for Protective Railways in 1913-14 will again be spent on outlay on the Dharmapuri-Hosur extension of the Morappur-Dharmapuri Railway in the Madras Presidency.

CONSTRUCTION OF PROTECTIVE IRRIGATION WORKS.

Revised, 1912-13.

160 In the Budget estimate for 1912-13 a total allotment of R75 lakhs was made for outlay on Protective Irrigation works Of this sum R68 5 lakhs represented the amount available from the Famine Insurance grant for this purpose, and the balance of R6 5 lakhs was the supplementary provision made from the general resources of Government to foster the rapid development of this important class of works The latter provision was shown under the separate head opened in the Irrigation section of the estimates. The probable expenditure, according to the Revised estimate, will, however, amount

Budget, 1913-14. to R61 93 lakhs only, chiefly in consequence of slow progress of work on the Tandula canal in the Central Provinces, and the Gangao dam in the United Provinces The whole of this outlay will appear in the Famine Relief and Insurance section of the accounts, and the whole of the grant (R6 5 lakhs) provided in the Irrigation section will lapse.

161. In the Budget estimate for 1913-14 the total allotment for Protective Irrigation works amounts to R90 lakhs, of which R73·71 lakhs represent the amount available from the Famine Insurance grant for this purpose. The balance, viz, R16 29 lakhs, has been provided under the special head in the Irrigation section of the estimates. The distribution of the total sum of R90 lakhs is given in the table below:

Gross Receipts

164 In view of the phenomenal growth of Gross Receipts of State Railways in 1911-12, and of the fact that a considerable portion of it was contributed by the specially favourable traffic conditions of the year, the Budget estimate for 1912-13 was deliberately taken at a moderate figure of about R48·85 crores. The traffic returns have again far outrun anticipations and the receipts are now expected to amount to about R55 45 crores or R6·60 crores more than the Budget estimate. The greater portion of the increase has already been earned The improvement is due to a continuance of prosperous conditions both of trade and agriculture, which has led to an exceptionally heavy traffic in wheat, grain, and cotton; but a substantial portion of the growth is also contributed by the coaching traffic which has been stimulated by the activity of business and the marriages and pilgrimages of an auspicious Hindu year All the principal lines share in this improvement. More than half of it is obtained naturally from the three lines, viz, the East Indian, Great Indian Peninsula, and North-Western Railways, which traverse the tracts where the bulk of the exportable produce is grown. Important increases occur also on the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway in consequence of a brisk coaching traffic and heavy bookings of cotton, grain and fodder; on the Bengal-Nagpur Railway due to an exceptionally heavy pilgrim traffic to Puri and to larger transport of coal and other goods; on the Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway due to additional mileage opened during the year and to heavy traffic in wheat and grain; on the Madras and Southern Mahratta and South Indian Railways owing to a general development of both the passenger and the goods traffic; and on the Eastern Bengal Railway caused by a brisker movement of jute

Working Expenses

165. The Revised estimate of Working Expenses exceeds the Budget grant by R90 lakhs The increase is due to the heavier traffic handled and also to larger expenditure on renewals of permanent-way and rolling-stock than was anticipated in the Budget

Payment of Surplus profits, etc

166 The increase of R36 52 lakhs in the provision for the payment of surplus profits to Companies is a concomitant of the improvement in the net revenue.

Budget, 1913-14.
Gross Receipts

167 The Budget estimate of Gross Receipts in 1913-14 is taken at C32 lakhs less than the Revised estimate of 1912-13. It is considered prudent, in view of the heavy growth which has taken place in the revenue in the current year and of the falling-off in the earnings of the North-Western Railway as indicated in the latest traffic returns, to provide for a moderate revenue in the coming year.

Working Expenses

168. The grant for Working Expenses in 1913-14 exceeds the Revised estimate for the current year by R82 49 lakhs. The increase is due to enhanced provision for necessary renewals of permanent-way and rolling-stock and to the continued rise in the price of coal On the other hand, the Budget estimate allows for a decrease of R38·49 lakhs in the payment of Surplus profits to Companies, etc, in view of the lower estimate of net earnings in the coming year and of the payment in 1913-14 of surplus profits for nine months, and in some cases for only three months, consequent on the adoption of the financial in place of the calendar year for the distribution.

Payment of Surplus profits, etc

INTEREST CHARGES.

Revised, 1912-13

169. The rise in expenditure in 1912-13, as compared with the Budget estimate, under Interest on Debt is due to variation in the rate of interest charged on certain loan funds (vide paragraph 77) as well as to an increase in the Capital outlay. The saving in Interest on Capital deposited by Companies is due to failure to issue railway debentures to the extent anticipated in the Budget, while the decrease in Interest chargeable against Companies on advances is caused by lapses in capital grants.

170. The increase in the total interest charge in 1913-14 is a result of the growth in the capital cost of Railways. Budget, 1913-14.

OTHER RECEIPTS.

171. The receipts shown under this head represent recoveries from the Travancore Durbar of its share of the loss on the Travancore branch of the South Indian Railway; the Government share of the surplus profits of the Rohilkhand-Kumaon, Southern Punjab and Amritsar-Patti Railways payable under the terms of their respective contracts; dividends on certain shares of the Ahmedabad-Dholka Railway allotted to the Government in repayment of expenditure incurred by it on behalf of the Railway; and sale-proceeds of land relinquished by Railway Companies. The improvement of R3 10 lakhs (£20,700) in the receipts in the current year over the Budget estimate and the further increase of R1 92 lakhs (£12,800) provided in the Budget of 1913-14 occur mainly in the Government share of the surplus profits of the Southern Punjab Railway.

OTHER CHARGES

172. These consist of cost of land required by certain companies, the contracts with which provide for the free supply of all land wanted for the purposes of the railways undertaken by them, and of miscellaneous items such as surveys and controlling establishments (including the Railway Board) A share of the cost of control is charged to the working expenses of each railway company and the recoveries thus made are adjusted by deduction from the miscellaneous expenditure The details are:

Land—A large lapse of R10 36 lakhs is expected in the Imperial Budget grant for the current year mainly in the provision for the Jullundur-Doab, Mandra-Bhon and Tiruturaipundi-Vedaraniam Railways The principal allotments made in 1913-14 are for the Bengal and North-Western, Darjeeling-Himalayan Extension, Vishnupur-Burdwan and Tiruturaipundi-Vedaraniam Railways

Miscellaneous Expenditure.—The increase of R 87 lakh in the Revised estimate for 1912-13 as compared with the Budget is due to the inception of certain surveys for which no provision was made in the Budget. The Budget for 1913-14 is made up as follows:— Revised 1912-13. Budget, 1913-14.

Allotment for Surveys	8,00,000
Charges of the Railway Board and other establishments	16,08,000
Deduct—Recoveries from Railway Companies on account of cost of supervision	16,50,000

General Result

Major Irrigation

173 Taking India as a whole, the net financial result of the working of Major Irrigation works in 1912-13 will be better than the Budget forecast by £351,400 (R52 71 lakhs) There is a large improvement of R46 98 lakhs in the Direct Receipts and of R18 26 lakhs in the share of Land Revenue, but R12 53 lakhs of this are required to meet increase in expenditure. A small diminution of £54,000 (R8·09 lakhs) in the net profit is likely to take place next year Allowance has been made for an increase of R5·58 lakhs in the Gross Revenue; but this improvement will be more than counterbalanced by a higher provision of R3 04 lakhs for Working Expenses and a large growth of R10 69 lakhs in the interest charges in consequence of the considerable outlay now being incurred on new projects in the Punjab and elsewhere, the benefits of which will not be realised for some time to come The net result under Minor Irrigation works in 1912-13 is slightly better than the Budget estimate, owing to a small improvement in revenue and a considerable saving in expenditure; the estimate for next year provides for a further small growth in the receipts and for a much larger expenditure

Minor Irrigation

174 The figures for Land Revenue due to Irrigation have already been examined in paragraphs 10 and 11 along with those for Land Revenue proper. The details of the other heads are exhibited in the following tables.

DIRECT RECEIPTS.

Revised, 1912-13.

175 The total revenue in 1912-13 will exceed the Budget estimate by R 40 lakh, an improvement of R1 lakh in the North-West Frontier Province owing to an increase in the irrigated area being partly counterbalanced by unimportant shortages in collections in the other provinces The Budget estimate

Budget, 1913-14.

for 1913-14 is generally based on the prospects of rabi irrigation in the current year and a normal kharif irrigation in the ensuing year, and the total collections are taken at R 23 lakh higher than in 1912-13

(b) Divided and wholly Provincial.

Revised, 1912-13.

176 The total Revised estimate for 1912-13 shows a large increase of R46·58 lakhs over the Budget. The bulk of this improvement, viz, R43 18 lakhs, will occur in the Punjab where the progress made with the Triple Canal project is bringing new areas under irrigation A rise of R3 95 lakhs in the collections is also expected in the United Provinces, where insufficient rain has necessitated the irrigation of larger areas for the kharif The variations in the other provinces are unimportant and call for no remark.

Budget, 1913-14.

177 The total Budget for 1913-14 provides for a growth in the collections of R1·85 lakhs only The estimates are generally based on the demand for rabi irrigation in the current year and on normal requirements in connection with next year's kharif Provision for a large increase has been made in Bihar and Orissa, and in the United Provinces, the insufficiency of winter rains having stimulated the demand for canal water for the standing rabi crops; and also in Bombay owing to the opening of the Godavari left bank canal and the revision of rates on the Nira canal On the other hand, the revenue in the Punjab has been taken at R3 73 lakhs less than the current year's Revised, in view of the doubtful prospects on some of the canals and the possible need for remissions, and also of the gradual supersession of owner's rates on certain canals by consolidated land revenue assessments

WORKING EXPENSES.

(a) Imperial

Revised, 1912-13.

178 The total Revised estimate for 1912-13 falls short of the Budget provision by R1 29 lakhs The decrease is due to a lapse in the reserve provision, only a portion of which was utilised to push on work on the Kabul River and the Lower Swat canals In the Budget estimate for 1913-14 provision has been made for a reserve allotment of R1 15 lakhs and for higher outlay on the Imperial canals in the United Provinces But a large reduction is expected in the outlay on the canals in the North-West Frontier Province and the total Budget is only R 55 lakh higher than the Revised estimate for the current year.

Budget, 1913-14.

(b) Divided and wholly Provincial.

Revised, 1912-13.

179. The total expenditure in 1912-13 exceeds the Budget grant by R6 76 lakhs There is a large excess of R8 87 lakhs in the Punjab chiefly in consequence of higher outlay on special works and repairs on some of the canals, higher collection fees on the Upper Bari Doab canal and purchase of tramway plant for the head works of the Sirhind and Lower Chenab canals On the other hand, a considerable saving of R1 80 lakhs is expected in Madras owing mainly to want of labour and postponement of certain works for which provision was made in the Budget. The variations in the other provinces are unimportant and call for no remark.

Budget, 1913-14.

180 The estimates for 1913-14 provide generally for a normal scale of expenditure, and the total Budget exceeds the Revised estimate for 1912-13 by only R2·49 lakhs.

183 The total Revised estimate for 1912-13 exceeds the Budget by R1 21 lakhs mainly owing to larger collections in Bengal where the Madaripur Bhil route is now kept open to steamer traffic throughout the year consequent on the deepening of its channel In 1913-14 provision has generally been made for normal receipts, and the total budget does not differ materially from the Revised estimate of the current year

Revised, 1912-13.

EXPENDITURE.

(a) Imperial

184 The Budget estimate of the current year included the usual grant of R5 lakhs in aid of special expenditure as recommended by the recommendations of the Irrigation Commission and a reserve provision of R1 52 lakhs to meet unforeseen requirements R2 51 lakhs out of the special grant are being spent on the Nar Nallah scheme in Baluchistan, while R1 30 lakhs have been allotted to the Government of the United Provinces for tank restoration works and placed at its credit by an assignment of Land Revenue (vide paragraph 25). The balance of the special grant and the whole of the reserve provision will lapse Savings are also expected in almost every province in the allotment made in the Budget for expenditure on the minor irrigation and navigation works which are classed as wholly Imperial These causes account for the decrease of R5·03 lakhs in the Revised estimate of the current year as compared with the Budget

Revised, 1912-13.

185 The total Budget estimate for 1913-14 exceeds the Revised for 1912-13 by R4 00 lakhs Allowance has been made for the special grant of R5 lakhs and a reserve of R0 97 lakh; but no provision exists for the Nar Nallah scheme, as an allotment will be made for it later in the year from the special grant The decrease in the Indian outlay in the Punjab is counterbalanced by the provision for higher purchase of stores for this province in England

Budget, 1913-14.

(b) Divided and Provincial

186 The total expenditure in 1912-13 is likely to fall short of the Budget grant by R4·57 lakhs. There is a decrease of R3·58 lakhs in Madras owing to non-utilisation of a lump provision made in the Budget with reference to a resolution of the provincial Legislative Council, and to a slower progress on works; and of R1 lakh in the Central Provinces due to transfer of funds to Civil Works to meet the cost of certain irrigation buildings Lapses of smaller magnitude are expected in most other provinces In the United Provinces the outlay on tank restoration works mentioned above is partly obscured by a lapse in ordinary grants, and the total expenditure will exceed the Budget provision by R 95 lakh only

Revised, 1912-13.

187. The total Budget for 1913-14 exceeds the Revised estimate of the current year by R7 lakhs There is an increase of R3·24 lakhs in Madras chiefly in consequence of a larger provision for expenditure on works and the restoration of the lump provision mentioned above; of R2·67 lakhs in Bengal caused mainly by provision for higher outlay on the Madaripur Bhil scheme; and of R1 30 lakhs in Assam where a special allotment has been made for a snag boat In the Punjab also a special provision has been made for the Kahan hill torrent reservoir scheme But these excesses as well as increases of less importance in Burma Bombay and Bihar and Orissa are partly counterbalanced by a decrease of R1 76 lakhs in the United Provinces due mainly to the absence of expenditure incurred in the current year from the special Imperial subvention for tank works.

EXPENDITURE.

Revised, 1912-13.

190 The Civil Works expenditure of Delhi province proper in 1912-13 is likely to amount to R6 50 lakhs, exclusive of outlay on post and telegraph offices etc, which is chargeable under standing rules to the ordinary grant for Imperial Civil Works The amount is made up as follows :—

		Lakhs of Rs
Ordinary expenditure		1·07
Special expenditure on :—
(1) Buildings for additional police . .	1 24
(2) Improvements to roads, etc, inclusive of provision for a grant of R2 88 lakhs to the funds of the notified area for various public improvements . . .	3 81
(3) Preservation of antiquities	·33
		6 50

191 Excluding Delhi the total Revised estimate for the current year exceeds the Budget by R52 27 lakhs Of this increase, R17 lakhs represent outlay in connection with the temporary buildings required for the Government of India at Delhi : and the remainder is due to a higher payment of leave allowances in England and to certain pressing demands e g the purchase of a building for the Currency Office at Madras and the extension of the salt golahs at Sulkea, for which no provision was made in the Budget The main details of the expenditure of R 17 lakhs on Temporary Delhi in the current year are given below, the figures being in approximate lakhs :-

	Quarters for Indian clerks and press workmen .	7

192 In 1913-14 the total Imperial grant has been fixed at Rs 111·57 lakhs, exclusive of Rs. 3 53 lakhs allotted for petty expenditure incurred in the Civil Department in the several minor administrations, and of sums aggregating Rs. 46·30 lakhs to be spent by the administrations of North-West Frontier Province (Rs. 31·60 lakhs), Baluchistan (Rs. 8·20 lakhs) and Delhi (Rs. 6·50 lakhs). The purposes to which this grant of Rs. 111·57 lakhs will be applied are shown below:—

193. The following is a list of the new works and works in progress in which it is probable that allotments of Rupees one lakh or more will be made from the ordinary grant in the ensuing year:—

(b) India—Provincial.

Revised, 1912-13.

195. The total Revised estimate for 1912-13 exceeds the Budget provision by R24 94 lakhs. The increase is, however, nominal and is caused by the record under this head of a portion of the expenditure from the special Imperial grants for education, sanitation and other beneficial services, for which provision was made elsewhere in the Budget The total outlay of this class will amount to about R79 lakhs; and excluding this sum, the Revised estimate under Civil Woıks falls short of the Budget by about R54 lakhs. The real saving is larger, for a portion of the expenditure against some of the ordinary grants provided in the Budget under Education, Medical and other heads, is recorded in the accounts under Civil Works Considerable lapses in the grants provided under the latter head are expected in the Punjab (about R25 lakhs), where it will be impossible to push through the heavy programme of new roads and buildings contemplated in the Budget; in Bihar and Orissa (about R15 lakhs) mainly in the allotments for special works at Bankipur and Ranchi; in Bengal (about R10 lakhs) owing to non-utilisation of a lump provision of R3 61 lakhs for grants to district boards and slower progress of work on new buildings; in Madras (about R10 lakhs) where the allotments for new buildings and for water-supply and drainage schemes will not be fully utilised owing to delay in the preparation of proper estimates and in the acquisition of site, and to other reasons; and in Burma where the Local Government has decided to save for future expenditure R9½ lakhs of the special Kaperial grant given in 1911-12 for the development of communications In the United Provinces also, lapses of about R5 lakhs are expected mainly in the allotments for the Lucknow Medical College and Allahabad High Court buildings; but it is probable that the money will be utilised for other purposes. In Assam and Bombay alone tbeıe will be any real excess over the Budget grants. In the former province a vigorous programme for the improvement of communications has been started, while considerable outlay is also being incurred in connection with frontier roads. In Bombay an additional grant of R3 lakhs has been sanctioned for urgent minor works.

196. The table below compares the details of the grants for 1913-14 in the various provinces, so far as settled at present with the probable expenditure in the current year.

Budget, 1913-14.

197. Of the total Budget grant of R825 95 lakhs proposed for 1913-14 R33 lakhs represent the portion (viz., about one-third) of the discretionary grant of R100 lakhs from Imperial revenues (vide paragraph 23) which has been made available for expenditure in the ensuing year. Lump allotments have been added under this head as shown in the table in the preceding paragraph, from which each Local Government will be at perfect freedom to make necessary re-appropriations for any schemes to which it may decide to apply the funds placed at its disposal.

198 The total provision for grants to Local Boards and Municipalities in 1913-14 is R4 5 lakhs less than the similar expenditure in 1912-13 There is an increase of R6 20 lakhs in Burma in consequence of a lump allotment of the entire unexpended balance of the old Imperial subvention for sanitation; of R3·74 lakhs in Madras where provision has been made for large grants to local boards for roads, bridges and protected wells in rural areas; and of R1 53 lakhs in Assam where it is contemplated to make increased grants to local boards for the improvement of communications. But these increases are more than counterbalanced by reductions in the other provinces The decreases in the grants in Bengal, Bihar and Orissa, and the United Provinces are caused by lump reductions which have been made to provide for the discontinuance of certain contributions in connection with the surrender to rural boards of the amounts which are now appropriated for Provincial use from the cess on land (vide paragraph 16). In the Punjab, also, a similar reduction has been made; but it is nearly counterbalanced by a lump allotment of R2 lakhs for feeder roads In Bombay, the Revised estimate for the current year includes a payment of R3 91 lakhs to municipalities for special sanitation schemes out of the provision made for this purpose in the Budget under the medical head (see paragraph 122); and the absence of this special payment as well as a smaller provision for the improvement of water-supply in districts affected by the scarcity account for the decrease of R5·47 lakhs in the Budget of 1913-14 as compared with the Revised for 1912-13.

199. The figures shown under "Grants to other local bodies" consist of contributions to the Chittagong Port Trust (R1 5 lakhs), the Calcutta Improvement Trust (R11·50 lakhs), the Madras Corporation (R12·5 lakhs) and the Madras Port Trust (R6 lakhs). The second and third of these contributions represent grants from Imperial revenues passed through the Provincial accounts.

200. A higher provision for repairs has been made in most of the provinces to meet the requirements of new roads and buildings. The grant for "Original works" in Burma includes the unspent balance (R9½ lakhs) of the Imperial subvention for the development of communications which was given last year and R20 lakhs out of the similar contribution which it is proposed to make in the current year. In the other provinces, the prosperous condition of provincial finances has again made it possible for the Local Governments to allot large sums in their Budgets for 1913-14 for new roads, buildings and other public improvements. Provision for an unusually heavy programme has been made in the Punjab where the provincial balances have been very largely swelled in consequence of the windfall received from the sale of proprietary rights in canal colonies; and the grant for 1913-14 is very nearly double the probable outlay in the current year. Large sums have been allotted for additional roads, official residences at Lahore and other places, police buildings, the enlargement of the Civil Secretariat building, and other public improvements. In Bihar and Orissa, a provision of R20 lakhs has been made for special works at Bankipur. The Madras Budget includes R4 63 lakhs for buildings required in connection with the Meyer scheme for the redistribution of districts.

REVENUE.

(a) Imperial.

Revised, 1912-13.

201. The revenue in the current year is likely to exceed the Budget estimate by R3·39 lakhs owing to a credit of R2·21 lakhs for earthwork done by the Public Works department for railways, special receipts from the sale of buildings, and the recovery of rents on account of the temporary quarters occupied by Government officials at Delhi. The absence of these special receipts explains the decrease of R2 66 lakhs in the Budget for 1913-14 as compared with the Revised estimate for the current year.

Budget, 1913-14.

(b) Provincial.

Revised, 1912-13.

202. The total Revised estimate for 1912-13 will fall short of the Budget by R4·19 lakhs. A large decrease of R7 19 lakhs in Bengal caused by the non-realisation of any portion of the sale-proceeds of the Sibpur College buildings is partly counterbalanced by increased receipts of R1 11 lakhs and R1·25 lakhs respectively in Bombay and the United Provinces from sale of buildings, old materials and other sources. The Budget estimate for 1913-14 provides generally for normal receipts in all the provinces Revised, 1912-13, compared with Budget, 1912-13. Expenditure—India.

203. The Revised estimate of expenditure in India anticipates an excess of R36·57 lakhs (£243,800) over the Budget provision of R21,20·56 lakhs (£14,137,100). Of this excess the food charges account for R26·10 lakhs (£174,000) in consequence mainly of a rise in prices which was not anticipated when the Budget was framed; the provision in the latter was based on the probable actuals for 1911-12, so that the causes operating this year to keep up prices appear to be abnormal. The demand for military work parties in connection with the survey operations on the North-Eastern Frontier involves an extra outlay of R8·09 lakhs (£53,900); while another unexpected call arose from the National Health Insurance Act, under which we had to meet a liability in respect of the British soldiers serving in India amounting to R2·24 lakhs (£14,900). But for these three items which aggregate R36 43 lakhs (£242,800), and represent unforeseen liabilities which came into operation after the 1st April 1912, the Budget anticipations of March last would have proved in the main fairly accurate.

Various other causes have contributed to additional expenditure on the one hand and savings on the other, which, however, practically balance each other. More prominent among the former may be mentioned a grant of R3·00 lakhs (£20,000) towards laying in a reserve of fodder and of R4·00 lakhs (£26,700) to purchase about 1,200 mules from the Argentine with the object of reducing the excessive number of aged mules now serving The assumption by the State of the liability of housing silladar cavalry units, in return for their present contributions, has necessitated the writing off to expenditure of the outstanding cavalry lines loan of R3 74 lakhs (£24,900); and additional assistance to the extent of R1·25 lakhs (£8,300) has been given for the urgent repairs needed in the lines of Indian troops Then the expenditure on account of the Army in India Committee is expected to reach R1 50 lakhs (£10,000); railway charges are likely to be higher than anticipated by R2 07 lakhs (£13,800); and some additional maxim gun and ordnance mules are being purchased at a cost of R1·30 lakhs (£8,700) It has also been deemed expedient to procure certain local stores this year in reduction of next year's requirements, and to make an advance payment towards the annual grant-in-aid to cantonments; these anticipatory charges amount to R7 88 lakhs (£52,500).

On the other hand, savings have accrued under several heads, notably in the pay and allowances of British troops to the extent of R6·37 lakhs (£42,500); a lapse of R4 88 lakhs (£32,500) occurred in the grant for the purchase of remounts; and our Ordnance expenditure shows a decrease of R7 61 lakhs (£50,700), partially due to larger recoveries amounting to R3·92 lakhs (£26,100) from the Home Government for stores and equipment taken by the additional troops sent to China at the close of 1911-12. The Indian estimates also have been relieved by R0 93 lakh (£6,200) owing to the employment of certain troops in Somaliland at the expense of the Protectorate, and a saving of R4 85 lakhs (£32,300) is anticipated in India in connection with the Arms Traffic Operations

Home.

204 The total Army expenditure at Home shows an increase of £280,200, of which about £155,000 relates to the additional rifles found necessary and demanded during the year. The outlay at Home in connection with the Arms Traffic Operations has exceeded the Secretary of State's budget anticipations by £47,200, but, as stated above, there has been a saving of £32,300 in India. The outlay on the trooping service is expected to be £35,200 in excess of the budget provision owing to the larger number of voyages found necessary. Our ordinary store expenditure also rose by £59,300, partly on account of arrear charges. On the other hand, a saving is expected in the furlough allowances of officers of the Indian Service, and in connection with the re-armament of artillery and the provision of panoramic sights.

Receipts. India and Home

205 The Revised estimate of receipts anticipates an improvement of £30,600 which practically all occurs in India, and is mainly due to larger payment issues and sales of ordnance stores, and to the credit now taken for the equipment, stores and animals sent to China with Indian units in 1911-12. On the other hand, the expected realizations by the disposal of surplus clothing stores have not been fully attained, and dairy produce sales have been less than was anticipated

206. The net expenditure of the year is expected to be £493,400 more than the Budget provision, and may broadly be attributed to causes not in evidence when the estimate was framed in March last.

Net Expenditure.

207. The total provision for special or "Schedule" expenditure in the Budget of 1912-13 was R42 70 lakhs (£284,700), and it is anticipated that the actuals will amount to R58·74 lakhs (£391,600). An excess of £116,400 is expected in England, mainly due to an order having been placed for a large number of additional rifles on account of which about £155,000 will be paid this year, the difference being met from lapses due to non-compliance with the store demands put forward, notably in connection with the rearmament of the artillery now in hand and the supply of panoramic sights. This latter cause has retarded expenditure in India, where a lapse of £9,500 has occurred.

Special Expenditure.

208. The more important measures and the outlay on each during the current year are stated below approximately, in the absence of full details of the Home expenditure on individual measures:—

	Expenditure in 1912-13.
	Lakhs.	Equivalent in
	R	£
(I) Purchase of short rifles	33 64	224,300
(II) Rearmament of artillery	19 73	131,500
(III) New pattern bayonet for British troops	1 46	9,700
(IV) Panoramic sights for mobile artillery	1 11	7,400
(V) Increase of training grant	1·00	6,700

209. The Indian portion of the Army estimate for 1913-14 falls below the Revised estimate by R14 55 lakhs (£97,000). If we exclude the provision of R11 00 lakhs (£73,300) in 1913-14 for the acquisition of land for the new cantonment at Delhi, the decrease would be R25·55 lakhs (£170,300), and this may broadly be attributed to a variation of R26 10 lakhs (£174,000) in food charges as it has not been considered necessary to go beyond the Budget provision of the current year. Among other causes of decrease may be mentioned the following measures which have been specially sanctioned during the current year and do not find a place in next year's Budget—R3 00 lakhs (£20,000) incurred on a fodder reserve, R4 00 lakhs (£26,700) allotted for purchase of additional mules in the Argentine, remission of the loans outstanding against the Indian Cavalry line funds, R3 74 lakhs (£24,900), and the additional grant of R1·25 lakhs (£8,300) for the repair of the lines of Indian troops and followers. Anticipatory purchases of Ordnance and Supply and Transport stores and part payment in advance of the grant-in-aid to cantonments account for a decrease of R15 76 lakhs (£105,100), while the mustering out of the cavalry squadrons of the 42nd Deoli and 43rd Erinpura regiments produces an economy of R1·17 lakhs (£7,800) in pay charges On the other hand, the pay and allowances of the army are R9 42 lakhs (£62,800) higher, the augmentation and regrading of the dairy and grass farms personnel and their larger operations account for an increase of R3 46 lakhs (£23,100); while for the purchase of remounts and ordnance mules an additional outlay of R6 19 lakhs (£41,300) is required. Railway charges show an expansion of R5 08 lakhs (£33,900) as the reliefs during the current year were on a low scale, and the provision for ordnance requirements is higher by R9 29 lakhs (£61,900) apart from the advance purchases referred to above.

Budget, 1913-14, compared with Revised, 1912-13, Expenditure—India.

210. The Home estimates for 1913-14 are £44,200 more than the present year's Revised estimate Our store demands are expected to cost £22,600 more, due to an increase in ordinary requirements owing mainly to depletion of stocks which more than counterbalances the decrease in Schedule expenditure, e g., on short rifles. For the Indian Troop Service £41,200 more will be required, owing to the expected employment of hired transports on a larger scale and a smaller use of Royal Indian Marine vessels An unusual payment of £17,000 for clothing allowance is not repeated next year, and the outlay in connection with the Arms Traffic Operations is £14,200 lower.

Home.

211. The anticipated receipts in 1913-14 amount to R1,78 00 lakhs (£1,186,700), i.e., an increase of R0·18 lakh (£1,200) over the Revised.

Receipts. India and Home.

Net Expenditure.

212. The net Army expenditure for 1913-14 is less than the Revised, 1912-13, by £54,000. Under India there is a decrease of £89,900, and under Home an increase of £35,900.

Budget, 1913-14, compared with Budget, 1912-13. India and Home.

213. The gross estimated expenditure for 1913-14 is R29,33·38 lakhs (£19,555,900), or R70·68 lakhs (£471,200) above the Budget figure of the current year. Of this amount R22·02 lakhs (£146,800) occur in the Indian, and R48·66 lakhs (£324,400) in the Home estimates. The receipts show an improvement of R4·76 lakhs (£31,800), and the net Army expenditure for 1913-14 thus exceeds the original estimate for 1912-13 by R65·92 lakhs (£439,400).

Special Expenditure.

214. The expenditure on Schedule measures incorporated in the Budget of 1913-14 is R64·00 lakhs (£426,700), as compared with R58·74 lakhs (£391,600) in the Revised, and R42·70 lakhs (£284,700) in the Budget 1912-13. The following are the more important measures proposed to be undertaken :—

Revised, 1912-13, compared with Budget, 1912-13. Expenditure, Receipts and Net Expenditure India and Home.

215. The total expenditure (India and Home) exceeds the Budget by £29,700, and there is a fall in the receipts to the extent of £3,300; the net expenditure is thus £33,000 more than the Budget.

The increase in Indian expenditure is due chiefly to the advance purchase of local stores, to the chartering of a private steamer to convey a mule corps from Madras to Burma owing to our Royal Indian Marine transports being fully employed elsewhere, and to coal for the subsidised vessels for which no provision was made in the Home store estimates having been supplied on payment from the stock maintained for the Arms Traffic Operations. Larger demands of stores account for the higher Home expenditure. The decrease in receipts in India is largely due to smaller recoveries from the Imperial Government for the hire of Royal Indian Marine vessels.

Special Expenditure.

216 The Budget included £750 for the provision of a ferry barge at Calcutta This was ultimately found unnecessary, but an expenditure of £3,400 had to be incurred in providing additional life boats for the Royal Indian Marine transports.

Budget, 1913-14, compared with Revised, 1912-13. India and Home.

217. The Budget for 1913-14, as compared with the Revised of 1912-13, shows an increase of £1 500 in expenditure, and an increase of £10,500 in receipts, or a net decrease of £9,000. Omitting the transactions in connection with the purchase of advance stores and the chartering of a private steamer to convey a mule corps to Burma, referred to above, the Budget for next year would be R3 60 lakhs (£24,000) more than the probable actuals this year Of this increase, £27,600 occurs at home mainly for higher store demands owing to depletion of stocks, while the Indian provision is lower by £3,600 Larger receipts are anticipated for services rendered and stores supplied by the dockyards.

Special Expenditure.

No special expenditure is proposed in 1913-14

Revised, 1912-13, compared with Budget, 1912-13, India and Home.

218. Under this head the Ordinary expenditure, and the expenditure on Military Works Schedule (Special Demands) measures are separately compiled in the ordinary course of accounting Under Ordinary expenditure the Revised anticipates an excess of £14 000, including an additional grant of R2 00 lakhs (£13 300) given for urgent repairs

Ordinary Expenditure.

Receipts.

219 The Military Works receipts represent the rents derived from military quarters, recoveries for water supply and electrical power, the sale-proceeds of stores, and with effect from the 1st October 1912 the rental and repair recoveries from silladar cavalry units whose lines have been taken over by the Military Works Services. The improvement of R 20 lakh (£1,300) is mainly due to the new recoveries from silladar regiments.

Special Demands Expenditure

220. Under Special Demands there is an excess of R 91 lakh (£6 100), mainly due to funds becoming available to admit of the acceleration of works in progress The bulk of the expenditure has been applied to the improvement of the accommodation of Indian troops and followers (£82 700), to buildings in progress at Risalpur, Murree Hills, Kirkee, Taklah Dacca and Rajkot, to the provision of improved water supply arrangements and of better storage accommodation for cordite at certain places.

Net Expenditure.

Budget, 1913-14, compared with Budget, 1912 13. India and Home.

222 The Ordinary Military Works grant for 1913-14 has been fixed at R99 38 lakhs (£662,600), or R2 49 lakhs (£16,600) more than in 1912-13

Ordinary Expenditure.

The allotment proposed for 1913-14 represents the normal accepted grant for this head, while that of 1912-13 was restricted by a curtailment of works which cannot be repeated.

Receipts.

223 The anticipated increase of R 60 lakh (£4,000) in receipts, allows for the new receipts from silladar cavalry units, and for some expansion in rents and water rates

Special Demands Expenditure

224. The provision made for Special Demands, namely, R42 98 lakhs (£286,500) is R10 80 lakhs (£72,000) more than that of 1912-13. The bulk of this expenditure has been allotted to the prosecution of the works mentioned in paragraph 220 including R12 75 lakhs (£85 000) for the lines of Indian troops under reconstruction, R5 00 lakhs (£33,300) for buildings in the new cantonment at Delhi, R3 47 lakhs (£23,100) for rentable quarters for officers and subordinates, R2 02 lakhs (£13,500) for the improvement of the water supply arrangements at various stations, R1 46 lakhs (£9,700) for the accommodation of British troops in the hills, and R0 62 lakh (£4,100) for aviation buildings.

The allotments for new works amount to R12 80 lakhs (£85,300).

Net Expenditure

225 The net expenditure proposed in 1913-14 is thus R12 69 lakhs (£84,600) more than the Budget figure for 1912-13, represented by an increase of R1·89 lakhs (£12 600) under Ordinary, and of R10 80 lakhs (£72,000) under Special Demands

RAILWAY CONSTRUCTION.

Revised, 1912-13.

228 In the Budget for 1912-13, a sum of R13 50 lakhs was allotted for expenditure on Railway Construction for which the Government of India undertake financial responsibility. During the course of the year the grant was raised to R15,76 41 lakhs of which R76·41 lakhs were specially added to meet the pressing demand for wagons Special efforts were made during the year to avoid the heavy lapses in grants which have taken place in recent years; and as a result, the bulk of the enhanced grant is expected to be utilised, the Revised estimate standing at R15,09 62 lakhs Of the total lapse of R66·79 lakhs, R58·11 lakhs are expected in the special grant for wagons.

Budget, 1913-14.

229. For 1913-14 the programme of Capital outlay on Railway Construction has been placed at R18 crores, i e., about R3 crores higher than the probable expenditure in the current year. Of this sum about R2 crores have been earmarked for the supply of additional wagons

230 The distribution of the total expenditure on Railway Construction between State and Companies' agency in each of the three years from 1911-12 to 1913-14 is as follows :—

231 The policy of devoting the greater part of the programme grant to the improvement of open lines has been maintained, and an allotment of R15,18 68 lakhs made for open line works and rolling stock. The heavy demands of open lines have made it impossible to allot any portion of the increased grant to the construction of new lines; but funds to the extent of R2.81 32 lakhs have been provided for lines under construction to permit of a reasonable rate of progress being maintained on them.

232. The figures in the table in paragraph 230 do not include the expenditure on Protective Railways, met from the Famine Insurance grant, nor of Branch line Companies. Including this expenditure, and also some small expenditure from Provincial revenues, the total outlay on Railway Construction in the three years is as follows:—

A major portion of the ormer sum will be again applied to push on work in connection with the

Triple Canal project in the Punjab and with the Upper Swat River Canal in the Frontier Province Large allotments of R14 lakhs and R10·75 lakhs have also been made respectively for the Twante Canal in Burma and the Mahanadi Canal in the Central Provinces A considerable portion of the grant for canals in operation will be applied to meet outlay on the headworks of the Ganges Canal

INITIAL OUTLAY ON THE NEW CAPITAL AT DELHI.

235 In the Budget estimate for the current year provision was made for a grant of R2 crores for the construction of the new Imperial Capital at Delhi. Careful investigations about the proper site of the Capital and other connected questions have, however, delayed the commencement of work on the permanent city and the total capital expenditure in 1912-13 is not likely to exceed R16·78 lakhs made up as follows:—

WAYS AND MEANS.

HOME TREASURY.

Introductory.

237. The bulk of the payments made in England on account of the Government of India consists of expenditure chargeable to the Indian revenues; and if this represented the only charges, the Ways and Means programme would be a simple arrangement, as the whole of the expenditure would ordinarily be met by remittance of funds from India. The capital outlay on the construction of railways and irrigation works, however, necessitates heavy borrowing; and the major portion of the money required is usually raised in England, either direct or through the agency of Companies. A further complication is introduced by the practice under which all payments made in England to Railway Companies working purchased lines, for purchase of stores and other capital purposes, as well as all moneys raised by them and paid into the Home Treasury, are brought to account under the appropriate heads in this country and are treated in the Home accounts and estimates as remittances to or from India respectively. The transactions connected with the Gold Standard Reserve, and with the replacement of one particular form or item of direct or indirect debt by another, also largely swell the receipts and charges of the Home Treasury without affecting the general Ways and Means programme.

238. The following are the details of the transactions appearing in the Budget and Revised estimates of the Home Treasury for 1912-13 and in the Budget estimate of 1913-14.

Revised, 1912-13. General.

239 The net disbursements in 1912-13 are now taken at £38,745,800 or £8,626,300 more than the Budget A sum of £7,060,000 has been spent on the purchase of silver for the coinage of rupees in India, for which no provision was made in the Budget estimate The deposits of capital by railway companies are less by £1 313,100 owing to a much smaller issue of debentures of the Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway Company than was contemplated in the Budget There is an aggregate excess of £573,100 in the capital expenditure on railways and irrigation works, inclusive of outlay on companies and payments to companies working purchased railways There is also an increase of £139,500 in the net expenditure chargeable to revenue; and of £210,100 in the miscellaneous payments which are treated in the Home Treasury accounts as remittances to India, caused chiefly by a larger demand for stores on the part of Provincial Governments, supply of national health insurance stamps to British soldiers serving in India, and higher remittances by soldiers for deposit in the Post Office Savings Bank The increase in the net disbursement from these various sources amount to £9,295,800; but a portion of it is counterbalanced by a total improvement of £669,500 under the other items shown in the table on the preceding page, which arises mainly from a special receipt of £327,900 in gold from India and a rise of £303 700 in the net receipts in connection with postal and money order transactions exchanged between England and India.

240 The briskness of the export trade has again led to a heavy demand for remittance of funds to India; and the total drawings of the Secretary of State in the current year are now expected to amount to £25,660,000, the whole of which will be used to meet the disbursements of the Home Treasury, against a Budget estimate of £15,500,000 The additional funds thus obtained will more than suffice to meet the increase in the net disbursements mentioned in the preceding paragraph; and the balances of the Home Treasury will be drawn on to the extent of £10,085,800 only instead of £14,619,500 as provided in the Budget. A remittance of £1,927,900 in gold was also received during the year from India; but of this amount £1,600 000 was deposited at the Bank of England on account of the Paper Currency Reserve, and only £327,900 was used for general purposes

1912-13. Capital raised and deposited by Railway Companies.

244 The Budget estimates provide for a net disbursement of £25,916,900. The decrease of £1,202,600 over the net disbursement in the current year's Budget is the net result of the following variations:—

246. The Budget Estimate for 1913-14 provides for the receipt from India of £450,000 light-weight sovereigns and half sovereigns which have been withdrawn from circulation The improvement under Deposit, Advance and Miscellaneous Remittance transactions is mainly due to an increased provision of £270,000 for receipts on account of postal and money order transactions, following the large improvement which has taken place under this item in the current year.

247. Provision has been made in the estimates for the discharge of the following liabilities which mature during the year :—

Indian Midland Railway Debentures	1,111,200
Madras Railway Debentures	170,000
India Bonds	500,000
	1,781,200

248. Of the net disbursement of £25,916,900, it is proposed to meet £21,650,000 by Council Bills and the balance of £4,266,900 by drawing on the cash balances of the Home Treasury which are estimated to stand on the 31st March 1914 at £5,111,000, inclusive of £1,018,600 held as cash at short notice on behalf of the Gold Standard Reserve. It is not contemplated to raise any sterling loan in the ensuing year.

251. The coinage of rupees from the silver which has been purchased for £7,060,000 is expected to yield a net profit of £3,265,700 which will be available for transfer to the Gold Standard Reserve. Of this sum £2,065,700 has been utilised to raise the rupees in the Indian branch of the Reserve to the prescribed amount of £6 millions. The balance, viz, £1,200,000, will be remitted to England through the Paper Currency Department—the amount being paid to it in India against an opposite payment by it to the Gold Standard Reserve in England. The earmarking of gold on account of the Gold Standard Reserve at the Bank of England is in pursuance of the Secretary of State's decision to hold £5 millions of the Reserve in liquid gold in England.

252. The Secretary of State has also agreed that the limit which the sterling assets of the Gold Standard Reserve in England must attain before any portion of the profits on rupee coinage can be diverted for other purposes should be fixed at £25,000,000, the value of the securities held being taken at the market price instead of cost price. For this purpose, a half-yearly valuation of the securities is made on 30th September and 31st March and on the basis of the valuation made on 30th September 1912—the closing balances of gold in England for the Revised and Budget stand as follows:—

The programme herein announced of the probable drawings on India and of the transactions in connection with the Government Sterling Debt and the borrowings of Railway Companies, represents the present intentions of the Secretary of State. But in view of the varying conditions of Indian finance and of the London money market, no assurance can be given that this programme will be adhered to either in amount or in form. The Secretary of State reserves to himself the right to vary the programme to any extent that may be considered necessary during the course of the year. The estimate of Council drawings is for the amount necessary to provide for the Secretary of State's requirements, but additional Bills will as usual be sold if needed to meet the demands of trade.

1912-13. Main features: Budget Estimates.

256. In the Budget estimate of 1912-13, the cash balance in Indian Treasuries on the 1st April 1912, was taken at R17,71 lakhs. It was estimated (1) that the net Imperial revenue in India would amount to R31,17 lakhs (2) that the net deposits in Savings Banks and Provident Institutions would increase during the year by R1,98 lakhs, (3) that a sum of R55 lakhs would be available from the Famine Insurance grant for the avoidance of debt, and (4) that the remittance transactions of Railway Companies would result in a net credit in India of R4,92 lakhs. On the other hand, provision was made: (1) for a net expenditure of R2,34 lakhs from Provincial balances, (2) for capital expenditure in India on railways (inclusive of outlay by companies) and canals to the extent of R10,97 lakhs, (3) for an outlay of R2,00 lakhs on the construction of the new Capital at Delhi, (4) for the discharge of R14 lakhs of the permanent debt, (5) for net payments of R60 lakhs and R33 lakhs, respectively, in connection with Imperial and Provincial loans and miscellaneous deposit transactions, and (6) for the payment of Council Bills to the extent of R23,65 lakhs. The total payments mentioned above aggregate R40,03 lakhs against a total receipt of R38,62 lakhs; and as the net disbursement of R1,41 lakhs would have reduced the cash balances at the end of the year to the inconveniently low figure of R16,30 lakhs, it was proposed to raise a loan of R3 crores to meet the deficit and to form a reserve for future capital expenditure on Imperial Delhi 1912-13. Main features of Revised Estimates.

257. The results according to the Revised estimates show considerable variations from this forecast The year opened with a balance which was R71 lakhs higher than the Budget forecast mainly owing to a larger betterment in the revenue account in 1911-12 (vide paragraph 6), which was partly counterbalanced by a reduction in the net credits in connection with miscellaneous deposit and remittance transactions; and the full amount of the contemplated rupee loan of R3 crores was raised in July The large increase in the opening balance, the very considerable improvement which has taken place in the revenue returns of the current year, as well as in Savings Banks deposits; and the heavy lapse in the grant for Imperial Delhi will, however, enable the Government of India to incur higher outlay on railway construction, to remit to the Secretary of State in aid of the Home Treasury £3 millions more than was provided in the Budget, and still to close the year with a balance of R29,32 lakhs Taking India as a whole, there will be a very considerable improvement of R11,53 lakhs over the Budget in the combined revenue account of the Imperial and Provincial Governments in the current year Two-thirds of this increase occurs in the yield of the wholly Imperial heads—Opium and Railways; but as a result of the large assignments from Imperial to Provincial described in paragraphs 20 to 24, R3,08 lakhs of the gain will appear in the Imperial section of the accounts and R8,45 lakhs as an addition to the Provincial balances. Silver of the value of R10,59 lakhs has been received from the Secretary of State for the coinage of new rupees As the purchase in England was made from the balances of the Home Treasury, an equivalent sum was paid by the Currency Department to the Treasury in India on the transfer of the silver to the former for conversion into rupees The increase in the net deposits in Savings Banks will be R63½ lakhs more than was allowed for; while increases of R36½ lakhs and R47½ lakhs respectively are also expected in the net credits from remittances of railway companies and miscellaneous deposit and remittance transactions. Further, there is a large saving of R1,84 lakhs in the capital grant for Imperial Delhi, and the net payments on account of takavi and other loans are expected to fall short of the Budget provision by R59½ lakhs The total improvements from all these sources, including the increase in the opening balance of the year amounts to R20,74 lakhs. But this will be partly counterbalanced by (1) a reduction of R3 lakhs in the amount available from the Famine Insurance grant for the avoidance of debt; (2) larger capital expenditure to the extent of R1,05 lakhs on railways (inclusive of outlay by Companies) and on canals arising mainly from the expansion of the Railway programme; (3) a remittance of R49 lakhs in gold to England; and (4) an increase of R15,16 lakhs in the payment of Council bills, of which R10,59 lakhs are intended to meet the expenditure incurred by the Secretary of State out of the balances of the Home Treasury on the purchase of silver. The closing balance on 31st March 1913 will thus be R10,01 lakhs more than the Budget estimate of R19,30 lakhs

1912-13 Rupee loan.

258. It was announced last year, subject to the usual reservations, that a new 3½ per cent rupee loan of R3 crores would be raised in 1912-13. Tenders for this loan were opened on the 19th July, and the result was as follows:—

Total amount tendered.	Amount accepted.	Average rate of accepted tenders.	Minimum rate accepted.

1913-14 Main features of Budget Estimates.

259. In 1913-14 the net Imperial revenue in India is estimated at R31,36 lakhs; Savings Banks and similar deposits are expected to yield a net receipt of R2,25 lakhs; a sum of R68 lakhs will be available from the Famine Insurance grant for the avoidance of debt; and the remittance and capital transactions of Railway Companies are likely to result in a net credit in India of R6,61 lakhs. On the other hand, provision has been made: (1) for an expenditure of R4,37 lakhs from Provincial balances, (2) for payments of R13 lakhs, R16 lakhs and R113 lakhs respectively in connection with the discharge of permanent debt, Imperial and Provincial loans, and miscellaneous deposit and remittance transactions; (3) for capital expenditure of R13,47 lakhs in India on railways and canals and of R1,99 lakhs on Imperial Delhi; (4) for a remittance of R67½ lakhs in gold coins to England; and (5) for payment of Council Bills to the extent of R32,47½ lakhs The total amount of funds required by the Government of India next year therefore aggregates R54,40 lakhs, while the receipts at its disposal amount to only R40,90 lakhs.

1913-14. New Rupee loan.

260. Of the net disbursement of about R13½ crores it will be possible to meet about R10½ crores from the heavy cash balance which will be held in India at the end of the current year; and to provide for the shortage it is proposed to raise a new rupee loan of R3 crores in 1913-14. With a loan of this amount it will be possible to close the year, according to the present estimate, with a balance of about R18,82 lakhs. The announcement now made regarding the rupee loan is in accordance with present intentions; but full liberty is reserved, as usual, to vary the programme now announced to any extent that may be considered desirable.

1912-13 and 1913-14. Post Office Savings Banks, etc.

261. The following table gives details of the transactions of Savings Banks and Provident Funds during a series of years, and the estimated transactions for 1912-13 and 1913-14

1913-14 (Budget)	1,31,09,000	83,27,000	2,14,36,000

262. The growth in the net deposits in the Post Office Savings Banks in 1912-13 has again been phenomenally large, owing to the generally prosperous conditions of the year and also to the enhanced maximum limit now admissible for cash deposits; and the Revised estimate for the year is taken at R127 lakhs, exclusive of interest, against a Budget of 60 lakhs. For next year, the estimate of deposits in these banks is taken at a moderate figure of R80 lakhs, while the deposits in the various Provident Funds for Government servants are expected to grow by R51 lakhs.

hope, enable us soon to utilise the full maximum annual grant of 100 lakhs which the Secretary of State has sanctioned But it is not only by the construction of new works that we are increasing the area protected by irrigation. The area protected by existing works is being steadily and largely extended by improvements in the works themselves, by better methods of distribution, by reduction in the supply to areas which receive at present more water than is actually required to bring the crops to maturity and by measures for preventing loss of water by percolation from Government channels. There is no doubt that in many cases more water than is required for their crops is used by the cultivators, and I hope it may shortly be possible to appoint an Agricultural officer working in close touch with the Public Works Department to inquire into the best means of ascertaining and bringing to the notice of the cultivators the amount of water which can be most effectively utilised. Nothing would more tend to check the excessive use of water for irrigation purposes than the introduction of a system of selling water by volume; and we trust that the modules which are now being introduced on certain works will in time lead to the introduction of such a system.

"As regards Civil Works the grant provided next year is 102 32 lakhs (excluding 1 lakh for Archæological works) against the grant for the current year, of 86 57 lakhs. Of the sum provided in 1913-14, 48 43 lakhs represents the amount it is proposed to spend on Original Works chiefly to meet the requirements of Posts, Telegraphs, Customs and the Currency Department. Under Telegraphs there is a provision of R3·32 lakhs for Radio stations at Bangalore, Secunderabad, Madras, Peshawar, Quetta, Burma and Port Blair As I pointed out last year, so far as the Original Works are concerned, the Public Works Department is practically in the position of an agent for other Departments, and the number and size of buildings to be put up must depend mainly on the demand of other Departments The provision for repairs amounts to 18·75 lakhs which is 75 lakhs more than that allowed last year The cost of repairs must necessarily increase pari passu with the maintenance of a larger number of civil buildings, roads, etc."

The Hon'ble Sir Harcourt Butler: "Sir, I beg to introduce the following heads of the Financial Statement: Revenue—'Education,' No. XIX and the sub-head 'Sanitation,' under 'Medical,' No XX of the Budget heads and the same heads under Expenditure I think it will be for the convenience of the Council, as my statements* consist largely of a tabled statement of financial figures, if I lay them on the table. I lay on the table a statement of the educational grants and an educational summary with statistics showing educational progress during the year, which will be published in the next Gazette; also a statement showing in detail the sanitary grants and the objects for which they are given I will now ask the Hon'ble Surgeon-General Sir Pardey Lukis to make a statement as to what is being done in the important department of Research."

The Hon'ble Surgeon-General Sir Pardey Lukis:—"Sir, as requested by the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Education Department, I rise to submit to Council a statement as regards both research work which has been carried out during the past year and the various inquiries which are either in progress or about to be undertaken in the immediate future In so doing I will be as brief as is consistent with making clear to a lay audience this highly technical subject The diseases with which I shall deal are seven in number Five of these, namely, Malaria, Yellow Fever, Plague, Kala Azar, and Relapsing Fever are conveyed from man to man by biting insects. The remaining two—Cholera and Dysentery—are as a rule water-borne.

"I will first deal with what is being done in connection with malaria. There can be no doubt that this disease is responsible for more sickness and death in this country than any other individual cause. In some tracts it is a scourge worse than either plague or cholera, and in few places does the population escape entirely. To this the Government of India is keenly alive, and special exertions are being made to mitigate the evil At the present time there are eight officers on special duty in different parts of India studying the local conditions which underlie and are causing the malaria and devising schemes for its reduction or abolition. Special grants have been made by the Government of India for such investigations, and as schemes have been prepared, further grants have been given either to cover their full cost or assist in bringing them into effect To Madras R28,000 has been given for a malarial inquiry in Ennore, and this as also a general investigation into malarial conditions throughout the whole presidency is in progress. A complete survey of the conditions favouring the prevalence of malaria in Bombay has furnished recommendations for the prevention of that disease within the City. A grant of R50,000 has been given to assist in carrying these out. Two other investigations—one in Sind and the other in the Canara District—are also in progress in this Presidency, and for these a grant of R21,380 has been made.

* Vide Appendix.

"In Bengal the conditions are very different from those in other parts of India, and, as the Hon'ble Member told you just now, malaria appears to be largely due to overgrowth of jungle. The Government of India suggested that an experiment might be made to see how far conditions could be ameliorated by the clearance of this jungle, and the grant of R50,000 has been made to help in carrying it out Other experiments and investigations are in progress in this province which, it is hoped, will lead to further good results. In the United Provinces malarial surveys were undertaken in the towns of Saharanpur, Nagina, Kosi, Kairana and Meerut. These have all been completed and recommendations made for each place. In Saharanpur, Nagina and Kosi an active anti-mosquito campaign is being carried out with the aid of a grant of R1,80,000 from the Government of India. The schemes for Kairana and Meerut are still under consideration From the Punjab Government a scheme regarding the town of Palwal, which lies in a specially malarious tract, has been received and R35,000 is being allotted towards its cost. In Burma the Malaria Officer has prepared a scheme for the town of Kyaukpyu and in Delhi a full survey of all the conditions tending to malaria has also been made This survey has placed us in possession of accurate information as to the nature and extent of malarial infection in and around old Delhi—information which will be of great use to the authorities when they are considering the location of the new Imperial City. The list of work in progress is a long and satisfactory one, but it is Government's intention to further extend it to other places as men and funds, become available.

"In this connection I may mention that several interesting points were brought into prominence during the discussion at the recent Malarial Conference at Madras. Thus investigations have shown that the cultivation of rice and of other crops for which an abundance of water is necessary need not lead to the formation of dangerous breeding grounds for mosquitos. In the interests of agriculture, therefore, we are endeavouring to ascertain the precise conditions under which such cultivation is, or is not, likely to be harmful. We are also pursuing inquiries with a view to discovering what are the most effective larvicides and natural enemies of the mosquito and which of them are best suited for use in particular localities and under different conditions of environment. Here I must mention a very interesting paper on insect psychology, which was read by Professor Howlett before the last meeting of the general malarial committee. This paper shows that we must regard the biting insects not as intelligent beings consciously shaping a path through life, but as being in a state of active hypnotic trance and influenced by external stimuli such as particular scents and sound. If Mr. Howlett's view is correct, it is obvious that it opens up great possibilties in mosquito control. Once we discover the stimulus which determines a mosquito's action we hold the key of the position since we can apply our knowledge to the mosquito's undoing. As Professor Howlett aptly puts it 'it is no intelligent foe we have to fight, but a mere battalion of somnambulists.'

"I turn now to Yellow Fever:—The Council will remember that Major James was sent to Panama to devise measures for keeping this disease out of the country. This officer has returnrd to India and submitted a most interesting and valuable report which will shortly be published. Meanwhile

* This amount (1 lakh a year) is earmarked for an Oriental Research Institute when a scheme is ready.

By "Imperial expenditure" is meant provision made for the expansion and improvement of education in those areas which are financed wholly or partially from Imperial revenues. The recurring grants to the major provinces will continue unchanged in the forthcoming year. Other grants, made to agencies, etc., have in some cases been made for capital objects; hence the amounts will undergo slight modification.

GRANTS—1913.

4. New grants are being provided for education out of the surplus of the current year and the revenue of the year 1913-14, to the amount of 374 lakhs, or just short of two and-a-half millions sterling, viz :—

(a) Non-recurring grant of 69 lakhs from the opium surplus of the current year.

(b) Non-recurring grant of 250 lakhs from the surplus of ordinary revenue during the current year.

(c) Recurring grant of 55 lakhs from the revenue of the year 1913-14.

The distribution of these grants according to objects will be as follows :—

(a) Non-recurring grant of 69 lakhs from the opium surplus.—The whole of this grant to Local Governments, is allotted to hostel construction. A specially liberal grant is made to Bengal to provide the balance for the Dacca hostel scheme as well as for hostels elsewhere. A sum of two lakhs is given on to the University of Calcutta over and above the amount which this institution will receive along with other Universities from the grant from the surplus of ordinary revenue in order to enable the University to purchase a site required for expansion of University buildings. The distribution accordingly is :—

Hotels	67·00
Calcutta University	2·00
TOTAL .	69·00

(b) Non-recurring grant of 250 lakhs from the surplus of ordinary revenue.—This is distributed to universities and Local Governments for building equipment and other capital charges, as follows :—

Universities,—46 lakhs ; to be distributed as follows :—

	Lakhs of rupees.
University of Calcutta	6·00
University of Bombay	2·00
University of Madras	3·00
Punjab University	2·00
University of Allahabad	2·00
Dacca University	15·00
Patna University	8·00
Rangoon University	8·00
TOTAL .	46·00

It has already been decided in principle to establish University at Dacca, Patna and Rangoon and it is necessary to provide for their early foundation. The grants for this purpose, however, are contingent upon the approval by the Government of India or the Secretary of State of schemes for their constitution.

Colleges and secondary schools (including training institutions),—35 lakhs.—The Government of Madras are understood to contemplate considerable expenditure upon their engineering college. It will be open to that Government to spend a portion of the sum on this object. The remainder of the total grant is intended for arts colleges and secondary schools. The Government of India desire to urge the claims of training institutions.

Elementary schools,—84 lakhs.—This grant is intended for the erection and equipment of vernacular (mainly elementary) schools and vernacular training institutions.

Educational hygiene, gymnasia, play-grounds, swimming-baths, gardens, reading-rooms, common-rooms, etc., —25 lakhs.—This grant is intended to make a start in placing education upon a broader basis along the lines indicated in the resolution no. 301-C. D. of the 21st February last.

Manual instruction,—7 lakhs —This is designed to encourage the much-needed introduction of manual training into schools; two Local Governments have already framed schemes of this kind.

Girls' schools, technical and special schools.—25 lakhs —These objects have been grouped together under a single head in order that Local Governments may deal freely with their grants according to the readiness of local programmes.

European education,—28 lakhs —There are large demands for the improvement of buildings and equipment in schools for the domiciled community in all provinces except Bihar and Orissa, where the needs for such education are not extensive and are reported to have been satisfied by previous grants.

The Government of India are about to address Local Governments on the question of encouraging Muhammadan education generally. But they do not desire to delay any existing schemes and they have no doubt that Local Governments in distributing grants will make provision for special Muhammadan institutions

(c) Recurring grant of 55 lakhs out of the revenues of the ensuing year —Six lakhs is held in reserve for the present to meet undeclared requirements such as proposals for the development of Oriental studies and Muhammadan education and 49 lakhs distributed as follows :—

	Lakhs of rupees.
Universities	6·50
Primary education	20·00
Girls' education	5·00
Colleges and training institutions	3·00
Secondary education	9·00
Technical and special education	1·50
Manual training	1·00
European education	3·00
TOTAL	49·00

Universities,—6 50 lakhs —Recurring grants have been made during the current year to the existing universities for the encouragement of research work and higher teaching. The result of that experiment is awaited Meanwhile, the Government of India desire to make adequate provision for the creation of new universities and a new type of teaching and residential university—a reform to which they attach great importance They are accordingly allotting 5 lakhs for the proposed teaching and residential University at Dacca (for which R45,000 has already been given), and for universities at Patna and Rangoon sums of 1 lakh and 0 50 lakh, respectively This expenditure will be contingent upon sanction Meanwhile these recurring grants will accumulate a fund which should provide for capital charges.

5 The distribution of both non-recurring and recurring grants has been calculated, first, upon the population and other statistical considerations in each province; second, upon an estimate, as worked out by each Local Government, of its requirements over the next three years These estimates are necessarily of a rough nature Local Governments were unofficially invited to compile them in order that, in this and forthcoming distributions, the Government of India might have before them the wishes of each Local Government and might be able approximately to adjust the amount of grant under each head to the conditions of the province. The Government of India do not desire to tie down Local Governments too rigorously to particular heads, provided there is a general conformity to policy, and will consider favourably applications for transfer of sums from one Educational head to another subject to this general provision.

6. The distribution under (a) and (b) and the distribution of 49 lakhs under (c) represents provision in the budgets of major Local Governments only, except that sums are allotted under (c) to the North-West Frontier Province and Coorg The totals shown will not be wholly allotted in the provincial budgets during the ensuing year but will be made available according to the spending capacity of each Local Government and upon other considerations. None of the sums in the distribution shown above will be used for Imperial expenditure, i e, for financing schemes in the North-West Frontier Province, Coorg (except from the recurring grant of 55 lakhs), Baluchistan, Ajmer-Merwara, the Province of Delhi, or other special areas such as those administered by Political Officers For the educational requirements of these Administrations and areas, the Government of India are allotting imperial funds during the current year.

7. Statistics showing educational progress (which will be published in the Gazette of India) and a brief descriptive summary are laid on the table. These show a considerable increase in expenditure and in numbers under instruction during the past year (1911-12).

8. The new department got to work in January 1911 Since then Imperial grant for education have aggregated

	Lakhs of rupees.
Non-recurring	479·00
Recurring	115·00

The slight excess over the grants as previously stated is due to the distribution of additional sums to special areas or institutions. The Imperial Government has therefore increased the allotments for education by R5,94,00,000 or £3,960,000 sterling of which R4,79,00,000 or £3,193,000 sterling is for capital charges and R1,15,00,000 or £767,000 sterling is a permanent recurring increase

EDUCATIONAL SUMMARY, MARCH 1913.

The statistical table of educational progress in British India is appended and will be published in the Gazette of India. The figures there shown include the year 1911-12. The account of principal developments, given below, is brought up to date.

2. Statistics of pupils.—The grand total of pupils in all institutions (including private institutions) has risen by 435,139 to 6,780,721. All provinces show an increase. The increases in the United Provinces, the Punjab, Eastern Bengal and Assam and the North-West Frontier Province amount to over 9 per cent. of the total figures for 1910-11. The smallest increases are in Burma and Coorg. The increase in pupils during the quinquennium ending 1907 was 866,732; during the quinquennium ending 1912 it was 1,392,059.

3. The percentage of those at school to those of school-going age (reckoned at 15 per cent. of the population) has risen, in the case of boys to 20·8, in that of girls to 4·7, in that of both to 16·0. The percentage of both boys and girls in public and private institutions together has risen from 16·9 to 17·7, and the percentage to the whole population from 2·5 to 2·6. Bombay, Bengal and Eastern Bengal and Assam show over 33 per cent. of boys of school-going age at school in public institutions; Madras over 30 per cent. and Coorg nearly 30 per cent.; Burma and the Central Provinces over 20 per cent; in the United Provinces, the Punjab and the North-West Frontier Province, the percentages range from 13 to 17. The highest figures for girls are 16 per cent in Coorg and 8·5 per cent in Burma. The United Provinces is last with 1·4 per cent.

4. There has been an appreciable increase in the number of pupils of primary schools. In 1910-11 the increase was 65,583, or 1·5 per cent. of the previous year's figures. During the year under review it was 362,252, or 7·8 per cent. In collegiate and higher institutions, the increase has been less marked than in the previous year, and amounts to 28,687. The figures for higher institutions are as follows:—

	Male.	Female.	TOTAL.
In colleges	35,915	369	36,284
In high schools	390,857	16,908	407,765
In middle schools	470,725	45,880	516,605

There has been a decline in middle school pupils in Madras.

5. In primary schools the figures now stand:—

Male	4,302,631
Female	785,511

There has been an increase in every province.

6. The number of those under training for the profession of teaching has risen by nearly 800, and now stands at 13,354. The number of those who qualified indicates a slight falling-off and was 4,282.

7. Technical school pupils number 12,064, an increase of 1,529.

8. The number in schools for Europeans and the domiciled community has increased by 876 and now stands at 33,720.

9. The increase in Muhammadan pupils has been noteworthy, amounting to 100,597. In secondary schools and colleges the increase has been 15,973, in elementary schools 73,266. The total in institutions of the former kind is now 174,401, in those of the latter, 1,022,768. The remainder of the increase and of the totals are in institutions of other kinds, the complete total being 1,316,998 pupils, of whom 533,333 were in the province of Eastern Bengal and Assam.

10. Statistics of expenditure.—The total expenditure was R7,85,93,000, an increase of R67,25,000 over that of the preceding year. To this increase public funds have contributed R34,83,000, against an increase under this head of R9,30,000 in the year before. Of the total, roughly 405 lakhs are now met from public funds (against 370 lakhs in the preceding year), viz., 270 lakhs (against 242 lakhs) from provincial, 105 from district and 30 from municipal (To the last item the Bombay Presidency contributed one-third). Of the 380 lakhs from private sources, fees contributed 219 lakhs.

11. Among the larger provinces, the highest expenditure is in Bengal, 172 lakhs; the lowest in the Central Provinces, 32½ lakhs. Save in Madras, Bengal and Eastern Bengal and Assam, public funds contributed more than private.

12. The average annual cost of educating a pupil has slightly risen, from R12·55 to R12·8. But the expenditure includes that indirectly incurred, as on buildings, etc.

13. Principal developments.—The main developments of the last and of immediately preceding years have been described in the resolution which appeared in the Gazette of India published on the 22nd February 1913, which also lays down the policy of the Government of India. The quinquennial review of education is now under preparation and will give further information. The year witnessed the assertion at the Imperial Durbar by command of His Most Gracious Majesty the King-Emperor of the predominant claims of educational advancement, the announcement of a recurring Imperial grant of 50 lakhs for the promotion of truly popular education, and the high expression of his hopes and wishes for the expansion and improvement of education delivered by His Majesty the King-Emperor in graciously receiving an address presented by the Calcutta University In addition to the recurring grant of 50 lakhs, a recurring grant of 10 lakhs was sanctioned for university and higher education, and a non-recurring grant of 65 lakhs was also made. There has been expansion in expenditure accompanied by an increase of those under instruction

Other features of the year have been the collection of materials for the preparation of extensive schemes for the spread of elementary education, and, in certain provinces, for the improvement of secondary education; the growth of new ideas regarding university teaching, which has resulted in the proposal for a teaching and residental university at Dacca; the generous gift of Sir T. N. Palit to the University of Calcutta; the creation of a department of industries at Madras as a portion of the scheme of industrial training and development; the sanctioning of an industrial scheme for the Central Provinces; an inquiry carried out by Colonel Atkinson and Mr Dawson into the question of bringing technical institutions into closer touch which the employers of labour; the institution of proposals for an Oriental Research Institute; and the conference held in July 1912 on the education of the domiciled community, whose interests have not been overlooked in the distribution of Imperial grants.

(b) of the recurring grants for sanitation amounting to Rs 45 lakhs a year, lakhs will be reserved for research and anti-malarial projects and the remaining 40 lakhs will be distributed as follows:—

	Rs.

The distribution both of the non-recurring and recurring grant is based mainly on a consideration of the proportionate urban population, that is to say communities of 5,000 and upwards, or in which some form of Municipal Administration is in force modified, where necessary, is accordance with lists of schemes actually ready and waiting for funds in each province.

2. The grant of 5 lakhs recurring for research and anti-malarial projects has been allotted to the Indian Research Fund. The Director-General, Indian Medical Service, will explain in detail the nature of the research work in progress.

3. Cesses.—Local Governments will now be in a position to supplement the resources of District Boards by making over to them the entire net proceeds of the land cess in those provinces in which a considerable portion of this cess has hitherto been diverted for provincial purposes. The provinces thus affected and the actual net gain to District Boards of income are shown below :—

	Rs
Bengal	24,93,000
Bihar and Orissa	22,92,000
United Provinces	29,53,000
North-West Frontier Province	26,000
TOTAL	79,72,000

This is a matter in which the Education Department as being in charge of Local self-government has been interested from the very first They are interested also from the point of view of Sanitation. The Government of India trust that a substantial portion of the sum now added to the resources of the boards will be set apart for the improvement of the rural water-supply for anti-malarial measures, for the protection of grain stores and markets in plague-infected localities, and generally for the sanitation of villages and small towns General schemes of rural sanitation are not yet sufficiently advanced to justify the Government of India in making large grants for this object. But the Government of India are deeply interested in the subject and will consider favourably any proposal to utilise for rural sanitation part of the grants now made provided a practical scheme is put forward

4 Sanitary services—Schemes for the reorganisation of the Sanitary services on the lines of the Education Department Resolution No 921—936, dated 23rd May 1912, are maturing in the various provinces When brought into force the number of Deputy Sanitary Commissioners will have been increased from 13 to 26, the number of trained 1st class Health Officers from 7 to 29 and of 2nd class Health Officers from 7 to 92, and it is hoped that Indians will be appointed in increasing numbers to the Sanitary Services. The assignment of Rs 2,30,000 recurring from Imperial to Provincial revenues shown in this year's Budget has been increased to Rs 2,91,000 in order to provide for expansion The foundations are thus being laid of modern sanitary establishment which will no doubt grow

One of the matters brought out at the Madras Sanitary Conference was the urgent need of organising Sanitary Engineering Establishments Local Governments have been addressed on the subject.

5 Since January 1911 when the Department got to work grants have been made to Local Governments amounting to three crores forty-five lakhs of rupees or £2,300,000 non-recurring and forty-two lakhs and ninety-one thousand rupees recurring or £286,0 '6⅔ for schemes of urban and general sanitation

A grant of ten lakhs of rupees or £66,666⅔ non-recurring and of five lakhs of rupees or £33,333⅓ recurring has also been made to the Indian Research Fund for research and anti-malarial projects

The grants thus aggregate four crores two lakhs and ninety-one thousand rupees, of which forty-seven lakhs and ninety-one thousand rupees or £319,400 are recurring and three crores and fifty-five lakhs of rupees or £2,366,666⅔ are non-recurring
